4 Die, 160 Hurt In Texas Gas Truck Explosion

Fire Follows Crash; Spectators Struck By Flying Steel

BROWNFIELD, Tex. (AP) — A burning bottled gas truck blew up with a terrific blast Monday night, killing four men and injuring Killed were the gas truck driver, killing four men and injuring 160, mostly spectators, of which 45 remained hospitalized today.

Killed were the gas truck driver, two firemen and a man believed a spectator.

The fire followed a collision of a small pickup truck and a large gas transport truck on a stretch of highway at the southwest edge of this small West Texas city.

The accident started a fire in the overturned cab of the transport truck. About 20 firemen were at the scene, surrounded by a small group of spectators. Several hundred other spectators lined the other side of the highway.

Phillip Thompson, a volunteer fireman, said "There was a terrific explosion. The blast knocked me out but I came to right away. There was a terrible roar and the whole sky seemed to be on fire."

"Pieces of steel from the exploding tank ripped through the crowd," Thompson said. "Flames from the burning transport set a number of people on fire. I put out the fire on several people. I had to rip some of their clothes off to put out the flames."

A service station near the scene was set afire, but was quickly extinguished.

Thompson said debris from the exploding truck was hurled 250 to 300 yards away.

The blast shook the town of about 7,000. Windows were broken a mile away. Flames leaped an estimated 400 to 500 feet into the air.

The Terry County Hospital said it had admitted 63 victims of which a dozen were seriously burned or injured. About 115 or 120 persons were injured, the hospital estimated. Some of the victims were driven to nearby Lubbock, Tex., for treatment.

Sidney Hester, police dispatcher, said four men were confirmed dead. He identified them as Ruben Johnson, about 50, of Lubbock, driver of the big truck; Jim Cousineau, fire marshal here; Wayland Parker, Brownfield fireman, and James Ray, of Brownfield.

Man Spends 42 Years in Bed, Is Dead

HAMLIN, W. Va. (AP) —George Lacy, a man of the mountains who went to bed in 1916 and never got up, will be buried today.

Why did he spend the last 42 of his 71 years in bed? Nobody knows for sure. A neighbor said George got mad over sale of a pet. A sister blamed the measles.

Farmer Cal Escue, who lives in the remote Ezekiel Branch section of Lincoln County near the Lacys, said George threatened to go to bed if his father sold a pet calf. His father sold it. So george went to bed.

George's sister, Gertie, didn't see it that way. She said George was "a big, stout fellow" before the whole family came down with the measles one year.

"He followed those ridges and made a regular path up and down them hunting. He loved to hunt possum, squirrel and coon. He was strong as a young bull and never sick or poorly.

"They put us to bed but we all got up later — that is, all except George. He couldn't get up. He lost his talk, too. A lot of people thought he was just acting contrary like, but I knew better. He stayed in bed even when spring plowing time came.

"Pap, he knew something was wrong with George then because he was not a lazy boy. Well, sir, I have never known what was wrong with George, except that the measles did it."

He'd Better Not Jump

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — If the mysteriously motivated thief who stole a clock and a parachute from the Von Behren Manufacturing Co. plant decided it's time to jump, he may find out too late. Owner Allen Von Behren said the chute is very old and probably will split if it is used.

Shepherds Watch as Christmas Comes to Community

SYMBOLIZING this most holy time of the year is the manger scene on the east lawn of the Courthouse, placed there annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Symbolic, too, at the immediate left of the creche, is the memorial to those Fayette County men and women who have served their country—many of them giving their lives that "Peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men" might become a reality.

Author Urges Soup-Slurping

TOKYO (AP)—Slurp your soup and prove you're no social sheep.

So advises Yukio Mishima, one of Japan's most popular postwar novelists.

The 33-year-old author frowns on efforts to cram Western table manners down Japanese throats.

"Never to make noise when you have soup," he argues, "is to force Western etiquette on the Japanese who have been used to noisily slurping soybean soup and tea since childhood."

Crown Prince Is 25

TOKYO (AP) — Crown Prince Akihito celebrated his 25th birthday today with three quiet parties. One was a dinner for his commoner fiancee Michiko Shoda.

City, County Get Set For Christmas Pause

Fayette Countians, with very few exceptions, will take Thursday off from their normal workaday life for meditation and merriment—to celebrate their own religious beliefs of the birth of Christ 1958 years ago and to make merry in the Santa Claus tradition with the giving of gifts and at family gatherings.

The business and professional life in Washington C. H. and throughout the county will come to a virtual one-day standstill.

The few exceptions will be the farmers, who have stock to care for, the proprietors of a few businesses essential to meet emergencies and normal day-by-day needs.

With the exception of service stations, some restaurants, neighborhood food markets and drug stores, places of business and offices will be closed for the day.

While there is no law to close cafes and bars selling liquor, most of them will observe the holiday. The state liquor store will be closed.

* * *

VIRTUALLY ALL of the churches will have had their Christmas services this week. For the most part, the last will be at midnight Christmas Eve at Grace Methodist Church, St. Colman's Catholic Church and St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. The only major church in which services will be held Christmas Day is St. Colman's where there will Masses at 8 a. m. and 11 a. m.

All public offices, city, village and county, will be closed Thursday. So will be the Carnegie Public Library.

However, the city, county and state law enforcement departments and the Washington C. H. Fire Department will be maintained at full force.

Sheriff Orland Hays and Police Chief D. Vaiden Long said their departments cannot relax virgilance with the prospect of heavy holiday traffic, especially in the morning and evening. They expect a mid-day lull.

Most of the stores in Washington C. H. will remain open until 9 p. m. Tuesday but close at the normal closing time Christmas Eve.

Pauper Farmer Gets Land Back, Is Millionaire

TOKYO (AP) — Farmer Jutar Nagao was so hard up 25 years ago he couldn't pay $62.50 in taxes. The tax collector took away 1,237 acres of his property.

A Japanese court recently gave the land back to Nagao, now 77, and made him a potential millionaire.

For Nagao's acreage is in the middle of the Chitose Air Base and military area in northern Japan, used by U.S. and Japanese forces. Estimated value is a billion yen — $2,777,000.

The government confiscated the property in 1933 and auctioned it off for the taxes.

After much litigation, a court finally agreed an injustice had been done and awarded Nagao title to the property.

DiSalle Completes Cabinet Selection

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP)—Gov. elect Michael V. DiSalle today completed selection of three assistants for his personal Statehouse staff.

He appointed Rankin M. Gibson, 42, of Toledo to handle legal research, extraditions, communications and legislative research in the Democratic administration that takes over Jan. 12 from GOP Gov. C. William O'Neill.

Other assistants to the governor named previously were Maurice Connell of Toledo to head the Statehouse office staff and Jerry Poston, former legislative corresdent of the Dayton Daily News, for press relations and liaison with the Legislature and state departments.

Gibson was in the Toledo law firm of DiSalle, Green & Haddad that dissolved after DiSalle won the gubernatorial election.

He was an associate professor of law in the University of Toledo before associating with the law firm. Between 1941-56 he served intermittently as enforcement commissioner for the economic stabilization agency. He also worked for a time with the National Wagee Stabilization Board in Washington.

DiSalle Monday named James Maloon, 32, head of the State Department's Research Division, as his finance director and John (Jack) Bush, 49, former state purchasing agent, to head the Commerce Department.

Earlier he appointed Everett S. Preston, 47, head of a Columbus road planning and design firm, as state highway director, and Robert H. Terhune, 50, Washington Court House, as agriculture director.

Elyria mayor Grant Keys previously was named highway safety director.

Maloon, the new finance director, is a native of Union City in Darke County. Married and the father of three, he served on the economic research staff at Indiana University and headed the Department of Economics of Northeast Missouri State College, Kirksville, Mo., before returning to Ohio in 1954.

After leaving the job of state purchasing agent, Bush, the new director of commerce, formed a business and tax consultant firm in Columbus. He is also president of an accounting tax firm in his home city of Portsmouth. A widower, he has two children.

Preston, like Bush a native of Portsmouth, worked for the Highway Department from 1935 until early last year, when he left to form his own company. The new highway director is credited with developing an aerial photography process which can cut time for highway planning and design by more than half.

Terhune, father of three and a former heavyweight boxing champ at Ohio State University, is from Washington Court House, while Keys, an ex-military flier and father of nine, has lived most of his life in Elyria.

City Council OKs '59 Appropriation

$416,407 Total Includes Raises For All Workers

City Council Monday afternoon approved the 1959 appropriation ordinance which calls for an increase of $39,544.39 in the general fund, including pay hikes for all full-time city employes.

Appropriations total $416,407.09.

Although the raise in the general fund is close to $40,000, City Manager David Foell said that in actual figures, the amount will only be about $5,000 due to a new accounting system he has set up for the city's funds.

Most of the net $5,000 hike can be accounted for in the employes' raises which will amount to about $4,000 over last year's total salary outlay Foell said.

OTHER categorial appropriations include, sewage system, $59,351.03; bond payments, $14,679.97; street funds, $73,520.78; refuse found, $8,858.92; street improvement levy fund, $23,959.

Under the new system, police patrolmen who have been in the department more than 90 days will receive $200 more a year, or $4,260.

Foell said the officers' raises were necessitated as a protection measure by the hike county commissioners gave the sheriff's department.

Firemen also received a raise, which is to be fixed later.

Street department workers will receive an additional 5 cents an hour. Roles range from $1.10 to $1.60.

THE CITY MANAGER'S salary was increased from $5,400 to $6,500, the auditor's from $3,840 to $4,082 and the president of City Council from $30 to $60 a month.

The latter raise was made at the Council meeting to cover administration fees for Chairman's Ben Norris' successor in January.

The overall appropriation for the city during 1959 looks like an increase of about $85,000, but Foell said the budget calls for

Solons Studying Ike's New Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's plan for a 77-billion-dollar balanced budget next year was described by Democrats as unrealistic today, but Republicans called it a welcome Christmas present to the taxpayers.

Eisenhower's announcement of his budget plans, unprecedented in advance of the opening of Congress, said defense spending would be higher and other expenditures "consistent with the public interest" without any general increase in taxes.

His approximate 77 - billion-dollar spending figure would be two billions below this year's estimated $79,200,000,000 total. At that level, a 12-billion-dollar deficit is expected this year, partly because the recession cut expected federal revenues.

Eisenhower originally had forecast a 500-million-dollar surplus for this year, based on lower spending, higher revenues and a postal rate increase higher than that Congress later provided.

Without giving details, Eisenhower said "reductions in total spending will be achieved in part by reason of the ending of temporary programs in agriculture, unemployment insurance and housing."

Due to expire next year are part of the soil bank program and a recession-born program of extended unemployment compensation benefits.

Although no general tax increase is to be asked, Eisenhower said—again without giving details — that his budget will request higher postal rates and gasoline taxes, and some new user charges for government services.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), whose house appropriations committee will have first crack at Eisenhower's appropriations requests, said he is gratified at the plan for a balanced budget "but I am quite dubious about it. I don't see how he is going to get the extra revenue."

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla) said the announcement seemed to him to include "more wishful thinking than any realistic approach" to budgetary problems.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), assistant Senate Democratic leader, commented that "I can't see a gas tax increase" as being in the cards and said Eisenhower will have trouble, too, in getting Congress to vote another increase in postal rates.

Little Hope Held for Air Strike End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pre-Christmas settlement of paralyzing strikes against American and Eastern Airlines appeared beyond reach today — normally one of the busiest days of the year for the grounded lines.

Efforts of National Mediation Board officials in Washington Monday brought no immediate plans for a resumption of contract negotiations between American and the striking Air Line Pilots Assn.

The board reportedly sent telegrams to both sides suggesting new bargaining procedures. Mediation Board Chairman Leverett Edwards said talks might begin again in a few days.

There was no development in the stalemate between Eastern and its mechanics and flight engineers.

An Eastern spokesman said today's booking for canceled flights had numbered about 31,000—highest in the line's history.

American estimated it would have carried about 30,000 passengers today and Wednesday.

Due to expire next year are part of the soil bank program and a recession-born program of extended unemployment compensation benefits.

Although no general tax increase is to be asked, Eisenhower said—again without giving details — that his budget will request higher postal rates and gasoline taxes, and some new user charges for government services.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), whose house appropriations committee will have first crack at Eisenhower's appropriations requests, said he is gratified at the plan for a balanced budget "but I am quite dubious about it. I don't see how he is going to get the extra revenue."

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla) said the announcement seemed to him to include "more wishful thinking than any realistic approach" to budgetary problems.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), assistant Senate Democratic leader, commented that "I can't see a gas tax increase" as being in the cards and said Eisenhower will have trouble, too, in getting Congress to vote another increase in postal rates.

Little Hope Held for Air Strike End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pre-Christmas settlement of paralyzing strikes against American and Eastern Airlines appeared beyond reach today — normally one of the busiest days of the year for the grounded lines.

Efforts of National Mediation Board officials in Washington Monday brought no immediate plans for a resumption of contract negotiations between American and the striking Air Line Pilots Assn.

The board reportedly sent telegrams to both sides suggesting new bargaining procedures. Mediation Board Chairman Leverett Edwards said talks might begin again in a few days.

There was no development in the stalemate between Eastern and its mechanics and flight engineers.

An Eastern spokesman said today's booking for canceled flights had numbered about 31,000—highest in the line's history.

American estimated it would have carried about 30,000 passengers today and Wednesday.

LIFTING THEIR VOICES in the traditional Christmas carols are members of the Fayette County Boys Choir under the direction of Mrs. Robert E. Willis. The Record-Herald cameraman caught the group in a typical pose as they rehearsed for their sacred concert to be presented Sunday night, Jan. 11, at the First Presbyterian Church.

New Pope Gives Yule Message

Pontiff Doubts Reds To Hear Peace Plea

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII, in his first Christmas address, urged the world to Christian unity and peace today. But he said his plea was not likely to be heard in Communist-ruled lands.

The 77-year-old ruler of the Roman Catholic Church asked men of faith to put aside military and violent thoughts.

Then, in the next breath, he warned them to be vigilant "in the night that is darkening" and ready to defend Christian principles against the "insidiousness of the enemies of God"—a clear reference to atheistic communism.

The Pope paid high tribute to his predecessor, the late Pope Pius XII, who during his long reign delivered 19 Christmas messages to the world in which he invariably pleaded for peace and Christian unity.

The new pontiff said man's unwillingness to submit to the grace of God in unity and peace "was the most terrible problem of human history and of the lives of individual men and people."

Pope John said the broken unity of "the heredity of Christ" continues to be a grave problem, but that his own efforts would be unflagging toward "those dear, separated brothers who bow to the name of Christ and read the holy Bible."

Then the pope added, in a sharp criticism of Communist-ruled lands, "in many parts of the world there is no ear for this invitation (to unity and peace)." In those areas, he said, the "most sacred concepts are suffocated or have been suppressed."

Teen-Agers Gleeful with Triplet Sons

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP)—When the stork blesses two teen-agers with three bouncing sons, all in one swoop, how's it go?

"Fine," says David Voss, 19, and his wife, Linda, 17.

And the triplet boys? Well, three can't bawl any louder than one, say their dad and mom. Not much, anyway.

There's no sleeping, David admits, through a three-alarm clamor at 2 a.m. So he gets up, when he can't avoid it, to supply the third hand which Linda sometimes can use.

In the three months since Johnnie, Davie and Stevie arrived, things have gone well. No major illnesses, no family crises.

But the young parents have made some changes.

David left college and is working for a dairy. Linda is studying at home, between household chores, so she can graduate from Redlands High next June.

The mother has her hands full. But they're good babies. "They sleep most of the time," she says.

It's no breeze to take on a full-blown family on $300 a month. The couple got a big boost, though from a television program on which Linda appeared. She won a year's supply of baby food; clothing for the boys and a number of other useful items, including a year's diaper service.

Linda feels her role isn't much different from that of most young mothers.

"Three or one," she shrugs, "it's all the same."

Will this be their family?

"It doesn't matter," Linda says. "But I'd really like a girl."

Pittsburgh Glass Strike Continues

CINCINNATI (AP)—It apparently will be a strikebound Christmas for some 13,000 workers from 11 Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. plants.

Negotiations between the company and representatives of the United Glass and Ceramics Workers Union have been recessed until Dec. 28.

After the last session, which began early Monday morning and lasted well into the night, federal mediator Hayward J. Montoney said: "We have no progress or lack of progress to report at this time."

Sobering Change For Custodians

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Janitors at Jefferson County Courthouse are paid on Saturdays now instead of Wenesday.

Fiscal Court changed the payday after Frank Norris, head custodian said too many of the men celebrated Wednesday night and weren't able to work Thursday.

Being paid on Saturday, Norris said, would give them Sunday to recuperate.

City Council

two new departments and extension of other departments which have been neglected before.

The city has no building inspection department now but will insitute one at the first of the year, the city manager said. While the fee for building permits is expected to carry the cost of the new department, a $3,500 allowance had to be made for it in case the permits don't bring in as much revenue as expected.

The city has never had an engineering consultant on the payroll before, an added expense of $1,800, the city manager said.

* * *

IN OTHER classifications, maintenance costs for government buildings and grounds have almost trebled, but one of the major factors is the back wall of the Municipal Building which is in danger of falling down, Foell said.

A fireman at the meeting asked Council why there is a differentiation between policemens' salaries and firemen's salaries but Council deferred discussion on the subject to an informal meeting to be held with other fire department employes later.

Foell pointed out, however, that the fireman should have taken the question through proper channels instead of going directly to Council.

* * *

IN OTHER ACTION, Council passed several year-end budgetary ordinances an authorized the city manager to enter a mutual fire aid contract with Concord and Green townships.

Members also authorized the employment of the engineering firm of Bird and Tietzel to draw up specifications for new city streets.

Foell said the city's present ordinance conforms with the state's specifications which he observed, are too strict in some instances.

Akron Milk Firm Brings $10 Million

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The board chairman of Lawson Milk Co. of Akron said Monday night the firm has been sold to Consolidated Foods Corp. of Chicago. Purchase price was reported as about 10 million dollars.

J. J. Lawson, founder in 1934 of the family-owned milk company, said he would continue as chairman of the Lawson board and would become a director of Consolidated. Consolidated directors will join the Lawson board, he said and added:

"The management of the Lawson company will remain the same.

"Our policies will go on as before. What this means is that we will now be able to grow faster.

As Tanks Rumble, Kids Sing Carols

BERLIN (AP)—Children singing carols as U.S. Army tanks rumble by . . . Minks and diamond studs at gay holiday parties and tattered refugees from the Communist East. . .A city blessed by prosperity and nagged by fear.

This is West Berlin at Christmas time — five months and four days before the Russian ultimatum for the withdrawal of Allied troops expires.

"We West Berliners are no heroes," says a newspaper editor. "But we will keep our nerve There is no other choice."

So the 2,200,000 West Berliners celebrate Christmas in their traditional way. They try to forget their isolation in the heart of Communist East Germany.

Yet under the city's skin, there is a gnawing apprehension of the Russians, blockade and war.

It doesn't show plainly in the newspapers or in casual conversation.

"Pray this Christmas that the Russians don't gobble us up," said a young streetcar conductor.

When the Soviet ultimatum runs out, the Russians say they intend to end the four-power status of Berlin. Then the Reds might close the East Berlin border and block East Germans from traveling to West Berlin.

West Berliners think the danger of war will become acute when the Russians transfer to the East German satellite regime their controls over Allied supply lines to West Germany.

The United States, Britain and France say they will resist East German controls. And the Russians are retorting that an Allied effort to ram through to isolated West Berlin by force might trigger World War III.

West Berliners, surrounded by 400,000 Russian troops, know what their fate will be if war comes. Nevertheless, they have defiantly and overwhelmingly rejected the Soviet bid to convert their metropolis into a defenseless "free city."

Deaf Children 'Sing' Carols With Hands in Silent World

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Imagine singing "Jingle Bells" or "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" with your hands.

Or, lock yourself for a moment in a world where there are none of the friendly Christmas noises—no street carolers, no belly laugh of a Santa Claus, no clamor of shoppers and traffic.

For the 340 youngsters here at the American School for the Deaf and for the thousands of other deaf across the country, Christmas is silent — just as all other days and nights.

But in the deep silence there is happiness, too.

A Christmas party for the American School's youngsters is a warm demonstration of how the human spirit can overcome a handicap.

The scene is a familiar Christmas school tableau. Scrubbed and smiling youngsters squirm in their seats in the large auditorium, fidgeting for the start of their annual Christmas program.

But when the school chaplain begins the invocation, the difference becomes apparent.

The clergyman tells a Christmas parable in a rich, friendly voice He accompanies his words with rapid gestures of his arms and hands.

The story is of a mischievous, young angel whose pranks jar the conservative ways of heaven. St. Peter scolds his young charge — with silent gestures.

In the final scene, a chorus of angels assembles — costumed in white sheets, cardboard wings and wire halos.

A Christmas carol filters over the loudspeaker system, and the angels begin singing — with their hands.

To the observer, the scene looks pathetic momentarily. An age-old Christmas song, and the only way these deaf angels can evoke the beautiful melody and lyric is with their hands.

But the flash of pity is dispelled quickly. The gestures by the angels on stage have reached the youngsters. Singing with their hands, the deaf children, too, are experiencing the joys of caroling.

Day-after-Christmas Giving Is Habit of 'Bama Couple

AUTAUGAVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Christmas week, 1930, the year the Depression hit Autaugaville, was a painful week for Mr. and Mrs. Pearson, who operated a general merchandise store.

The Pearsons had laid in a stock of Christmas toys, candy and fruits. But the parents who came to their store that week bought only flour, bacon and other foods.

The toys gathered dust on the shelves even though children tugged at their parents' overalls and faded coats.

Edward and Ercille Pearson agreed then that whatever was left over after Christmas would be given away.

Many a family heard an unexpected knock the day after that Christmas.

Many a child who had pretended gaiety at finding an apple and a stick of candy and nothing else in his Christmas stocking laughed with joy as the Pearsons loaded him with gifts.

It has happened every Dec. 26 since then.

The Pearsons' day after Christmas giving that first year was confined to homes at Autaugaville. Now they cover a 10-mile radius.

Their home is crowded with boxes of toys and other presents long before Dec. 26, because the Pearsons decided that leftovers were not enough.

The giving will begin on the lawn of the Pearson home. Then the Pearsons and friends will drive into the countryside where signs designate some 60 stations at which they will distribute more gifts, reaching perhaps 1,200 persons, old and young.

When the Pearsons are gone the tradition will continue. Their three children will carry on the annual custom.

Auto Accidents Cause Minor Loss

Three cars were damages slightly in one city and one county accident Monday.

Jack L. Elliott, 17, of Bloomingburg, said he saw the flash of a right turn signal on the car driven by Clyde B. Cramer, 22, Bloomingburg but too late to avoid a collision, sheriff's deputies said.

Elliott swerved to the right, nicked the fender of Cramer's car and went into a ditch, the deputies said.

Betty J. Mongold, 32, of Bloomingburg, told police she hit the fender of a car owned by Paul L. Cox, 19, of 724 Sycamore St., as she was backing out of a parking space.

Weather Stalls Hunt For Plane in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Bad weather and early darkness stalled the search Monday night for an Air Force C54 with 15 aboard, missing and believed down along the rugged Aleutian chain.

The last fix on the plane was over the Iliamna Mountains, about 130 miles southwest of here. Amphibians and helicopters searched the flight route before being forced in by weather and darkness. All aboard were military personnel. Names were withheld pending next of kin.

Mother-in-Law of Slain Nurse Claims Blackmail Plotted

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—"It's a lie, of course," says Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan of the charge that she hired two men to kill her daughter-in-law. "Those men were trying to blackmail me."

Authorities say Mrs. Duncan, 54, and five times wed, hired the murder of pretty Olga Kupczyk Duncan, 30, because she was fiercely jealous of the Canadian nurse who married her son, a Santa Barbara lawyer.

"I feel terrible about it," Mrs. Duncan told newsmen Monday when they asked how she felt when informed that Olga's body had been found in a shallow grave 20 miles from Ventura. "I liked her and I believe she liked me."

But Augustine Baldonado, 25, who led sheriff's deputies to the spot where Olga Duncan was buried — perhaps alive — said Mrs. Duncan offered him and Luis Maya, 22, $6,000 to kill the woman.

"She told us she had acid and pills to do the job with," said Baldonado. "She wanted us to use the acid on her face, and said this would destroy her dental work, so she could not be identified." They did not carry out this part of the plan, however, he said.

Baldonado said Moya went to Olga's Santa Barbara apartment late at night on Nov. 17 and told the nurse a friend of his was sick in a car outside. The nurse, clad in a bathrobe, went to the car.

"I was lying on the floor in the back," said Baldonado. "When she opened the door, I grabbed her, and Moya hit her with the gun."

The nurse put up a fierce struggle as they drove toward a lonely mountain pass near the coast, Baldonado said, and he and Moya beat her with their fists and the gun, and choked her repeatedly They scooped out a grave with their bare hands and put her in it.

Coroner Virgil L. Payton said she died of asphyxia "Either through strangulation or by being buried alive." The pretty nurse was five months pregnant.

Mrs. Duncan branded Baldonado's story a complete lie.

"She threatened to hurt me and Frank," said Mrs. Duncan. "Those two men were just collecting for her. That's why I paid them the money."

Authorities said the men were paid a few hundred dollars by Mrs. Duncan after the nurse was killed.

Mrs. Duncan, Baldonado and Moya are booked in Ventura County jail on suspicion of murder. Moya has also denied Baldonado's story.

Cincy Pacifist Is Taken to Federal Pen

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Rev. Maurice F. McCrackin, 52-year-old pacifist minister who won't pay his income taxes, was taken to a federal prison today to serve six months for refusal to respond to an Internal Revenue Service summons.

As in the past when confronted with law enforcement officers, the pastor of a merged Episcopal-Presbyterian Church had to be lifted from his cell bunk and seated in a wheel chair. He was aroused about five o'clock and was on his way to the undisclosed prison at 5:30.

The Rev. McCrackin, who clashed with the law over failure to pay income taxes, has had to be carried into jail, into courtroom and out of them since his troubles reached a head several months ago. He refused to walk on every occasion.

In keeping with policy, the name of the prison to which McCrackin was sent was not made public. In addition to the sentence, Federal Judge John H. Druffel fined him $250 for failure to respond to the Internal Revenue Service summons. A jury convicted him on Dec. 12.

McCrackin has refused to pay income taxes for years on the grounds that a part of the money goes for war purposes. The IRS issued the summons for him to talk over his income tax situation.

His court-appointed attorneys filed notice of appeal from the conviction yesterday, just 40 minutes before the deadline for such action.

But McCrackin has not made up his mind whether to go through with the appeal.

Delphos Cops Detail Unique Bookkeeping

DELPHOS, Ohio (AP) — Unique procedures in police bookkeeping were described Monday night in a civil service hearing on the second firing of Police Chief Norman Grewe.

Grewe, who also publishes a daily newspaper here, was dismissed by Mayor Margaret Miller last Dec. 1 on grounds of inefficiency, incompetence and insubordination. He has applied for reinstatement.

The mayor fired him once before, last fall, but city council put him back on the job that time.

Five patrolmen testified last night as spectators jammed the council chambers in which the hearing was held.

Three said Grewe instructed them to record all parking meter fines at 25 cents regardless of the cash actually involved.

In Delphos, parking meter violation tickets have small envelopes attached. Motorists may put the fines in the envelopes and deposit them in boxes attached to the meters.

The officers said Grewe told them any underpayments in the envelopes generally would be balanced by overpayments.

Four of the five officers said they had keys to the police department cash drawer where the fine money was kept. The fifth said he had no key but could open the drawer with a knife.

All except acting chief Carl Brown admitted taking money from the cash drawer and leaving IOU's for the amounts taken.

The hearing recessed on a motion by Grewe's lawyer to reinstate the chief.

Pontiff Doubts Reds To Hear Peace Plea

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII, in his first Christmas address, urged the world to Christian unity and peace today. But he said his plea was not likely to be heard in Communist-ruled lands.

The 77-year-old ruler of the Roman Catholic Church asked men of faith to put aside military and violent thoughts.

Then, in the next breath, he warned them to be vigilant "in the night that is darkening" and ready to defend Christian principles against the "insidiousness of the enemies of God"—a clear reference to atheistic communism.

The Pope paid high tribute to his predecessor, the late Pope Pius XII, who during his long reign delivered 19 Christmas messages to the world in which he invariably pleaded for peace and Christian unity.

The new pontiff said man's unwillingness to submit to the grace of God in unity and peace "was the most terrible problem of human history and of the lives of individual men and people."

Pope John said the broken unity of "the heredity of Christ" continues to be a grave problem, but that his own efforts would be unflagging toward "those dear, separated brothers who bow to the name of Christ and read the holy Bible."

Then the pope added, in a sharp criticism of Communist-ruled lands, "in many parts of the world there is no ear for this invitation (to unity and peace)." In those areas, he said, the "most sacred concepts are suffocated or have been suppressed."

Teen-Agers Gleeful with Triplet Sons

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP)—When the stork blesses two teen-agers with three bouncing sons, all in one swoop, how's it go?

"Fine," says David Voss, 19, and his wife, Linda, 17.

And the triplet boys? Well, three can't bawl any louder than one, say their dad and mom. Not much, anyway.

There's no sleeping, David admits, through a three-alarm clamor at 2 a.m. So he gets up, when he can't avoid it, to supply the third hand which Linda sometimes can use.

In the three months since Johnnie, Davie and Stevie arrived, things have gone well. No major illnesses, no family crises.

But the young parents have made some changes.

David left college and is working for a dairy. Linda is studying at home, between household chores, so she can graduate from Redlands High next June.

The mother has her hands full. But they're good babies. "They sleep most of the time," she says.

It's no breeze to take on a full-blown family on $300 a month. The couple got a big boost, though from a television program on which Linda appeared. She won a year's supply of baby food; clothing for the boys and a number of other useful items, including a year's diaper service.

Linda feels her role isn't much different from that of most young mothers.

"Three or one," she shrugs, "it's all the same."

Will this be their family?

"It doesn't matter," Linda says. "But I'd really like a girl."

Pittsburgh Glass Strike Continues

CINCINNATI (AP)—It apparently will be a strikebound Christmas for some 13,000 workers from 11 Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. plants.

Negotiations between the company and representatives of the United Glass and Ceramics Workers Union have been recessed until Dec. 28.

After the last session, which began early Monday morning and lasted well into the night, federal mediator Hayward J. Montoney said: "We have no progress or lack of progress to report at this time."

Sobering Change For Custodians

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Janitors at Jefferson County Courthouse are paid on Saturdays now instead of Wenesday.

Fiscal Court changed the payday after Frank Norris, head custodian said too many of the men celebrated Wednesday night and weren't able to work Thursday.

Being paid on Saturday, Norris said, would give them Sunday to recuperate.

City Council

two new departments and extension of other departments which have been neglected before.

The city has no building inspection department now but will insitute one at the first of the year, the city manager said. While the fee for building permits is expected to carry the cost of the new department, a $3,500 allowance had to be made for it in case the permits don't bring in as much revenue as expected.

The city has never had an engineering consultant on the payroll before, an added expense of $1,800, the city manager said.

* * *

IN OTHER classifications, maintenance costs for government buildings and grounds have almost trebled, but one of the major factors is the back wall of the Municipal Building which is in danger of falling down, Foell said.

A fireman at the meeting asked Council why there is a differentiation between policemens' salaries and firemen's salaries but Council deferred discussion on the subject to an informal meeting to be held with other fire department employes later.

Foell pointed out, however, that the fireman should have taken the question through proper channels instead of going directly to Council.

* * *

IN OTHER ACTION, Council passed several year-end budgetary ordinances an authorized the city manager to enter a mutual fire aid contract with Concord and Green townships.

Members also authorized the employment of the engineering firm of Bird and Tietzel to draw up specifications for new city streets.

Foell said the city's present ordinance conforms with the state's specifications which he observed, are too strict in some instances.

Akron Milk Firm Brings $10 Million

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The board chairman of Lawson Milk Co. of Akron said Monday night the firm has been sold to Consolidated Foods Corp. of Chicago. Purchase price was reported as about 10 million dollars.

J. J. Lawson, founder in 1934 of the family-owned milk company, said he would continue as chairman of the Lawson board and would become a director of Consolidated. Consolidated directors will join the Lawson board, he said and added:

"The management of the Lawson company will remain the same.

"Our policies will go on as before. What this means is that we will now be able to grow faster.

As Tanks Rumble, Kids Sing Carols

BERLIN (AP)—Children singing carols as U.S. Army tanks rumble by . . . Minks and diamond studs at gay holiday parties and tattered refugees from the Communist East. . .A city blessed by prosperity and nagged by fear.

This is West Berlin at Christmas time — five months and four days before the Russian ultimatum for the withdrawal of Allied troops expires.

"We West Berliners are no heroes," says a newspaper editor. "But we will keep our nerve There is no other choice."

So the 2,200,000 West Berliners celebrate Christmas in their traditional way. They try to forget their isolation in the heart of Communist East Germany.

Yet under the city's skin, there is a gnawing apprehension of the Russians, blockade and war.

It doesn't show plainly in the newspapers or in casual conversation.

"Pray this Christmas that the Russians don't gobble us up," said a young streetcar conductor.

When the Soviet ultimatum runs out, the Russians say they intend to end the four-power status of Berlin. Then the Reds might close the East Berlin border and block East Germans from traveling to West Berlin.

West Berliners think the danger of war will become acute when the Russians transfer to the East German satellite regime their controls over Allied supply lines to West Germany.

The United States, Britain and France say they will resist East German controls. And the Russians are retorting that an Allied effort to ram through to isolated West Berlin by force might trigger World War III.

West Berliners, surrounded by 400,000 Russian troops, know what their fate will be if war comes. Nevertheless, they have defiantly and overwhelmingly rejected the Soviet bid to convert their metropolis into a defenseless "free city."

Deaf Children 'Sing' Carols With Hands in Silent World

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Imagine singing "Jingle Bells" or "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" with your hands.

Or, lock yourself for a moment in a world where there are none of the friendly Christmas noises—no street carolers, no belly laugh of a Santa Claus, no clamor of shoppers and traffic.

For the 340 youngsters here at the American School for the Deaf and for the thousands of other deaf across the country, Christmas is silent — just as all other days and nights.

But in the deep silence there is happiness, too.

A Christmas party for the American School's youngsters is a warm demonstration of how the human spirit can overcome a handicap.

The scene is a familiar Christmas school tableau. Scrubbed and smiling youngsters squirm in their seats in the large auditorium, fidgeting for the start of their annual Christmas program.

But when the school chaplain begins the invocation, the difference becomes apparent.

The clergyman tells a Christmas parable in a rich, friendly voice He accompanies his words with rapid gestures of his arms and hands.

The story is of a mischievous, young angel whose pranks jar the conservative ways of heaven. St. Peter scolds his young charge — with silent gestures.

In the final scene, a chorus of angels assembles — costumed in white sheets, cardboard wings and wire halos.

A Christmas carol filters over the loudspeaker system, and the angels begin singing — with their hands.

To the observer, the scene looks pathetic momentarily. An age-old Christmas song, and the only way these deaf angels can evoke the beautiful melody and lyric is with their hands.

But the flash of pity is dispelled quickly. The gestures by the angels on stage have reached the youngsters. Singing with their hands, the deaf children, too, are experiencing the joys of caroling.

Day-after-Christmas Giving Is Habit of 'Bama Couple

AUTAUGAVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Christmas week, 1930, the year the Depression hit Autaugaville, was a painful week for Mr. and Mrs. Pearson, who operated a general merchandise store.

The Pearsons had laid in a stock of Christmas toys, candy and fruits. But the parents who came to their store that week bought only flour, bacon and other foods.

The toys gathered dust on the shelves even though children tugged at their parents' overalls and faded coats.

Edward and Ercille Pearson agreed then that whatever was left over after Christmas would be given away.

Many a family heard an unexpected knock the day after that Christmas.

Many a child who had pretended gaiety at finding an apple and a stick of candy and nothing else in his Christmas stocking laughed with joy as the Pearsons loaded him with gifts.

It has happened every Dec. 26 since then.

The Pearsons' day after Christmas giving that first year was confined to homes at Autaugaville. Now they cover a 10-mile radius.

Their home is crowded with boxes of toys and other presents long before Dec. 26, because the Pearsons decided that leftovers were not enough.

The giving will begin on the lawn of the Pearson home. Then the Pearsons and friends will drive into the countryside where signs designate some 60 stations at which they will distribute more gifts, reaching perhaps 1,200 persons, old and young.

When the Pearsons are gone the tradition will continue. Their three children will carry on the annual custom.

Auto Accidents Cause Minor Loss

Three cars were damages slightly in one city and one county accident Monday.

Jack L. Elliott, 17, of Bloomingburg, said he saw the flash of a right turn signal on the car driven by Clyde B. Cramer, 22, Bloomingburg but too late to avoid a collision, sheriff's deputies said.

Elliott swerved to the right, nicked the fender of Cramer's car and went into a ditch, the deputies said.

Betty J. Mongold, 32, of Bloomingburg, told police she hit the fender of a car owned by Paul L. Cox, 19, of 724 Sycamore St., as she was backing out of a parking space.

Weather Stalls Hunt For Plane in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Bad weather and early darkness stalled the search Monday night for an Air Force C54 with 15 aboard, missing and believed down along the rugged Aleutian chain.

The last fix on the plane was over the Iliamna Mountains, about 130 miles southwest of here. Amphibians and helicopters searched the flight route before being forced in by weather and darkness. All aboard were military personnel. Names were withheld pending next of kin.

Mother-in-Law of Slain Nurse Claims Blackmail Plotted

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—"It's a lie, of course," says Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan of the charge that she hired two men to kill her daughter-in-law. "Those men were trying to blackmail me."

Authorities say Mrs. Duncan, 54, and five times wed, hired the murder of pretty Olga Kupczyk Duncan, 30, because she was fiercely jealous of the Canadian nurse who married her son, a Santa Barbara lawyer.

"I feel terrible about it," Mrs. Duncan told newsmen Monday when they asked how she felt when informed that Olga's body had been found in a shallow grave 20 miles from Ventura. "I liked her and I believe she liked me."

But Augustine Baldonado, 25, who led sheriff's deputies to the spot where Olga Duncan was buried — perhaps alive — said Mrs. Duncan offered him and Luis Maya, 22, $6,000 to kill the woman.

"She told us she had acid and pills to do the job with," said Balacid on her face, and said this would destroy her dental work, so donado. "She wanted us to use the she could not be identified." They did not carry out this part of the plan, however, he said.

Baldonado said Moya went to Olga's Santa Barbara apartment late at night on Nov. 17 and told the nurse a friend of his was sick in a car outside. The nurse, clad in a bathrobe, went to the car.

"I was lying on the floor in the back," said Baldonado. "When she opened the door, I grabbed her, and Moya hit her with the gun."

The nurse put up a fierce struggle as they drove toward a lonely mountain pass near the coast, Baldonado said, and he and Moya beat her with their fists and the gun, and choked her repeatedly. They scooped out a grave with their bare hands and put her in it.

Coroner Virgil L. Payton said she died of asphyxia "Either through strangulation or by being buried alive." The pretty nurse was five months pregnant.

Mrs. Duncan branded Baldonado's story a complete lie.

"She threatened to hurt me and Frank," said Mrs. Duncan. "Those two men were just collecting for her. That's why I paid them the money."

Authorities said the men were paid a few hundred dollars by Mrs. Duncan after the nurse was killed.

Mrs. Duncan, Baldonado and Moya are booked in Ventura County jail on suspicion of murder. Moya has also denied Baldonado's story.

Cincy Pacifist Is Taken to Federal Pen

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Rev. Maurice F. McCrackin, 52-year-old pacifist minister who won't pay his income taxes, was taken to a federal prison today to serve six months for refusal to respond to an Internal Revenue Service summons.

As in the past when confronted with law enforcement officers, the pastor of a merged Episcopal-Presbyterian Church had to be lifted from his cell bunk and seated in a wheel chair. He was aroused about five o'clock and was on his way to the undisclosed prison at 5:30.

The Rev. McCrackin, who clashed with the law over failure to pay income taxes, has had to be carried into jail, into courtroom and out of them since his troubles reached a head several months ago. He refused to walk on every occasion.

In keeping with policy, the name of the prison to which McCrackin was sent was not made public. In addition to the sentence, Federal Judge John H. Druffel fined him $250 for failure to respond to the Internal Revenue Service summons. A jury convicted him on Dec. 12.

McCrackin has refused to pay income taxes for years on the grounds that a part of the money goes for war purposes. The IRS issued the summons for him to talk over his income tax situation.

His court-appointed attorneys filed notice of appeal from the conviction yesterday, just 40 minutes before the deadline for such action.

But McCrackin has not made up his mind whether to go through with the appeal.

Delphos Cops Detail Unique Bookkeeping

DELPHOS, Ohio (AP) — Unique procedures in police bookkeeping were described Monday night in a civil service hearing on the second firing of Police Chief Norman Grewe.

Grewe, who also publishes a daily newspaper here, was dismissed by Mayor Margaret Miller last Dec. 1 on grounds of inefficiency, incompetence and insubordination. He has applied for reinstatement.

The mayor fired him once before, last fall, but city council put him back on the job that time.

Five patrolmen testified last night as spectators jammed the council chambers in which the hearing was held.

Three said Grewe instructed them to record all parking meter fines at 25 cents regardless of the cash actually involved.

In Delphos, parking meter violation tickets have small envelopes attached. Motorists may put the fines in the envelopes and deposit them in boxes attached to the meters.

The officers said Grewe told them any underpayments in the envelopes generally would be balanced by overpayments.

Four of the five officers said they had keys to the police department cash drawer where the fine money was kept. The fifth said he had no key but could open the drawer with a knife.

All except acting chief Carl Brown admitted taking money from the cash drawer and leaving IOU's for the amounts taken.

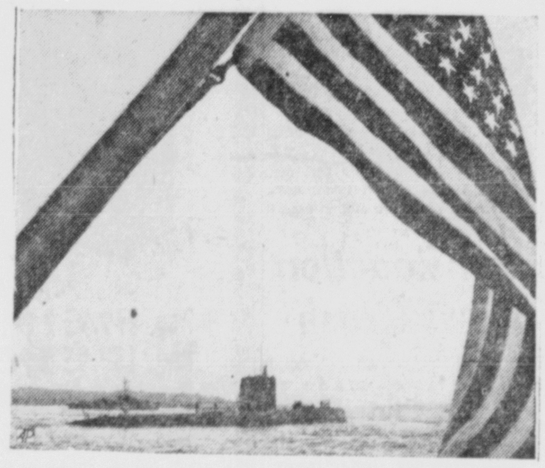
Race For Space Named Top News Story for 1958

SPACE RACE TAKEOFF:-Air Force Pioneer heads moonward from a Cape Canaveral, Fla., launching pad. First moonshoot failed but thrilled the world.

MIDEAST CROSSROAD:-U. S. Marines stand guard at a Lebanese intersection during their brief occupation of the revolt-torn Middle East nation. They left when rival political factions reached compromise.

VICTORIOUS DEMOCRAT:-Gov.-elect Edmund (Pat) Brown (D-Calif.) flashes wide victory grin as he displays reason for smiling. Democrats won landslide victory over Republicans in November elections.

SCHOOL HOLOCAUST:-Firefighter carries young victim down ladder as others fight blaze that swept Our Lady of the Angels grammar school in Chicago. Fire claimed lives of 87 children and three nuns.



GLORY FOR OLD GLORY:-USS Nautilus, world's first nuclear powered submarine, glides into New York Harbor after its pioneer voyage under the Arctic icecap at the North Pole.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first American satellites whirling in orbit around the earth . . .A spectacular but unsuccessful rocket shoot at the moon. . .The first successful test flight of an intercontinental ballistic missile.

Those thrilling harbingers of the space age — and chilling portents of future destruction — formed the top news story of 1958 in the opinion of the nation's news editors polled annually by the Associated Press.

The United States entered the space race with Russia on Jan. 31 when the Army placed its first 30-pound Explorer into orbit precisely 119 days after the Soviets launched their Sputnik I.

In all, the Army successfully fired three man-made moons from the Cap Canaveral, Fla. launching pads and the Navy added a fourth, a tiny 3¼-pound metal globe that may stay up 200 years.

The Air Force's Pioneer moon shoot in October failed to reach the moon but it fired the world's imagination by rising 79,000 miles, man's farthest penetration into space.

THE Russians, too, were active in the space race, launching their 1¼-ton Sputnik III in May and probing near space with rockets, several of which they said carried dogs outside the world's atmosphere.

The ICBM, an Air Force Atlas, streaked off its Canaveral launching pad in late November and roared more than 6,000 miles into the South Atlantic, giving the U. S. a powerful new weapon for its preparedness arsenal.

The continuing crisis in the Middle East, brought home personally to many Americans by the landing of U. S. Marines in revolt-torn Lebanon, was voted the No. 2 story by the news editors.

The turbulent Arab World erupted from its chronic simmering state in July when a group of Army officers, in a swift, early morning coup, assassinated King Feisal and seized the government of pro-Western Iraq.

The unexpected move so alarmed the Western world that, the very next day, American Marines were rushed in to restore peace to Lebanon and British troops went to the support of King Jussein in unstable Jordan.

The Marines stayed in Lebanon until a stable,compromise government had been formed. The British also left Jordan when the tension had eased but, at year's end, the Middle East still was in a state of crisis.

THE off-year elections, a solid Democratic sweep that included that party's first congressman from Vermont in more than 100 years, was the editors' choice as the third best news story of 1958.

The election also was fraught with implications for 1960, a presidential year.

Sen. William Knowland of California, long-time chief rival to Vice President Nixon for the Republican nomination in '60, was all but eliminated when he lost his race for governor to Democrat Edmund (pat) Brown.

But a new Nixon rival emerged in personable Nelson Rockefeller, who made his political debut with an authoritative victory over Democrat Averell Harriman in their contest for the governship of New York.

The death of Pope Pius XII, supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic world, and the election of his successor, John XXIII, was the fourth best news story in the opinion of the news editors.

Placed fifth was the case of Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams and his gift-giving friend, Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine. The affair bore heavy political overtones and possibly influenced the election.

Adams admitted being "imprudent" in taking gifts from Goldfine but he denied that he used his influence to obtain favorable decisions from government agencies for his friend. Adams resigned under fire.

THE other top stories:

No. 6 — The Chicago school fire. A total of 87 young children and three nuns perished when fire flashed through Our Lady of the Angels grammar school in Chicato. Only two other school fires took more lives in the last 100 years.

Although the fire occurred after most editors had cast their ballots, a spot check in major cities indicated the story rated as one of the major news stories of the year. Average position was No. 6.

No. 7 — The Arctic voyage of Nautilus. The first nuclear powered submarine sailed under the Arctic ice pack at the North Pole, an unprecedented feat. It was submerged under the ice 96 hours,.

No. 8 — Integration. Schools in Virginia and Arkansas were closed as the South took a new defensive tack in its attempt to avoid seating white and Negro children in the same classrooms. Some white classes continued in private buildings. The integrated high school in Clinton, Tenn., was blown up.

No. 9 — De Gaulle and the Fifth French Republic. Dissident Army officers, frustrated by the drawn-out Algerian rebellion, revolted peacefully against the chaotic French political system and brought back to power war hero Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle's new constitution revamped the French government into potential stability but the Algerian question remained unsolved.

No. 10 — Recession and recovery. A business decline that began in the late months of 1957 reached bottom in April 1958, when a government count showed about 5½ million unemployed. But, by the end of the year, the economy apparently was well on the road to recovery.

NEW PONTIFF: - Pope John XXIII, new head of Roman Catholic Church, assumes prayerful attitude as he is carried into atrium of St. Peter's Basilica, Rome.

UNDER FIRE:-Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams appears disconsolate as he testifies before a House subcommittee about his dealings with Bernard Goldfine. Adams later resigned.

U. S. Chemical Industry Sees Big Gain in '59

Research Expected To Play Major Role in Climb to New Highs

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The chemical industry believes today that its own research activity coupled with the general economic recovery will carry it to new heights in 1959.

The Manufacturing Chemists' Assn. says the industry is the largest private investor in basic research, which helps it bring out an average of 400 new products each year.

The association estimates this year's research spending at 560 million dollars, and says even more is planned in 1959. A typical chemical company allocates 3 to 4 per cent of sales to this.

The chemical industry slumped in the first part of 1958 along with many others. But in the first 10 months its production was off only two points on the Federal Reserve Board's industrial output index, while all manufacturing production was off 12 points. Chemical sales were down 2.5 per cent from the like 1957 period, but for all manufacturing sales dropped 9.7 per cent.

By October chemical production had climbed above the figure for all of 1957 and October sales topped the previous monthly high of July 1957.

One chemical company says that for every $1 spent in research, development and other experimental costs, it reaps at least $5.60 in new sales after five years.

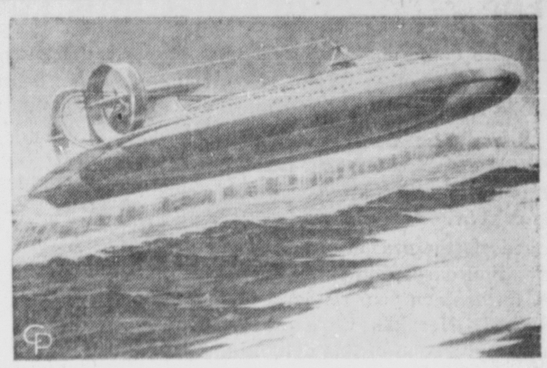
To keep up with their research discoveries, chemical companies are spending 1¼ billion dollars this year for physical plant expansion and replacement.

With construction expected to rise in 1959, the chemical industry has high hopes for increased sales.

The association notes that plastics are being consumed in the housing market in growing proportions. It expects use of vinyl floor tile to increase about 17 per cent each year for a while. It predicts use of plystyrene molding resins to rise by 8 per cent a year. And it looks for big things from plastic piping in construction and plastic insulation for home and office electrical wiring.

Some 390 million units of aerosols were made last year, a gain of 22 per cent increase over 1956. This year's output is believed to be even higher. The product was virtually unknown 10 years ago.

The association says prices have been held fairly stable, due to cost cutting and production improvements. But it warns that a cost-price squeeze will continue into the new year.



'. . . BUT DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER'—A British aircraft company is said to be developing a ship that can cross the ocean without touching the water. In the sketch by artist-author Frank Tinsley for the January issue of Mechanix Illustrated magazine, the ship floats on compressed air forced through nozzles on its bottom. The vessel would carry up to 1,000 passengers, and would be pushed at speeds up to 100 miles an hour by two giant propellers driven by gas turbines. The ship would settle down into the water to dock.

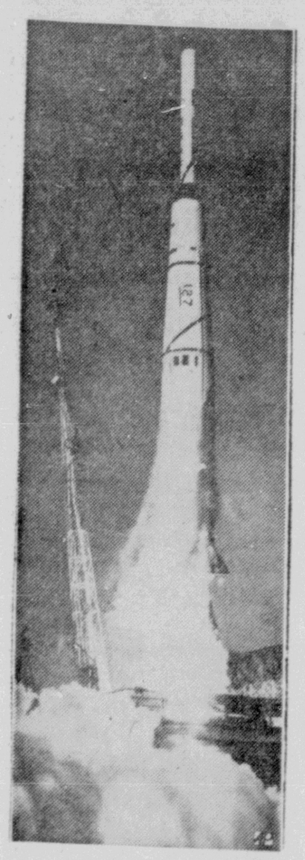
Race For Space Named Top News Story for 1958

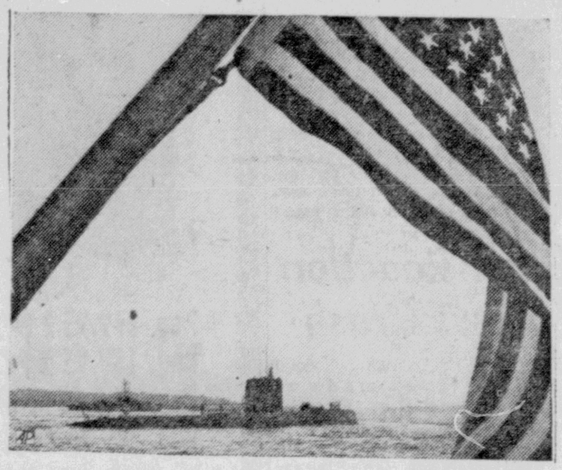


SPACE RACE TAKEOFF:-Air Force Pioneer heads moonward from a Cape Canaveral, Fla., launching pad. First moonshoot failed but thrilled the world.

MIDEAST CROSSROAD:-U. S. Marines stand guard at a Lebanese intersection during their brief occupation of the revolt-torn Middle East nation. They left when rival political factions reached compromise.

VICTORIOUS DEMOCRAT:-Gov.-elect Edmund (Pat) Brown (D-Calif.) flashes wide victory grin as he displays reason for smiling. Democrats won landslide victory over Republicans in November elections.

SCHOOL HOLOCAUST:-Firefighter carries young victim down ladder as others fight blaze that swept Our Lady of the Angels grammar school in Chicago. Fire claimed lives of 87 children and three nuns.



GLORY FOR OLD GLORY:-USS Nautilus, world's first nuclear powered submarine, glides into New York Harbor after its pioneer voyage under the Arctic icecap at the North Pole.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first American satellites whirling in orbit around the earth . . .A spectacular but unsuccessful rocket shoot at the moon. . .The first successful test flight of an intercontinental ballistic missile.

Those thrilling harbingers of the space age — and chilling portents of future destruction — formed the top news story of 1958 in the opinion of the nation's news editors polled annually by the Associated Press.

The United States entered the space race with Russia on Jan. 31 when the Army placed its first 30-pound Explorer into orbit precisely 119 days after the Soviets launched their Sputnik I.

In all, the Army successfully fired three man-made moons from the Cap Canaveral, Fla. launching pads and the Navy added a fourth, a tiny 3¼-pound metal globe that may stay up 200 years.

The Air Force's Pioneer moon shoot in October failed to reach the moon but it fired the world's imagination by rising 79,000 miles, man's farthest penetration into space.

THE Russians, too, were active in the space race, launching their 1¼-ton Sputnik III in May and probing near space with rockets, several of which they said carried dogs outside the world's atmosphere.

The ICBM, an Air Force Atlas, streaked off its Canaveral launching pad in late November and roared more than 6,000 miles into the South Atlantic, giving the U. S. a powerful new weapon for its preparedness arsenal.

The continuing crisis in the Middle East, brought home personally to many Americans by the landing of U. S. Marines in revolt-torn Lebanon, was voted the No. 2 story by the news editors.

The turbulent Arab World erupted from its chronic simmering state in July when a group of Army officers, in a swift, early morning coup, assassinated King Feisal and seized the government of pro-Western Iraq.

The unexpected move so alarmed the Western world that, the very next day, American Marines were rushed in to restore peace to Lebanon and British troops went to the support of King Jussein in unstable Jordan.

The Marines stayed in Lebanon until a stable,compromise government had been formed. The British also left Jordan when the tension had eased but, at year's end, the Middle East still was in a state of crisis.

THE off-year elections, a solid Democratic sweep that included that party's first congressman from Vermont in more than 100 years, was the editors' choice as the third best news story of 1958.

The election also was fraught with implications for 1960, a presidential year.

Sen. William Knowland of California, long-time chief rival to Vice President Nixon for the Republican nomination in '60, was all but eliminated when he lost his race for governor to Democrat Edmund (pat) Brown.

But a new Nixon rival emerged in personable Nelson Rockefeller, who made his political debut with an authoritative victory over Democrat Averell Harriman in their contest for the governship of New York.

The death of Pope Pius XII, supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic world, and the election of his successor, John XXIII, was the fourth best news story in the opinion of the news editors.

Placed fifth was the case of Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams and his gift-giving friend, Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine. The affair bore heavy political overtones and possibly influenced the election.

Adams admitted being "imprudent" in taking gifts from Goldfine but he denied that he used his influence to obtain favorable decisions from government agencies for his friend. Adams resigned under fire.

THE other top stories:

No. 6 — The Chicago school fire. A total of 87 young children and three nuns perished when fire flashed through Our Lady of the Angels grammar school in Chicato. Only two other school fires took more lives in the last 100 years.

Although the fire occurred after most editors had cast their ballots, a spot check in major cities indicated the story rated as one of the major news stories of the year. Average position was No. 6.

No. 7 — The Arctic voyage of Nautilus. The first nuclear powered submarine sailed under the Arctic ice pack at the North Pole, an unprecedented feat. It was submerged under the ice 96 hours,.

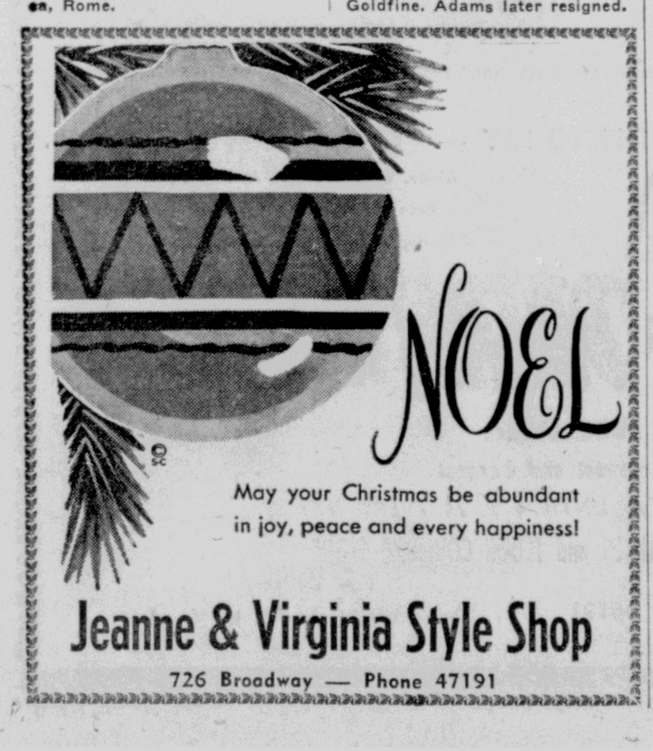
No. 8 — Integration. Schools in Virginia and Arkansas were closed as the South took a new defensive tack in its attempt to avoid seating white and Negro children in the same classrooms. Some white classes continued in private buildings. The integrated high school in Clinton, Tenn., was blown up.

No. 9 — De Gaulle and the Fifth French Republic. Dissident Army officers, frustrated by the drawn-out Algerian rebellion, revolted peacefully against the chaotic French political system and brought back to power war hero Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle's new constitution revamped the French government into potential stability but the Algerian question remained unsolved.

No. 10 — Recession and recovery. A business decline that began in the late months of 1957 reached bottom in April 1958, when a government count showed about 5½ million unemployed. But, by the end of the year, the economy apparently was well on the road to recovery.

NEW PONTIFF: - Pope John XXIII, new head of Roman Catholic Church, assumes prayerful attitude as he is carried into atrium of St. Peter's Basilica, Rome.

UNDER FIRE:-Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams appears disconsolate as he testifies before a House subcommittee about his dealings with Bernard Goldfine. Adams later resigned.



May your Christmas be abundant in joy, peace and every happiness!

U. S. Chemical Industry Sees Big Gain in '59

Research Expected To Play Major Role in Climb to New Highs

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The chemical industry believes today that its own research activity coupled with the general economic recovery will carry it to new heights in 1959.

The Manufacturing Chemists' Assn. says the industry is the largest private investor in basic research, which helps it bring out an average of 400 new products each year.

The association estimates this year's research spending at 560 million dollars, and says even more is planned in 1959. A typical chemical company allocates 3 to 4 per cent of sales to this.

The chemical industry slumped in the first part of 1958 along with many others. But in the first 10 months its production was off only two points on the Federal Reserve Board's industrial output index, while all manufacturing production was off 12 points. Chemical sales were down 2.5 per cent from the like 1957 period, but for all manufacturing sales dropped 9.7 per cent.

By October chemical production had climbed above the figure for all of 1957 and October sales topped the previous monthly high of July 1957.

One chemical company says that for every $1 spent in research, development and other experimental costs, it reaps at least $5.60 in new sales after five years.

To keep up with their research discoveries, chemical companies are spending 1¼ billion dollars this year for physical plant expansion and replacement.

With construction expected to rise in 1959, the chemical industry has high hopes for increased sales.

The association notes that plastics are being consumed in the housing market in growing proportions. It expects use of vinyl floor tile to increase about 17 per cent each year for a while. The Wonder of Christmas Time

So we come again to Christmas.

Thursday is that Day of Days. Its eve is the Night of Nights.

It would be wonderful, indeed, if we could grasp and hold the spirit of Christmas for more than a day and a night each year.

This is the season of Christmas greetings and cards, either mailed or offered on the fashion you readers find in the Record - Herald's Christmas edition — a happy custom of this delightful season.

How fortunate we are as a free people to be able to enter into the spirit of this occasion without reservations. Cards and greetings represent a kindly gesture and fit this season of goodwill.

It is well for all of us to firmly resolve that we shall exert our efforts and influence to retain the heritage which makes this possible. All our lives would be much fuller if we could extend this spirit throughout the whole year.

On Christmas Eve and Christmas Day most of us are bound to be affected by the feeling that evil really has no power; that everything is pointed toward good; that dominating selfishness is for a time forgotten; that we come nearer to living by the Golden Rule than at most any other time. Love and peace for one day seem to sway this nation and many countries of the world.

We are fortunate in such a fundamentally prosperous community as Fayette County, and we know but comparative little of the really fateful hates and emotional distress which afflict many parts of this old globe. For this we should be extremely thankful and we should lend ourselves to helping make as many others happy as possible. It is a time when any friendly act or greeting of goodwill toward others is well worth a special effort.

If we could but maintain the warm compassion and human understanding which most of us feel at the Christmas season we could go a long way toward abolishing hate, greed and force, or small, often silly, controversies we could easily replace with the Christmas spirit of service to others.

Christmas Makes People Human

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Few things make people more human than Christmas.

And since it makes them human, it makes them different. The wonder of the season affects them in various ways.

Here are a few standard types that can be found in every community—and one of them may be you:

The Grouch—He hates the whole idea of good will toward anybody, let alone everybody. On Christmas Eve he puts a bear trap in his fireplace, baits it with a calendar photo of Marilyn Monroe — in hopes that Santa Claus will reach for it and get a broken arm.

The Fair Trader—She sends out exactly 287 Christmas cards herself, and worries if she doesn't get exactly 287 in return.

The Hard Luck Artist—Never in his whole life has he received a Christmas present he really could use. The necktie is always the wrong color, the shirt the wrong size, the cufflinks are superfluous since he never wears them. But he enjoys his misery, and if anybody ever did send him something that fit him it would ruin his Christmas.

The Cecil B. DeMille Producer—He starts decorating the outside of his home the day after Thanksgiving, and spends enough money on it to make another "Ten Commandments." Early in February he goes into bankruptcy, moves away and leaves the papier-mache reindeer and sled to rot quietly atop his empty home.

The Chronic Caroler—This guy knows all the words, but not the tunes, of every Christmas song ever written, sings them incessantly at his desk, on the bus, in the supermarket, and over the telephone if you should ring a wrong number and get him.

The Impassioned Imbiber — Christmas always makes him gay. He is lit before the first tree, and is still glowing when the last wreath is packed away. He has few Christmas memories—as he can't remember anything.

The Human Willow Tree—Christmas always makes him sad. He weeps in everybody's else's wassail bowl. He cries over his lost youth, your lost youth, anybody's lost youth. Everything that ever happened to him happened on Christmas. He had his tonsils out on Christmas; his car was stolen on another Christmas.

The Creep of Christmas Past—He yearns for the old-fashioned Christmas of long ago, when people were simpler and loved simple things—just an orange in a Christmas stocking was enough to bring joy. But if you send him just an orange for Christmas he'd sulk until Easter.

The Solitary Reaper—He wraps up a dozen two-bit can openers in fancy packages, then tours the homes of all his friends on Christmas day. He can't lose. He is sure to get a drink at each home—and probably a present.

The Ordinary Guy—He spent a little more than he could afford, he got about what he expected out of Christmas—a good time and a warmer feeling toward people.

On Dec. 26 he wouldn't give a dime for another Christmas — and wouldn't take a million dollars for the one he just had.

New Orleans City Park Ordered Desegregated

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans' City Park, one of the largest municipal parks in the nation, is desegregated.

The board of directors of the 1,427-acre park Sunday bowed to a mandate of the U.S. Supreme Court after eight years of litigation.

"We have reached the end of the rope," said Ellis Laborde, general manager of the park. "We don't plan to have segregation anywhere in the park."

The roots of the mesquite tree are frequently about three times the length of the bush they support.

Russia's ex-Premier Bulganin has been doing a lot of "confessing" to anti - party activity. While Bulge appears to be making his New Year's resolutions a trifle early it may be, in his case, a bit too late!

Bulganin has also denounced four of his deposed associates. Could be he doesn't want to be lonely when he gets to Siberia.

It takes a record blizzard to make that old political promise come really truea car in every garage.

Chain Reaction Follows Crash

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Second Lt. Thomas Stewart made an emergency landing at Flagstaff Airport.

His jet knocked down five landing lights, ran off the runway, crashed through a fence and smashed into a row of trees. But Steward walked away unscratched.

An Air Force investigation team flew to the airport to determine the cause of the crash. After investigation, the five team members and Steward were heading home when their light plane suddenly verred off the runway, spun around and stopped in soft dirt. None was hurt.

All but one member of the team left on a third plane. The fifth man stayed behind to determine the cause of the second accident.

EXCELLENT swimming, sailing, cycling, fishing and golf are just some of the many activities available in Bermuda, British isle about 560 miles east of the U. S.

Northernmost of the coral atolls, it offers all the features of the tropics, surf beaches, palm trees, flowers and a gentle breeze from the Gulf stream, bringing winter temperature to the 80s.

Chief attraction is the beach. Virtually the entire 22-mile-long island has useable beaches. Many are long, sandy ones, but most unique are those dotted with coral rocks. There are many little lagoons which offer private little swimming holes.

Many types of accommodations are available for every type of purse, including the popular oceanside cottages.

Executive Jobs Often Hinge on Wives

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A bright young executive recently signed a five-year contract, at a large salary, to become vice president in charge of sales for an old and well established firm located in a small Midwestern community.

The young executive, however, did not give up his New York apartment nor did he move his attractive wife and two children to a new home close to his job.

Instead, he chose to commute back to New York for weekends with his family, and set up bachelor quarters near his office in which he lived the other five days of the week.

"This proved he was really bright," remarked the head of the executive recruitment firm which had placed him with the company.

"He liked the job, he liked the money, but he had met the top officials of the firm and their wives — and he realized that the presence of his own wife in the community would mean nothing but trouble for him."

* * *

MRS. EXECUTIVE, however, neither ate with her knife nor turned abusive on her third martini. She was, in fact, attractive, extremely chic, well-read, a charming hostess and considered very witty.

"The social life of the company officials and their wives was as carefully organized as that of an Army post," continued the placement man.

"The president and his top executives were all self-made men who had married young. Their wives were older, comfortable — and not the least bit sophisticated and smart. They would have loathed — and been frightened by — our man's wife. They wouldn't have tried to compete with her, but they could have and would have made things so difficult with their husbands that her husband wouldn't have lasted a year in the job.

His arrangement is working out beautifully. During the week he keeps up his social end — and everybody loves having an extra man for dinners. He is doing a splendid job and he apparently is reconciled to weekly plane trips."

The bright young executive actually pulled a reverse switch on what is gradually becoming standard operating procedure in employment offices. In many, if not most, of the higher echelons of hiring, the little woman is getting almost as close a scrutiny as her husband before a firm job offer comes through.

* * *

BECAUSE more and more businesses think of themselves in family terms, it is often no longer enough that John Jones, candidate for sales manager, is ideally equipped for the job.

A yardstick — usually quietly but sometimes obviously — is more and more frequently being used to measure Mrs. Jones as the prospective sales manager's wife. Is she a good hostess?

How is her English? Are her clothes in good taste? What kind of a home does she run? Is she a nag, a hypochondriac? Is she catty, a gossip, a potential trouble-maker?

In the nation's business community, where today's trend is toward bigger and bigger organizations, employers often are enlisting the help of pshchologists and psychological tests to cue them on a man's abilities and potentials.

No longer is it enough for a position-seeker to turn up for an interview with an employer dressed in his best blue serve suit and white shirt.

Today he is likely to sit down to a long test which is designed to reveal whether he is happy, adjusted, stable and would fit into a company pattern.

And because a man's private life and his home life are increasingly considered to be part of his business life, his wife is often required to submit to some probings, too.

THE MOVE toward the psychological testing of prospective employees has in recent years come under sporadic fire from critics who hold that such tests in many cases constitute an invasion of privacy, that the tests themselves were originally developed for clinical use and contain many questions more nosy than useful and that results often prove more about the adjustment of the person who grades the test than about the subject.

When it was learned that one company was enlarging its psychological scope to include wives, more thunder came from the opponents of testing techniques.

"You could destroy a marriage with a test like that," remarked the head of one big firm of management consultants.

"If a man thought he was in line for a good job and never heard anything more about it after his wife took a test, both the man and his wife might well believed that he lost his big chance because of her. And if she were shy, or insecure, or even normally sensitive, this could have dreadful results in a marriage."

* * *

"YOU DON'T need psychological tests to learn about people," said another man who specializes in executive man-hunts for large corporations. "If you know what to look for, you can find out just about anything you want to know about a man and his wife by spending a few hours with them— including some at their home."

U.S. Bank Robbery Toll Shows Climb in 1958

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bank robberies rose sharply this year as part of an over-all increase in the crime rate.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported that federal bank robbery, burglary and larceny violations rose more than 30 per cent over the 491 committed in 1957. His report to Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers noted also a 5 per cent increase in embezzlements and similar offenses by banking personnel.

It Ain't Done

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — U. S. Judge Carl A. Hatch revoked the probation of a 38-year-old Albuquerque man and ordered him to serve a three-year sentence which had been suspended.

The sentence was imposed because Neulon A. Brown reported to his probation officer in an intoxicated condition.

Bach, Boogie and Braille

By DON MOORE
Central Press Assn.

ATHENS, Ohio — This is one disc jockey who really has music at his fingertips.

Donald R. Hylkema, 19-year-old sophomore at Ohio University, is blind. Yet each day he handles a half-hour "light dinner" show during the early evening and once a week has a three-hour shift as station announcer.

Don always has been interested in radio, so it was only natural that during his freshman year he auditioned for WOUB, the university's 100-watt educational radio station.

After his audition and discussion among the radio staff personnel about his handicap, he was given, a daily, two-hour, popular music show.

An ardent collector of records, Don had no difficulty in selecting the music, but putting it on the air required extremely close cooperation with the engineer in the "master control" room.

THE ENGINEER would play the records and when they were about to end, he would knock on the studio window to warn him. Don could then fill in with the name of the next selection.

Advancing to the job of "station announcer" this year, he has taken on the added responsibility of making those 30 -second spot announcements.

Between the various shows, 20 seconds is allowed for an announcement and 10 seconds for station identification.

To get his messages on and off the air in the allotted time, Don depends on his sense of hearing and the engineer.

When the music fades out, he knows he has 30 seconds to "read" his announcements.

* * *

PREPARATION for the spot announcements requires more work than for his disc jockey shows of last year. He picks up the next day's announcements, takes them home and has his roommate read them to him while he punches out the words in Braille.

Since there are about 63 different symbols, including punctuation marks, that can be made with a Braille slate, it takes him about 45 minutes to prepare the "spots."

When he is in the announcer's booth, Don listens for the preceding program's theme to fade out. Then he knows he is on the air.

He glides his left hand across the Braille sheet, using his right hand as a line guide and reads the message into the mike.

Don doesn't experience any more difficulty in going to class than he does in his radio work. He can take notes in Braille just about as fast as anyone else can write in long hand.

* * *

WHEN IT COMES to exams, a professor or a graduate assistant reads the questions to him during or after class.

All of his written work is done on a typewriter, but the reading assignments are read to him by a friend.

Santa Gets Kisses From Mrs. and Misses

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

Mommy's kissing Santa Claus more than ever this year.

And for Lucky S. Squire, a professional Santa Claus with a foot-long growth of real beard, that constitutes an occupational hazard.

"When I go to a party," he confesses, "all the women like to see if it tickles when Mommy kisses Santa Claus. Lipstock smears are tough to get out of my beard, but I always oblige them. Santa has to be jolly and loveable, and besides I never got so many kisses when I was a young fellow without a beard."

FULL BEARD won Lucky Squire a seasonal job as Santa and a new life all year long.

In the Santa Claus season which lasts roughly from Thanksgiving to Christmas Day, Squire attends an average of three parties a night, in addition to playing Santa Claus at Gimbel's department store in New York city, posing for magazine advertising, visiting hospitals, appearing on television and participating in publicity stunts.

• • •

"NEXT week I'm going up to New Haven to accompany a trainload of women shoppers down to New York" he said, flipping through a crowded appointment calendar. "The ladies will be a little reserved at first, but by the time we pull through Stamford they'll be singing 'Jingle Bells' and maybe dancing in the aisles. The trick is to find a live group, get them going and all the rest will join in.

"It's the same way at parties. All the girls want to dance with Santa Claus, they're cutting in all the time. With my 222 pounds and the fur trimmed costume, I prefer a simple little waltz, but I usually end up doing the cha-cha and the mambo. Santa Claus has got to keep up with the times. It's expected of him."

On the night before Christmas, Santa Squire will drop in on a couple of posh Park Avenue parties, knocking on the door with a bottle of champagne, and then hit the exclusive Harwyn Club around midnight.

For this, he gets from $25 to $50 an hour, and still can't get over it.

"I'm always amazed that I get paid for going to parties, because nobody enjoys them more than I do. No I limit myself to one drink a party. The pace would be too rough otherwise, and I have my dignity to think of, or Santa's dignity."

• • •

CHRISTMAS Day, he makes his annual trek through the Bowery, distributing turkey drum sticks and meat balls to the human derelicts in the flop houses and rescue missions.

In his role as Santa Claus, Squire has dropped into Pittsburgh twice by helicopter, appeared in a technicolor movie, been guest of honor at numerous Thanksgiving parades, plugged everything from chocolates to precious jewels in magazine ads, received the keys to dozens of cities, been rescued by police from a teen-age mob bent on determining if his beard were real.

Christmas Turkeys Cheaper This Year

WEEKLY FOOD REVIEW
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You can't go out in the woods and shoot a free turkey like the early settlers did, but you should be able to get a gobbler for Christmas dinner a little cheaper than last year.

The nation's supermarkets and neighborhood grocery stores are pushing turkeys this week, with the usual gradations in price according to size.

Four pence, incidentally, was the usual price charged by the Indians in Georgia for a whole turkey to colonists who would rather buy than shoot.

With the holiday coming on Thursday, most stores offer other items for next weekend. These include smoked ham, rib roast of beef, pork loin and leg of lamb.

As for the rest of the Christmas dinner fixin's, the picture is generally bright. Fresh cranberries and canned cranberry sauce both are in good supply. Walnuts and pecans are plentiful. Supermarket bagged coffee prices start at 59 cents a pound vs. 73 cents a pound a year ago.

If you want something new for the big meal, look for wild rice. Growing conditions for this delicacy were ideal and prices are down.

Potatoes head a fair-sized list of vegetables on the best buy list, others are topped carrots from Western fields, spinach and cooking greens such as collard and kale. Good buys also are on tap in endive, escarole, radishes, cabbage, lettuce, onions, sweet potatoes, peppers, eggplant and broccoli.

Celery is moderately priced, as are cauliflower, squash and snap beans. Tomatoes are a fairly good buy.

Musk oxen have an outer coat of long, coarse, dark brown to black hair, and a warm undercoating of wool that is shed every year.

New Trial OKd By U. S. Judge

$500,000 Damage Suit Defense Lawyer Chided

CLEVELAND (AP) — A new trial in a $500,000 damage action has been granted by U.S. District Judge James C. Connell.

The judge also accused Crawford Morris, attorney for the Federal Machine & Welder Co., of Warren, Ohio, of improper conduct before a jury which denied the plaintiff a compensating verdict.

Henry J. De Gonia of Granite City, Ill., sued the Warren firm for a half million dollars for the loss of both hands in an accident involving a stamping machine the company manufactured.

De Gonia, father of seven children, was employed by the A. O. Smith Co. of Granite City. The Warren company charged the Smith firm was equally responsible for the accident because of failure to provide proper maintenance of the stamping machine. The court dismissed the Smith firm as a defendant, ruling that maintenance of the machine had nothing to do with the accident.

Judge Connell said he was granting a new trial because of improper conduct of the jury and defense counsel.

A juror allegedly brought into the jury room during deliberations a homemade device intended to demonstrate that the manufacturer of the stamping machine was not responsible for the accident costing De Gonia his hands.

"The jury should have decided the case on what happened in the courtroom," Judge Connell said.

"The record unfortunately does not show defense counsel's constant histrionics and play acting," he added.

Judge Connell said Morris stood at the end of the jury box with papers in his hand, "but counsel and litigants could not see the expressions on his face which showed surprise, amazement, chagrin, or consternation in full view of the jury."

Morris took exception to the judge's remarks.

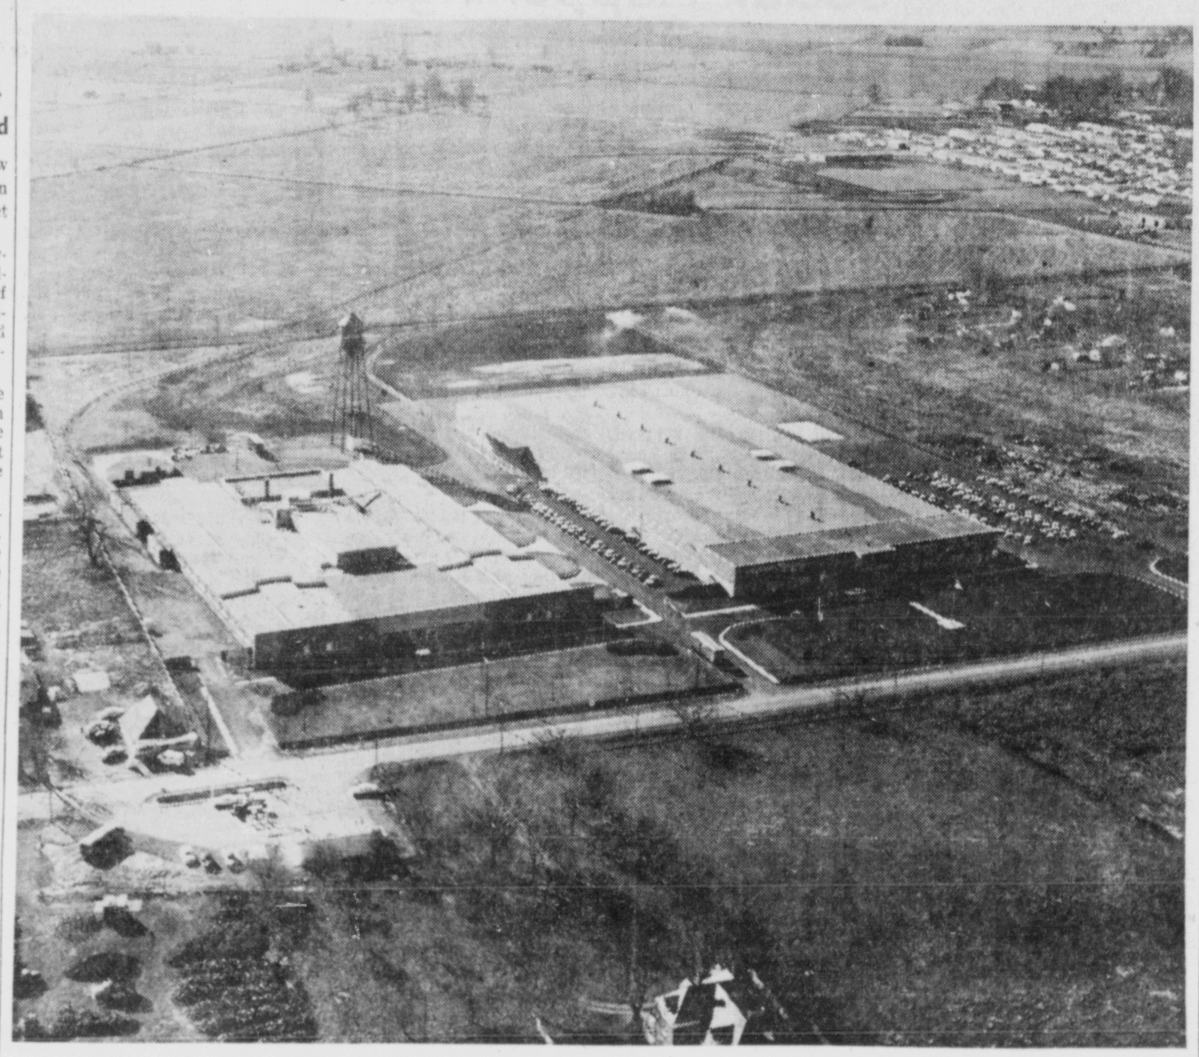
It's This Kind of Christmas Gift That Counts



It didn't come in Santa's pack and it didn't come wrapped in gay paper and tied with a big red bow, but the National Cash Register Co. has given Washington C. H. and the surrounding community a Christmas gift that will last and last and bring happiness through the years.

For, what could be a nicer Christmas gift than a steady job and a weekly pay check?

The plant just outside the city on S. Fayette St. was opened 10 years ago. Since then it has been more than double in size with a new building (at right above) and the number of employes has been increased to 240 at the present time.

Of these, 90 joined the force this year, most of them since production was started in the new building.

Similar Christmas gifts or jobs and pay checks have been given to 242 men and women by the Armco Drainage and Metal Products Co. from its big plant next door (just out of the picture to the left above).

What all this has meant to more than 500 families and the entire community is shown in the upper right corner of the picture, a small section of the recently developed Belle Aire residential area and the new Belle Aire School.

An additional Belle Aire residential subdivision (just above the portion shown) has been platted and accepted by Council.

Santa Gets Kisses From Mrs. and Misses

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

Mommy's kissing Santa Claus more than ever this year.

And for Lucky S. Squire, a professional Santa Claus with a foot-long growth of real beard, that constitutes an occupational hazard.

"When I go to a party," he confesses, "all the women like to see if it tickles when Mommy kisses Santa Claus. Lipstock smears are tough to get out of my beard, but I always oblige them. Santa has to be jolly and loveable, and besides I never got so many kisses when I was a young fellow without a beard."

In the Santa Claus season which lasts roughly from Thanksgiving to Christmas Day, Squire attends an average of three parties a night, in addition to playing Santa Claus at Gimbel's department store in New York city, posing for magazine advertising, visiting hospitals, appearing on television and participating in publicity stunts.

* * *

"NEXT week I'm going up to New Haven to accompany a trainload of women shoppers down to New York" he said, flipping through a crowded appointment calendar. "The ladies will be a little reserved at first, but by the time we pull through Stamford they'll be singing 'Jingle Bells' and maybe dancing in the aisles. The trick is to find a live group, get them going and all the rest will join in.

"It's the same way at parties. All the girls want to dance with Santa Claus, they're cutting in all the time. With my 222 pounds and the fur trimmed costume, I prefer a simple little waltz, but I usually end up doing the cha-cha and the mambo. Santa Claus has got to keep up with the times. It's expected of him."

On the night before Christmas, Santa Squire will drop in on a couple of posh Park Avenue parties, knocking on the door with a bottle of champagne, and then hit the exclusive Harwyn Club around midnight.

For this, he gets from $25 to $50 an hour, and still can't get over it.

"I'm always amazed that I get paid for going to parties, because nobody enjoys them more than I do. No I limit myself to one drink a party. The pace would be too rough otherwise, and I have my dignity to think of, or Santa's dignity."

* * *

CHRISTMAS Day, he makes his annual trek through the Bowery, distributing turkey drum sticks and meat balls to the human derelicts in the flop houses and rescue missions.

For this he gets nothing but the inward satisfaction that only a Santa Claus can appreciate. "I give these poor devils that same gloriously happy greeting that I give to my elite customers on Park Ave. They always get a big kick out of joining me in singing."

Jackson Glove Co. To Make New Insulated Undergarment

Progress will make a new mark on the oldest glove-making factory in the United States.

The Jackson Glove Co., 220 W. Temple St., is adding insulated underwear to its lineof products.

"The mitten (once the company's mainstay) lost out with the coming of the automobile," says Frank Jackson, president and treasurer of the firm which in recent years has concentrated on the manufacture of work gloves.

Sales have dropped steadily since the old horse and buggy trudged along the roads and made travel without mittens nearly impossible, while the work glove business is highly competitive.

* * *

SO THE COMPANY is preparing to manufacture an insulated nylon suit to be used as an undergarment by anybody who is outside a lot in the winter, Jackson said.

The suit is constructed of two layers of nylon covering with a very thin sheet of a new insulating foam rubber between them, Jackson said.

It weighs about 10 ounces and is as warm as fiber material about five times as thick, the company president said.

Company officials decided on the move a few months ago and have been planning the change since, he said.

Several types of cloth and insulation were tried until officials found the one they think will do the best job and still sell at a nominal price.

* * *

MITTENS AND GLOVES have been manufactured at the site on Temple St. since 1885 when the Inskeep Mfg. Co. started the first production of them in the United States.

Jackson started working for the company 23 years later, when he graduated from Western Reserve University in 1908. At that time the plant here was part of a chain of factories with offices in Columbus, Springfield and Marion.

In 1932 the Jackson Glove Co. bought the plant here and the name was changed.

In January the company will see another big change as the production of the suits begins a new phase of life for the business which at one time employed about 160 Washington C. H. residents.

* * *

THE FACTORY here was established by J. C. Dunn and R. C. Peddicord after they had seen mittens made out of bed ticking by a Mrs. Clauson, of Jeffersonville.

Mrs. Clauson had used an old feathertick cover to make mittens for members of the family, and the two men developed the idea and soon had a small plant here producing "ticking" mittens. Later this was extended to fabric gloves, some of which were part leather, and for years the company had the field to itself.

Then other firms were established and mittens and gloves were made from fabric of various kinds and were produced in huge quantities.

SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW--Gloves probably will always hold fond memories for Frank Jackson who has been manufacturing them for 50 years. But the suit he is modeling opens up a whole new future for the company which will begin production of the new insulated garment in January.

Firemen Wash Away Spilled Gasoline Load

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Firemen worked through the night to dissipate up to 30,000 gallons of high octane gasoline which splashed out over a north side Columbus intersection — and into the still-frozen Olentangy River nearby—after a double tank truck and car collided Monday. Both drivers were slightly injured. The tanker was headed for Circleville.

The written type of examination is believed to have been unknown in schools and colleges until about 1702. It was then that this type of examination was introduced at Trinity college, Cambridge, England.

Dear Abby

You're Outnumbered, Mom!

DEAR ABBY: I think something should be done about the cowboy program on television with 100 lynchings a day and 50 shootings in five minutes. Is this the way to entertain children? The monster pictures showing the earth being destroyed and people dying by the millions should also be outlawed. Life has become very complicated for a mother these days, Abby. We try to teach our children to strive toward a peaceful world full of love and respect for our fellow man but the competition from TV shows is stronger than we are. Isn't there something we can do about it?

OMEGA

DEAR OMEGA: If enough people protest, some action could result, but all one mother can do is turn off her own television set.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are separated and we are getting a divorce. I am expecting a baby in about two months. My husband wants me to give my engagement and wedding rings back to him. I think that as long as I am going to have a baby I should be allowed to keep the rings so people will know that I have been married and the baby is legitimate. He said he doesn't want to have to buy another set in case he got married again. Also I would like to know how I am supposed to announce the birth of the baby as we are almost divorced. LIBBY

DEAR LIBBY: Give him the engagement ring and tell him that you'd like to keep the wedding band for the reason you mentioned. Under the circumstances, I don't recommend any formal birth announcement.

DEAR ABBY: There is a man in town who is a mighty fine catch. He's never been married and brags that he's never going to be. He says that he's had a whirl with every good-looking woman in town—before they were married, and a few after. He says they tell him he makes their husbands look like bums. You can't point at a good-looking girl but what he hasn't been out with her. I mean from 16 to 60. Even the good-lookers with gray hair are included. What do you make of him?

EDITH

DEAR EDITH: Either he's a heck of a man or he's a heck of a liar!

DEAR ABBY: Last evening I had my girlfriend over for dinner and my mother had the nerve to tell her to take her elbows off the table! My mother can be very sweet when she wants to be, but when she's in a bad mood she takes it out on me and my friends. How can I get my mother to be nicer to my friends? I was so embarrassed. EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: When your mother is in a good mood, ask her please not to correct your friends. But if she does, explain later to your friend about your mother's "moods." If she has a mother of her own, I'm sure she'll understand.

CONFIDENTIAL TO EUGENE: Happiness is not found in doing what one likes—but in liking what one does.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Some 2,800 classified workers for the city of Toledo will get a four per cent pay raise Jan. 1, with a minimum of $200 for the year of 1959, city council voted Monday. About half of the classified workers earn less than $5,000 a year and will receive the $200 minimum raise.

Jackson Glove Co. To Make New Insulated Undergarment

Progress will make a new mark on the oldest glove-making factory in the United States.

The Jackson Glove Co., 220 W. Temple St., is adding insulated underwear to its lineof products.

"The mitten (once the company's mainstay) lost out with the coming of the automobile," says Frank Jackson, president and treasurer of the firm which in recent years has concentrated on the manufacture of work gloves.

Sales have dropped steadily since the old horse and buggy trudged along the roads and made travel without mittens nearly impossible, while the work glove business is highly competitive.

* * *

SO THE COMPANY is preparing to manufacture an insulated nylon suit to be used as an undergarment by anybody who is outside a lot in the winter, Jackson said.

The suit is constructed of two layers of nylon covering with a very thin sheet of a new insulating foam rubber between them, Jackson said.

It weighs about 10 ounces and is as warm as fiber material about five times as thick, the company president said.

Company officials decided on the move a few months ago and have been planning the change since, he said.

Several types of cloth and insulation were tried until officials found the one they think will do the best job and still sell at a nominal price.

* * *

MITTENS AND GLOVES have been manufactured at the site on Temple St. since 1885 when the Inskeep Mfg. Co. started the first production of them in the United States.

Jackson started working for the company 23 years later, when he graduated from Western Reserve University in 1908. At that time the plant here was part of a chain of factories with offices in Columbus, Springfield and Marion.

In 1932 the Jackson Glove Co. bought the plant here and the name was changed.

In January the company will see another big change as the production of the suits begins a new phase of life for the business which at one time employed about 160 Washington C. H. residents.

* * *

THE FACTORY here was established by J. C. Dunn and R. C. Peddicord after they had seen mittens made out of bed ticking by a Mrs. Clauson, of Jeffersonville.

Mrs. Clauson had used an old feathertick cover to make mittens for members of the family, and the two men developed the idea and soon had a small plant here producing "ticking" mittens. Later this was extended to fabric gloves, some of which were part leather, and for years the company had the field to itself.

Then other firms were established and mittens and gloves were made from fabric of various kinds and were produced in huge quantities.

SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW--Gloves probably will always hold fond memories for Frank Jackson who has been manufacturing them for 50 years. But the suit he is modeling opens up a whole new future for the company which will begin production of the new insulated garment in January.

Firemen Wash Away Spilled Gasoline Load

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Firemen worked through the night to dissipate up to 30,000 gallons of high octane gasoline which splashed out over a north side Columbus intersection — and into the still-frozen Olentangy River nearby—after a double tank truck and car collided Monday. Both drivers were slightly injured. The tanker was headed for Circleville.

The written type of examination is believed to have been unknown in schools and colleges until about 1702. It was then that this type of examination was introduced at Trinity college, Cambridge, England.

Eggnog Is Handy Holiday Fare

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Food Editor

No need to plan weeks ahead for New Year's Day hospitality. Call your friends, invite them to stop by. Whip up a smooth and frothy eggnog— unc— tuous with cream, milk, eggs, and sugar, flavor i n g to suit anyone's fancy. Slice that holiday fruitcake thin, arrange it artfully. Everything's ready.

Eggnog's sweet beneficense is in our best tradition — even if 75 years elapsed between s i p s This country's first use of t h e word eggnog is placed arou n d 1775; according to culinary researchers, howe v e r, it wasn't until 1850 that a recipe for eggnog (under that name) appeared in an American cook book.

But don't worry about t h o s e early Americans. They were busy quaffing eggnog's close relative— syllabub. We are reminded of this by a fine important event.

The end of 1958 saw the re-issue of the first cook book of American authors h i p to be published in the United States: Amelia Simmons' "American Cookery."

A delightful facsimile of one of the two copies extant of the first edition, with a knowledgeable preface by Mary Tolford Smith, this book is something to cherish, to study with pride and delight.

* * *

THE enterprising author, who in 1796 arranged for the publication of her book — adding the phrase An American Orphan under h e r name — did not neglect syllabub. The m a n y pirated editi o n s of Amelia Simmons' book probab l y gave that beverage its first fame.

Who could forget a recipe that reads, "Sweeten a quart of cyder with double refined sugar, grate nutmeg into it, then milk your cow into your liquor?"

* * *

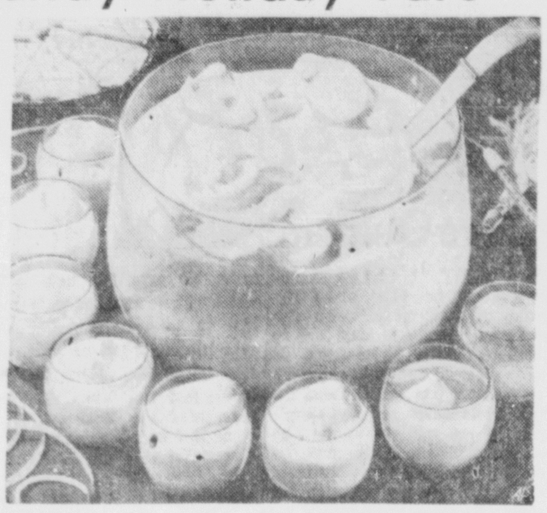
SWEET EGGNOG 1958

Beat 3 egg y o l k s until thick; gradually beat in ½ cup s u g a r and ⅛ teaspoon s a l t, then 3 cups milk and 1 cup heavy cream. Cook and stir constantly over hot (n o t boiling) water until mixture coats a silver spoon; c o o l. Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla; chill. At serving time, b e a t 3 egg whites u n t i l foamy; gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar; fold into chilled custard mixture leaving some of beaten whites in puffs. Grate nutmeg over the top. Makes 12 servings. Recipe may be doubled if an extra large double boiler is available or may be improvised.

NOTE: To add spirit if you like (and we do), stir in 1 cup cognac before chilling.



SYLLABUB'S RELATIVE: — The eggnog has been around a long time—since 1775 according to some sources but it wasn't until 1850 that the word itself appeared in any recipes. Early Americans drank a close equivalent of the eggnog—syllabub and its recipe called for milking the cow into the liquor.

Ag Aide Tells Qualifications To Become Career Farmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young people considering farming as a career need two principal qualifications: A real love for the business and a fair amount of money.

That, in any case, is the advice of Clarence L. Miller, 46-year-old Kentuckian recently named an assistant secretary of agriculture.

Farming, Miller says, is becoming an increasingly expensive business.

"Any young man who has to start out without some sort of stake," he said, "is going to find it a pretty hard row."

Moreover, he believes that farms—to be efficient—are going to have to get bigger and bigger.

"You take my farm in Shelby County, Ky.," Miller told a reporter.

"I have 120 acres, not far from Louisville. I have 25 beef cows and 70 sheep. I grow three acres of tobacco.

"Now I've always considered that a family-sized farm and an efficient one. But since 1950, I'm not so sure.

"If the acreage allotments (the space allowed for crops) have to be curtailed more, I'm going to have to enlarge my plant if I'm going to continue to have an efficient farm.

"That means more machinery, and machinery is expensive. Labor is difficult to hire."

But having said that, Miller feels sure there will always be enough young Americans enthusiastic enough about farming to go into it and make a success.

"There just won't be as many going into it," he says. "After all, a lot of people don't like the rigors of farm life—being out there in the cold, snow, rain and mud.

"A lot of them would rather work on an assembly line in the city—and can make more money doing so."

Since coming to Washington in 1954, Miller has been director of the commodity stabilization service's tobacco division, and associate administrator of the CSS.

In his new job, he will be paid $20,000.

People . . . Places . . . and Things

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

If you do not realize why the first Christmas in this community was so different from the present Yuletide, this little story may enlighten you.

It has been more than 150 years since the first Christmas was celebrated in wilds of Fayette County.

The great event was observed very simply— with little manifestation of the Christmas spirit as we know it today. Neighbors were very few.

The first Fayette County Christmas was observed in the most primitive log cabins which had been built of poles and the cracks filled with clay mortar to make them liveable.

Nearly everything in these crude homes, with their puncheon or earthen floors, was made by the occupants themselves— from the bunks used for beds, to the tables, benches, and even the wooden plates, spoons, forks and other utensils used in serving the meals chiefly of corn bread, potatoes, and wild turkey or venison.

It is possible that buffalo meat was served at some of those first Christmas dinners.

Some of these early homes contained not a single book, and a few others prized a small Bible. Few of the scattered pioneers could read, and they hardly ever saw a newspaper. If they did it was usually from the east and several months old.

There probably were no Christmas trees, and the first Christmas gifts were strictly homemade— wooden dolls whittled out of wood by the parents, and wooden guns which were much prized by the small boys.

The good wife prepared some favorite food for the "head of the house" who in return made some wooden utensil needed by his spouse.

Stores in the community did not come until years after first settlers had built their cabins and started cutting the timber and burning it to clear ground for crops.

Most of the first log cabins were single room affairs, with possibly an attic. They might well be termed "barny" for the one open fireplace served for heat and cooking, and more than one family had only an iron skillet or an iron pot in which to do all of the cooking.

You have said it! The first Christmas in this area was certainly nothing like those of today.

BETTER FORECASTING

During the last war, when much depended upon weather forecasts to guide successful aerial operations, the government went all out to bring about more accurate predictions. As a result, in a great majority of instances, today's forecasts for 24 hours and more work out surprisingly well.

Not only are these forecasts of rain, snow, or fair weather very reliable, but the accuracy of the temperatures predicted are little short of amazing.

Unless there is a sudden shift in wind and pressure trends that were unpredictable, the daily announcement as to kind of weather we may expect at a given time are usually correct.

It is rare that some pronounced change in weather conditions get by the alert scientists who study climatic conditions and come up with the right answer more than nine times out of ten.

Prior to the war it was a common thing for the "weather man" to come up with information which was not borne out by actual weather conditions at the time predicted.

Accurate forecasting means a great deal to the public generally, and if the forecast says cold wave, rain, or heavy snow, the public prepares for it accordingly. This guide as to coming weather conditions sometimes means a great deal financially to business concerns and people in general.

I tip my hat to the good work of the U. S. Weather Bureau in Ohio over a period of many years.

OLD CLAY PIPES

One by one the old customs and things have passed out of the picture as they will continue to do year after year for all time.

One of the old things, very small, but formerly very important, that has gone forever, is the old penny clay pipe which was smoked by some of the old women and men up to 50 years ago.

Nearly every shop, including the village and cross roadstores, where general merchandise and groceries were sold, had a supply of the old one-cent clay pipes.

The buyer obtained a home - grown stem from the "pipe stem" vines, which I believe belong to the honeysuckle family. These were grown almost exclusively for the hollow vines which made ideal pipe stems.

As a boy I saw many men and a few of their women smoking homegrown tobacco in the little clay pipes.

It was somewhat unusual for women to smoke in those days, and when I saw one of the elderly matrons puffing contentedly at her pipe, I was a little shocked. Yet I accepted it as a matter of course

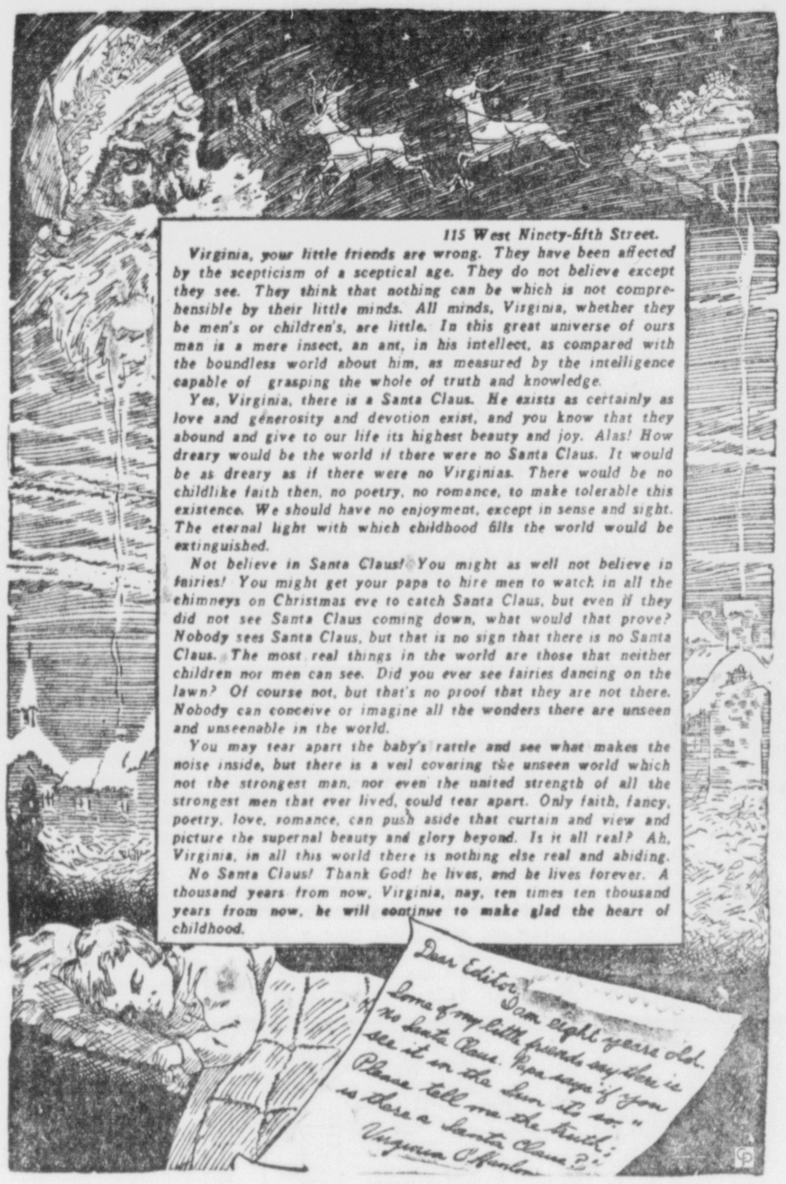
Many of these women pipe smokers originally came from the hill areas, where a patch of tobacco was just as important as vegetables grown in the garden. Only a year or two ago I saw a very old women sitting on the front porch of her little hill home, puffing away at a pipe which looked more like a corncob pipe than one of the old time clays.

But looking around today at the tremendous numbers who have the smoking habit one readily forgets the old pioneer women smokers who preferred a clay pipe as one of their greatest sources of enjoyment and relaxation.

JETTS, an 80-pound Great Dane, is all dressed up and ready to be propelled into a nice new home as she waits and hopes for adoption at the Dallas, Tex., SPCA animal shelter.

There Is a Santa Claus

The Record-Herald today reprints that wonderful editorial, "There Is a Santa Claus," written by Francis P. Church, of the New York Sun editorial staff, back in 1897, for it believes that no better Christmas editorial will ever be written. A little New York girl, Virginia O'Hanlon, (now Mrs. Edward M. Douglas, of New York City), had written to the Sun, then edited by one of the greatest newspapermen who ever wielded a pen, Charles A. Dana pointing out that her friends had told her there is no Santa Claus. Church's answering editorial has ever since been reprinted year after year by editors all over the United States, and even in many foreign countries, because it so truly presents the Christmas spirit.



115 West Ninety-fifth Street.

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the scepticism of a sceptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to our life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance, to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseenable in the world.

You may tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God! he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Dear Editor,
I am eight years old.
Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says "If you see it in the Sun it is so"
Please tell me the truth; is there a Santa Claus?

Auto Makers Call '58 'Worst Year'

By DAVID J. WILKIE
A.P. Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP) — For all but one of the nation's auto makers 1958 was the worst year in recent automotive industry history

It was a year that saw a decline of more than 1¾ million car assemblies and a retail sales drop of nearly 1¼ million units from the preceding year's volume. The year brought losses in profit cuts for all makers except American Motors.

American Motors, riding high on a bulging demand for smaller, lower priced cars, built and sold nearly twice as many vehicles in 1958 as it did the preceding year.

When the 1958 production and sales are finally tabulated they probably will come to nearly 4¼ million domestic car assemblies and about 4,780,000 retail deliveries. The latter figure would include about 300,000 imported car sales.

For the year ahead sales are expected to number 5½ million U. S. cars plus up to 400,000 imported cars.

Outstanding events of 1958 included:

Expiration of union labor contracts and months-long negotiations leading to new agreements.

Top - heavy inventories that brought sharp production cutbacks and were further leveled off by work stoppages that followed the new labor agreements.

Sharp criticism of car styling that brought some hurried last minute changes for 1959.

Continuing rise in the demand for smaller, lower priced cars.

Ahead for 1959 undoubtedly is a better year for the car makers. Predictions of a sales volume in excess of 6½ million cars come from nonautomotive economists who sprinkle a liberal number of "ifs" in their appraisals. Major stipulation, of course, is the availability of expendable income. Another is the appeal of substantially altered styling.

The cars that were criticized as too gaudy in 1958 are making less lavish use of bright trim generally. But already there has been some criticism of cars too long and too wide among 1959 models.

More smaller, lower priced American-built cars undoubtedly are coming.

People . . . Places . . . and Things

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

If you do not realize why the first Christmas in this community was so different from the present Yuletide, this little story may enlighten you.

It has been more than 150 years since the first Christmas was celebrated in wilds of Fayette County.

The great event was observed very simply— with little manifestation of the Christmas spirit as we know it today. Neighbors were very few.

The first Fayette County Christmas was observed in the most primitive log cabins which had been built of poles and the cracks filled with clay mortar to make them liveable.

Nearly everything in these crude homes, with their puncheon or earthen floors, was made by the occupants themselves— from the bunks used for beds, to the tables, benches, and even the wooden plates, spoons, forks and other utensils used in serving the meals chiefly of corn bread, potatoes, and wild turkey or venison.

It is possible that buffalo meat was served at some of those first Christmas dinners.

Some of these early homes contained not a single book, and a few others prized a small Bible. Few of the scattered pioneers could read, and they hardly ever saw a newspaper. If they did it was usually from the east and several months old.

There probably were no Christmas trees, and the first Christmas gifts were strictly homemade— wooden dolls whittled out of wood by the parents, and wooden guns which were much prized by the small boys.

The good wife prepared some favorite food for the "head of the house" who in return made some wooden utensil needed by his spouse.

Stores in the community did not come until years after first settlers had built their cabins and started cutting the timber and burning it to clear ground for crops.

Most of the first log cabins were single room affairs, with possibly an attic. They might well be termed "barny" for the one open fireplace served for heat and cooking, and more than one family had only an iron skillet or an iron pot in which to do all of the cooking.

You have said it! The first Christmas in this area was certainly nothing like those of today.

BETTER FORECASTING

During the last war, when much depended upon weather forecasts to guide successful aerial operations, the government went all out to bring about more accurate predictions. As a result, in a great majority of instances, today's forecasts for 24 hours and more work out surprisingly well.

Not only are these forecasts of rain, snow, or fair weather very reliable, but the accuracy of the temperatures predicted are little short of amazing.

Unless there is a sudden shift in wind and pressure trends that were unpredictable, the daily announcement as to kind of weather we may expect at a given time are usually correct.

It is rare that some pronounced change in weather conditions get by the alert scientists who study climatic conditions and come up with the right answer more than nine times out of ten.

Prior to the war it was a common thing for the "weather man" to come up with information which was not borne out by actual weather conditions at the time predicted.

Accurate forecasting means a great deal to the public generally, and if the forecast says cold wave, rain, or heavy snow, the public prepares for it accordingly. This guide as to coming weather conditions sometimes means a great deal financially to business concerns and people in general.

I tip my hat to the good work of the U. S. Weather Bureau in Ohio over a period of many years.

OLD CLAY PIPES

One by one the old customs and things have passed out of the picture as they will continue to do year after year for all time.

One of the old things, very small, but formerly very important, that has gone forever, is the old penny clay pipe which was smoked by some of the old women and men up to 50 years ago.

Nearly every shop, including the village and cross roadstores, where general merchandise and groceries were sold, had a supply of the old one-cent clay pipes.

The buyer obtained a home - grown stem from the "pipe stem" vines, which I believe belong to the honeysuckle family. These were grown almost exclusively for the hollow vines which made ideal pipe stems.

As a boy I saw many men and a few of their women smoking homegrown tobacco in the little clay pipes.

It was somewhat unusual for women to smoke in those days, and when I saw one of the elderly matrons puffing contentedly at her pipe, I was a little shocked. Yet I accepted it as a matter of course

Many of these women pipe smokers originally came from the hill areas, where a patch of tobacco was just as important as vegetables grown in the garden. Only a year or two ago I saw a very old women sitting on the front porch of her little hill home, puffing away at a pipe which looked more like a corncob pipe than one of the old time clays.

But looking around today at the tremendous numbers who have the smoking habit one readily forgets the old pioneer women smokers who preferred a clay pipe as one of their greatest sources of enjoyment and relaxation.

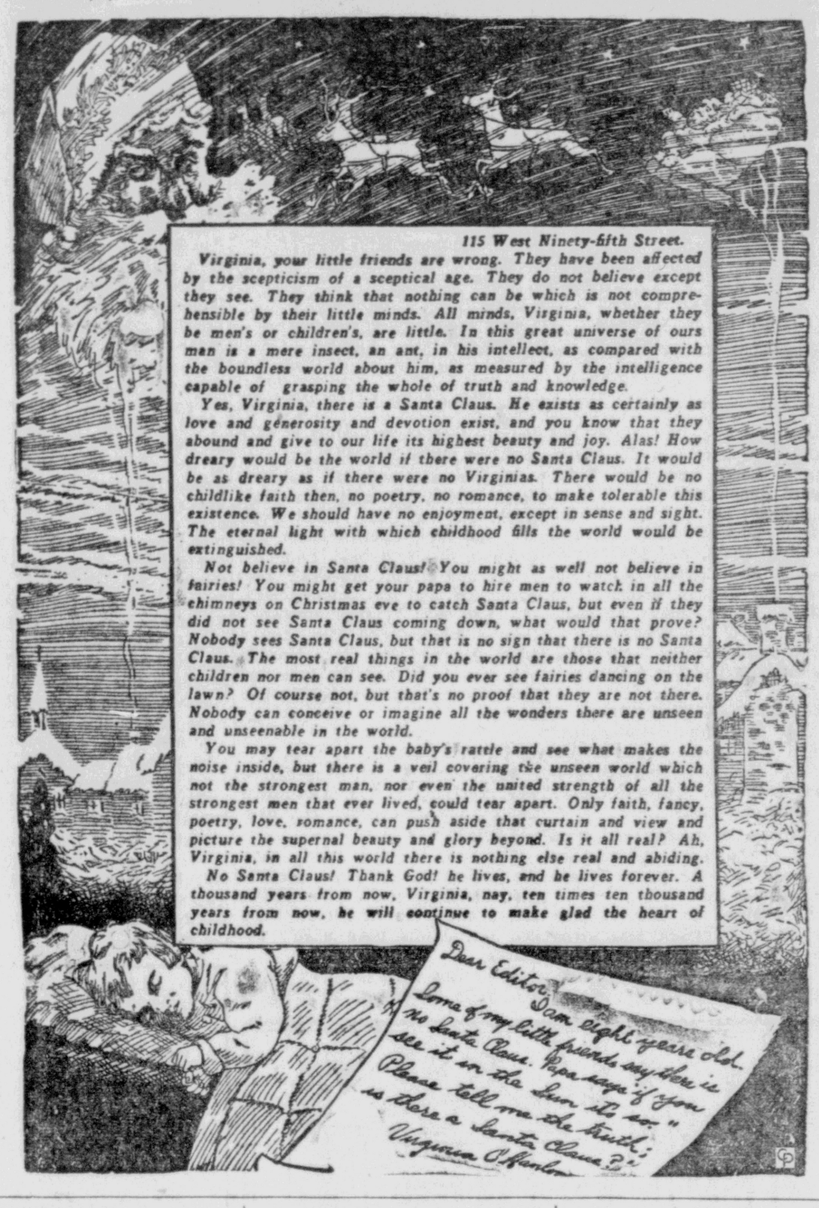
There Is a Santa Claus

The Record-Herald today reprints that wonderful editorial, "There Is a Santa Claus," written by Francis P. Church, of the New York Sun editorial staff, back in 1897, for it believes that no better Christmas editorial will ever be written. A little New York girl, Virginia O'Hanlon, (now Mrs. Edward M. Douglas, of New York City), had written to the Sun, then edited by one of the greatest newspapermen who ever wielded a pen, Charles A. Dana pointing out that her friends had told her there is no Santa Claus. Church's answering editorial has ever since been reprinted year after year by editors all over the United States, and even in many foreign countries, because it so truly presents the Christmas spirit.



115 West Ninety-fifth Street.

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the scepticism of a sceptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to our life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance, to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Kentucky '5' Moves To Top Of Cage Poll

Cincinnati Quinte? Slips to Second Spot As Cats Win Tourney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky's basketball coach Adolph Rupp had a Merry Christmas two days early today as the nation's sportswriters and broadcasters voted his Wildcats the top team in the weekly Associated Press poll.

The Baron, whose team is defending national collegiate champion, was still enjoying the results of a successful weekend when informed of the Wildcats' choice as top team.

"We're simply delighted," he said.

Kentucky won its own invitational tournament over the weekend, defeating Ohio State and West Virginia. The Wildcats also had a victory over Maryland last week. Results of games through Saturday determine the poll positions.

Cincinnati, first a week ago, dropped to second, receiving 61 first place votes compared to Kentucky's 71. The Wildcats totalled 1,443 points to Cincy's 1,415. Both are unbeaten, Kentucky with an 8-0 record, Cincinnati 5-0.

Unbeaten North Carolina (5-0) is third with 19 first place votes, and 1,076 points. The points are awarded on a 10 for first, 9 for second, etc., basis.

The Tarheels made the biggest jump, coming from 10th place, with three triumphs in four days including the Blue Grass invitational title.

Kansas State dropped a notch to fourth place, losing to Brigham Young, but bouncing back to drop North Carolina State and St. Joseph's (Pa.) from the unbeaten ranks.

Despite its loss to Kentucky in Kentucky Invitational, West Virginia jumped from seventh to fifth place. North Carolina State holds sixth, and Mississippi State climbed a place to seventh, with its 7-0 record.

Auburn and Michigan State, with five and four victories respectively, were the two newcomers to the poll. The Tigers jumped from 13th to eighth place. Michigan State climbed from 11th to ninth.

Xavier of Ohio is 10th, a one position drop.

The top ten teams with won-lost records through Saturday, Dec. 20 in parentheses;

1. Kentucky	(8-0)	1,443
2. Cincinnati	(5-0)	1,415
3. North Carolina	(5-0)	1,076
4. Kansas State	(6-1)	831
5. West Virginia	(7-2)	597
6. North Carolina St.	(6-1)	581
7. Mississippi State	(7-0)	563
8. Auburn	(5-0)	451
9. Michigan State	(4-0)	403
10. Xavier	(5-0)	376

Second ten: Tennessee 235; Northwestern 209; Bradley 181; California 52; Villanova 44; St. Louis 41; Marquette 39; Memphis State 37; Washington 33; Dayton 34.

Xavier Loses Tilt; Bucks Finally Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Xavier stumbled and Ohio State took wings during a pre-holiday night which saw only three Ohio college basketball teams in action.

Xavier, winner of five straight, was soundly beaten by Marquette at Milwaukee Monday night, 86-71. It was the eighth victory for Marquette, which has lost only to Nebraska.

But it was another story in Columbus, where four times-beaten Ohio State overwhelmed Utah 92-69, running up a 53-29 halftime lead.

In the only other game involving an Ohio college team, Ohio Wesleyan of Delaware was smothered by St. Bonaventure Bonnies 91-43 at Olean, N. Y.

Marquette led Xavier all the way after taking a 4-2 lead, widening it to as much as 14 points three times in the first half. Xavier battled back in the last half, coming within five points, but Marquette raced away again.

Mike Moran, who scored 26, and Walt Mangham, who chipped in 18, gave Marquette first rate rebounding and a fast break offense did the rest. Hank Stein had 23 for Xavier.

Ohio State's 43 per cent shooting was the undoing of visiting Utah. Dick Furry netted 22; Larry Huston 20. Dick Ruffell was best for Utah with 12.

An even better percentage was posted by St. Bonaventure. The Bonnies hit 58 per cent and stole the ball at least a dozen times. Don Newhook of the Bonnies and Dick Faul of Ohio Wesleyan shared honors with 20 apiece.

Brown Says '59 To Bring Change

CLEVELAND (AP) — Coach Paul Brown says there will be some changes in the Cleveland Browns lineup for 1959, but Milt Plum and Jim Ninowski will remain as quarterbacks.

WHS Stadium Improvement Financing Discussed by Fans

Plans for financing some contemplated major improvements and enlargement of the Gardner Park football stadium were discussed in considerable detail at a meeting of Lion fans, Stanley Dray, a member of the school board, and Head Coach Fred Domenico at a luncheon meeting Monday in the Terrace Lounge.

Since the whole project is subject to the approval of the school board, no definite action was taken. The purpose was to get together facts and figures, along with some ideas, to be laid before the board later.

Another meeting was slated for next Monday at the same time and place to condense the material gathered to date by the group so it can be taken up with the board, possible at its Monday night meeting.

The financing plan that seemed to meet with most favor hinged on a bank loan of $25,000 underwritten by at least 50 responsible individuals. It was made plain during the discussions that receipts from the football games would be expected to pay off the loan.

* * *

THE IMPROVEMENTS the group feels are needed include more and better lighting and additional seating accommodations.

The present lights, considered both insufficient and obsolete, could be rejuvenated and augmented with additional lights engineers, who have gone over them, reported to the group through Max Lawrence.

They estimated, Lawrence said, that, by using the present lights, an improved lighting system could be installed for around $7,000. Cost of a complete new system was estimated at from $25,000 to $30,000.

Coach Domenico reported that he had called the United States Seating Co. in New York and learned that the two - year - old steel grandstand at a football field in Greensboro, S. C. is still available. It would cost $12,000, plus an estimated $1,000 to ship and erect here. The original cost of the 252-foot long grandstand with four tiers of box seats was $36,000 Domenico said.

The company sales manager later suggested that two of the group fly to Greensboro, at company expense, to look over the grandstand.

However, all plans were kept tentative because, it was stressed, all school projects must be taken up with the school board.

The group at Monday's meeting definitely shied away from basing the improvement on a bond issue; instead, it favored a plan under which the cost could be met through public support and receipts from the athletic program.

Blue-Gray Grid Classic Awaited

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Power and precision were plentiful today as 48 of the nation's top college stars trained for Saturday's Blue-Gray football classic.

The squads really began Monday to get the machinelike click that North Coach Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue and South Coach Blanton Collier of Kentucky are working toward.

Rebel players were drilled for 2½ hours in morning and afternoon sessions. Collier said starting today there will be only one practice a day.

Calisthenics started the Yankee workout, followed by a punting drill scrimmages, and a wind sprint.

Pettit Boosts Pro Score Lead

NEW YORK (AP) —Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks is starting to pull away from the pack in the National Basketball Assn. scoring race.

The jump - shooting ace has found the range for 768 points, according to figures released by the league today. The prolific-scoring Pettit has averaged 28.4 points per game, the fastest pace of any player in history through 27 games.

The Hawks' stalwart boasts an 88-point lead over runner-up Paul Arizin of the Philadelphia Warriors who had accumulated 680. This is the biggest margin enjoyed by a pace-setter this season.

Lions To Meet Dayton Cagers Here Tonight

Monday's Practice Stresses More Speed For Fast Break

Much of Monday evening's practice by the WHS Lions for tonight's (Tuesday) game here with the cagers from Dayton Fairmont was devoted to a tightening of defensive maneuvers and a speeding up of fast break plays on offense.

The drill concentrated on offensive timing in an effort to lessen the turnovers. There was no scrimmage.

Coagh Gene Millard said "we have some boys who are good on the outside shots, but they just have not been hitting in the games He pointed out that the Lions have only a 28 per cent shooting average from the field and 44 per cent from the foul line in their first five games and added "you just can't win ball games like that."

However, there was no note of hopelessness in the coach's voice. It seemed apparent that he felt the Lions will "find themselves" before long.

* * *

FOR TONIGHT'S game Millard said the starters will be Bill Southworth at one forward and either Marlyn Flee or Dave Korn at the other; Bill Crooks at center and Larry Bennett and Jim Hidy at the guard positions.

The Lions will enter the game with a record of two wins and three losses. Dayton Fairmont has won four and lost two. They have had no mutual opponents for comparison.

There will be no Reserve game tonight, but the WHS freshman team will meet the freshmen from Jeffersonville High School in the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

The varsity game will start from 8 o'clock.

Monday afternoon, the Lion Cubs whipped the Tiger Cubs from Greenfield, 38 to 18, on the WHS floor. The Lion Cubs are coached by Bill Seimer, industrial arts teacher who volunteered for the payless job.

Bill Veeck Dickers for White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Veeck, baseball's wandering merchant, is negotiating to buy into the Chicago White Sox.

The former owner of the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns said Monday night "there have been some discussions" between himself and Mrs. Dorothy Rigney, largest stockholder of the White Sox.

Mrs. Rigney, wife of co-Vice President John Rigney and sister of co-Vice President Chuck Comiskey, confirmed sale of her stock shares to an outside syndicate may be imminent.

"My White Sox stock has not yet been sold," said Mrs. Rigney, "but I have to admit that our attorneys have been negotiating the sale of the stock. Yes, negotiations are going on."

Veeck, visiting relatives in suburban Downers Grove, apologized for not being able to give out more information.

"I hate to be uncommunicative and usually I'm not," he said. "But I cannot say anymore right now. I'm sure Mrs. Rigney can say more about it and whatever she says will be correct."

A source close to the American League baseball club said Veeck, who made a previous offer for Mrs. Rigney's interest in the White Sox, now was pondering a higher price asked in a counter-proposal.

Wildcat Ace Paces Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Ruklick, Northwestern's hook shot ace, has taken over the lead in the Big Ten all-games basketball scoring parade.

Ruklick has 147 points in six games for a 24.5 average. In second place is Iowa star Dave Gunther with 132 points in six games and a 22.0 average.

Willie Merriweather of Purdue follows with 123 points in six games and a 20.5 average.

What New Trick Will Giants Uncork Against Baltimore?

NEW YORK (AP) — What new trick will the New York Giants come up with against the Baltimore Colts in the National Football League championship game next Sunday?

Fans in this suddenly professional football crazy town still were buzzing about the razzle-dazzle double reverse lateral that produced the only touchdown in last Sunday's spectacular 10-0 New York triumph over Cleveland for the Eastern division title.

"That was the Brown special," Coach Jim Lee Howell confided today. "We called it 'the thing' all week but we finally decided on a better name."

If the Giants had a "Ewbank special" to throw at Coach Weeb Ewbank's Colts next week, they weren't saying. It's a safe bet they'll practice any new play in private.

Two Giants who undoubtedly will not participate in the workouts until late in the week are Rosey Grier and Sam Huff. Both suffered painful injuries last week but don't bet against their appearing in the lineup against the Colts.

Grier, the massive defensive tackle, is on crutches as a result of a leg injury sustained when he was blocked in a play. Huff, who did such a tremendous hawking job on Jimmy Brown (the Browns' fullback star was held to eight yards in seven rushes), may have a cracked rib.

On the brighter side, Howell reported that Jack Stroud, who missed the last three games, probably will be ready for action at tackle on offense. Buz Guy, with a chipped ankle bone, definitely will be missing at guard.

Frank Gifford, who led the ground gainers with 95 yards Sunday, was limping as a result of an injury to his left knee but he is expected to be in shape to start. So will Alex Webster, who played last week despite two badly bruised knees.

The game will be televised nationally (NBC) but New York and a 75-mile area will be blacked out.

East-West Tilt Due Saturday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty who handles the East team for Saturday's Shrine charity game doesn't believe in a head knocking practice routine.

He declared his 24 charges will have no scrimmages during their week of preparation and will hold only one workout per day.

Daugherty's charges posed for pictures at their Santa Clara training camp Monday and worked for a half hour.

At Stanford, Coach Jack Curtice of the West says he'll continue to hold two drills a day as he installs his wing T offense.

Si Green Out Of Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP) — Si Green, hard-luck pro basketball whiz with Cincinnati Royals, is out of the hospital again after study of a head injury.

Doctors at Christ Hospital reported they found a brain contusion apparently caused Green's diziness and weakness several times earlier this season.

A blood clot on the brain was feared earlier. Green, former Duquesne all-America, may be able to rejoin the team at the first of the year.

Kentucky '5' Moves To Top Of Cage Poll

Cincinnati Quinte? Slips to Second Spot As Cats Win Tourney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky's basketball coach Adolph Rupp had a Merry Christmas two days early today as the nation's sportswriters and broadcasters voted his Wildcats the top team in the weekly Associated Press poll.

The Baron, whose team is defending national collegiate champion, was still enjoying the results of a successful weekend when informed of the Wildcats' choice as top team.

"We're simply delighted," he said.

Kentucky won its own invitational tournament over the weekend, defeating Ohio State and West Virginia. The Wildcats also had a victory over Maryland last week. Results of games through Saturday determine the poll positions.

Cincinnati, first a week ago, dropped to second, receiving 61 first place votes compared to Kentucky's 71. The Wildcats totalled 1,443 points to Cincy's 1,415. Both are unbeaten, Kentucky with an 8-0 record, Cincinnati 5-0.

Unbeaten North Carolina (5-0) is third with 19 first place votes, and 1,076 points. The points are awarded on a 10 for first, 9 for second, etc., basis.

The Tarheels made the biggest jump, coming from 10th place, with three triumphs in four days including the Blue Grass invitational title.

Kansas State dropped a notch to fourth place, losing to Brigham Young, but bouncing back to drop North Carolina State and St. Joseph's (Pa.) from the unbeaten ranks.

Despite its loss to Kentucky in Kentucky Invitational, West Virginia jumped from seventh to fifth place. North Carolina State holds sixth, and Mississippi State climbed a place to seventh, with its 7-0 record.

Auburn and Michigan State, with five and four victories respectively, were the two newcomers to the poll. The Tigers jumped from 13th to eighth place. Michigan State climbed from 11th to ninth.

Xavier of Ohio is 10th, a one position drop.

The top ten teams with won-lost records through Saturday, Dec. 20 in parentheses:

1. Kentucky	(8-0)	1,443
2. Cincinnati	(5-0)	1,415
3. North Carolina	(5-0)	1,076
4. Kansas State	(6-1)	831
5. West Virginia	(7-2)	597
6. North Carolina St.	(6-1)	581
7. Mississippi State	(7-0)	563
8. Auburn	(5-0)	451
9. Michigan State	(4-0)	403
10. Xavier	(5-0)	376

Second ten: Tennessee 235; Northwestern 209; Bradley 181; California 52; Villanova 44; St. Louis 41; Marquette 39; Memphis State 37; Washington 33; Dayton 34.

Xavier Loses Tilt; Bucks Finally Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Xavier stumbled and Ohio State took wings during a pre-holiday night which saw only three Ohio college basketball teams in action.

Xavier, winner of five straight, was soundly beaten by Marquette at Milwaukee Monday night, 86-71. It was the eighth victory for Marquette, which has lost only to Nebraska.

But it was another story in Columbus, where four times-beaten Ohio State overwhelmed Utah 92-69, running up a 53-29 halftime lead.

In the only other game involving an Ohio college team, Ohio Wesleyan of Delaware was smothered by St. Bonaventure Bonnies 91-43 at Olean, N. Y.

Marquette led Xavier all the way after taking a 4-2 lead, widening it to as much as 14 points three times in the first half. Xavier battled back in the last half, coming within five points, but Marquette raced away again.

Mike Moran, who scored 26, and Walt Mangham, who chipped in 18, gave Marquette first rate rebounding and a fast break offense did the rest. Hank Stein had 23 for Xavier.

Ohio State's 43 per cent shooting was the undoing of visiting Utah. Dick Furry netted 22; Larry Huston 20. Dick Ruffell was best for Utah with 12.

An even better percentage was posted by St. Bonaventure. The Bonnies hit 58 per cent and stole the ball at least a dozen times. Don Newhook of the Bonnies and Dick Faul of Ohio Wesleyan shared honors with 20 apiece.

Brown Says '59 To Bring Change

CLEVELAND (AP) — Coach Paul Brown says there will be some changes in the Cleveland Browns lineup for 1959, but Milt Plum and Jim Ninowski will remain as quarterbacks.

WHS Stadium Improvement Financing Discussed by Fans

Plans for financing some contemplated major improvements and enlargement of the Gardner Park football stadium were discussed in considerable detail at a meeting of Lion fans, Stanley Dray, a member of the school board, and Head Coach Fred Domenico at a luncheon meeting Monday in the Terrace Lounge.

Since the whole project is subject to the approval of the school board, no definite action was taken. The purpose was to get together facts and figures, along with some ideas, to be laid before the board later.

Another meeting was slated for next Monday at the same time and place to condense the material gathered to date by the group so it can be taken up with the board, possible at its Monday night meeting.

The financing plan that seemed to meet with most favor hinged on a bank loan of $25,000 underwritten by at least 50 responsible individuals. It was made plain during the discussions that receipts from the football games would be expected to pay off the loan.

* * *

THE IMPROVEMENTS the group feels are needed include more and better lighting and additional seating accommodations.

The present lights, considered both insufficient and obsolete, could be rejuvenated and augmented with additional lights engineers, who have gone over them, reported to the group through Max Lawrence.

They estimated, Lawrence said, that, by using the present lights, an improved lighting system could be installed for around $7,000. Cost of a complete new system was estimated at from $25,000 to $30,000.

Coach Domenico reported that he had called the United States Seating Co. in New York and learned that the two - year - old steel grandstand at a football field in Greensboro, S. C. is still available. It would cost $12,000, plus an estimated $1,000 to ship and erect here. The original cost of the 252-foot long grandstand with four tiers of box seats was $36,000 Domenico said.

The company sales manager later suggested that two of the group fly to Greensboro, at company expense, to look over the grandstand.

However, all plans were kept tentative because, it was stressed, all school projects must be taken up with the school board.

The group at Monday's meeting definitely shied away from basing the improvement on a bond issue; instead, it favored a plan under which the cost could be met through public support and receipts from the athletic program.

Blue-Gray Grid Classic Awaited

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Power and precision were plentiful today as 48 of the nation's top college stars trained for Saturday's Blue-Gray football classic.

The squads really began Monday to get the machinelike click that North Coach Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue and South Coach Blanton Collier of Kentucky are working toward.

Rebel players were drilled for 2½ hours in morning and afternoon sessions. Collier said starting today there will be only one practice a day.

Calisthenics started the Yankee workout, followed by a punting drill scrimmages, and a wind sprint.

Pettit Boosts Pro Score Lead

NEW YORK (AP) —Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks is starting to pull away from the pack in the National Basketball Assn. scoring race.

The jump - shooting ace has found the range for 768 points, according to figures released by the league today. The prolific-scoring Pettit has averaged 28.4 points per game, the fastest pace of any player in history through 27 games.

The Hawks' stalwart boasts an 88-point lead over runner-up Paul Arizin of the Philadelphia Warriors who had accumulated 680. This is the biggest margin enjoyed by a pace-setter this season.

Lions To Meet Dayton Cagers Here Tonight

Monday's Practice Stresses More Speed For Fast Break

Much of Monday evening's practice by the WHS Lions for tonight's (Tuesday) game here with the cagers from Dayton Fairmont was devoted to a tightening of defensive maneuvers and a speeding up of fast break plays on offense.

The drill concentrated on offensive timing in an effort to lessen the turnovers. There was no scrimmage.

Coagh Gene Millard said "we have some boys who are good on the outside shots, but they just have not been hitting in the games He pointed out that the Lions have only a 28 per cent shooting average from the field and 44 per cent from the foul line in their first five games and added "you just can't win ball games like that."

However, there was no note of hopelessness in the coach's voice. It seemed apparent that he felt the Lions will "find themselves" before long.

FOR TONIGHT'S game Millard said the starters will be Bill Southworth at one forward and either Marlyn Flee or Dave Korn at the other; Bill Crooks at center and Larry Bennett and Jim Hidy at the guard positions.

The Lions will enter the game with a record of two wins and three losses. Dayton Fairmont has won four and lost two. They have had no mutual opponents for comparison.

There will be no Reserve game tonight, but the WHS freshman team will meet the freshmen from Jeffersonville High School in the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

Bill Veeck Dickers for White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Veeck, baseball's wandering merchant, is negotiating to buy into the Chicago White Sox.

The former owner of the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns said Monday night "there have been some discussions" between himself and Mrs. Dorothy Rigney, largest stockholder of the White Sox.

Mrs. Rigney, wife of co-Vice President John Rigney and sister of co-Vice President Chuck Comiskey, confirmed sale of her stock shares to an outside syndicate may be imminent.

"My White Sox stock has not yet been sold," said Mrs. Rigney, "but I have to admit that our attorneys have been negotiating the sale of the stock. Yes, negotiations are going on."

Veeck, visiting relatives in suburban Downers Grove, apologized for not being able to give out more information.

"I hate to be uncommunicative and usually I'm not," he said. "But I cannot say anymore right now. I'm sure Mrs. Rigney can say more about it and whatever she says will be correct."

A source close to the American League baseball club said Veeck, who made a previous offer for Mrs. Rigney's interest in the White Sox, now was pondering a higher price asked in a counter-proposal.

Wildcat Ace Paces Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Ruklick, Northwestern's hook shot ace, has taken over the lead in the Big Ten all-games basketball scoring parade.

Ruklick has 147 points in six games for a 24.5 average. In second place is Iowa star Dave Gunther with 132 points in six games and a 22.0 average.

Willie Merriweather of Purdue follows with 123 points in six games and a 20.5 average.

What New Trick Will Giants Uncork Against Baltimore?

NEW YORK (AP) — What new trick will the New York Giants come up with against the Baltimore Colts in the National Football League championship game next Sunday?

Fans in this suddenly professional football crazy town still were buzzing about the razzle-dazzle double reverse lateral that produced the only touchdown in last Sunday's spectacular 10-0 New York triumph over Cleveland for the Eastern division title.

"That was the Brown special," Coach Jim Lee Howell confided today. "We called it 'the thing' all week but we finally decided on a better name."

If the Giants had a "Ewbank special" to throw at Coach Weeb Ewbank's Colts next week, they weren't saying. It's a safe bet they'll practice any new play in private.

Two Giants who undoubtedly will not participate in the workouts until late in the week are Rosey Grier and Sam Huff. Both suffered painful injuries last week but don't bet against their appearing in the lineup against the Colts.

Grier, the massive defensive tackle, is on crutches as a result of a leg injury sustained when he was blocked in a play. Huff, who did such a tremendous hawking job on Jimmy Brown (the Browns' fullback star was held to eight yards in seven rushes), may have a cracked rib.

On the brighter side, Howell reported that Jack Stroud, who missed the last three games, probably will be ready for action at tackle on offense. Buz Guy, with a chipped ankle bone, definitely will be missing at guard.

Frank Gifford, who led the ground gainers with 95 yards Sunday, was limping as a result of an injury to his left knee but he is expected to be in shape to start. So will Alex Webster, who played last week despite two badly bruised knees.

The game will be televised nationally (NBC) but New York and a 75-mile area will be blacked out.

East-West Tilt Due Saturday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty who handles the East team for Saturday's Shrine charity game doesn't believe in a head knocking practice routine.

He declared his 24 charges will have no scrimmages during their week of preparation and will hold only one workout per day.

Daugherty's charges posed for pictures at their Santa Clara training camp Monday and worked for a half hour.

At Stanford, Coach Jack Curtice of the West says he'll continue to hold two drills a day as he installs his wing T offense.

Si Green Out Of Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP) — Si Green, hard-luck pro basketball whiz with Cincinnati Royals, is out of the hospital again after study of a head injury.

Doctors at Christ Hospital reported they found a brain contusion apparently caused Green's diziness and weakness several times earlier this season.

A blood clot on the brain was feared earlier. Green, former Duquesne all-America, may be able to rejoin the team at the first of the year.

Here's Christmas cheer to all our friends and patrons. We thank you for your loyalty and good will, and we hope your holidays will be a time of high happiness, deep contentment, gifts galore!

Hamilton Ends Rebate On City Utility Tax

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—City council, by a 4-2 vote, adopted legislation Monday night that will end a four per cent rebate on the utility tax, restoring it to its former 14 per cent. Delegates from Butler County labor unions in a special meeting last Sunday voted to go on record urging a city income tax instead of a bigger utility tax. City officials say more money is needed to meet anexpected $300,000 deficit next year.

Minimum pavement widths shall be as follows: (a) primary, secondary and minor streets 30 ft., not including curb, (b) cul-de-sacs, 18 ft. with a paved turnaround with a minimum inside radius of 14 ft. and a minimum outside radius of 40 ft., (c) alleys, 20 ft. The maximum grades shall be: (a) primary and secondary streets, 6 per cent, (b) minor streets and alleys, 8 per cent. The minimum grade for any street shall be one-half of one per cent at the gutter. At the intersection of two streets, property line corners shall be rounded by an arc of 10 ft. radius. Street curbs or edges of street pavements shall be rounded by radii of at least 20 ft.

1102.08. Subdivision Standards - Lots and Blocks. Every lot shall abut on a street. Double frontage lots shall be avoided. Size, shape and orientation of residential lots shall be appropriate to the location of the proposed subdivision and for the types of development contemplated and in conformity with the zoning ordinance. Lots for residence purposes shall have an area of not less than 6000 sq. ft., shall be at least 80 feet wide on the building line and be at least 100 feet deep. Excessive depth in relation to length shall be avoided - a proportion of 3.5 to 1 of depth to frontage shall be normal for all lots. Side lines of lots shall be approximately at right angles or radial to the street line. Corner lots shall have extra width sufficient to permit maintenance of building lines on both front and side. The maximum length of blocks may not exceed 1200 ft. The width of a block shall normally be sufficient to allow two tiers of lots of appropriate depth. Where frontage on a primary street is involved, the long dimension of the block shall front thereon in order to minimize access intersections.

1102.09. Subdivision Standards - Public Areas. When a proposed subdivision contains an area described on the city plan as a proposed public building site, park, playground or other public area, such area shall be dedicated on the plat to a public agency or reserved for acquisition by such an agency within a period of five years by purchase or other means. Due regard shall be shown for preserving outstanding natural or cultural features in all platting.

1102.10. Zoning Board of Appeals. The Zoning Board of Appeals created by the Zoning Ordinance shall have authority to permit variations from the standards established herein in order to afford justice and avoid unreasonable hardship to property owners.

1102.99. Penalty. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in an amount not exceeding $100.00. Each day such violation is committed or permitted to continue shall constitute a separate offense and be punishable as such hereunder.

SECTION TWO: Effective date. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed December 10, 1958.

Hamilton Ends Rebate On City Utility Tax

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—City council, by a 4-2 vote, adopted legislation Monday night that will end a four per cent rebate on the utility tax, restoring it to its former 14 per cent. Delegates from Butler County labor unions in a special meeting last Sunday voted to go on record urging a city income tax instead of a bigger utility tax. City officials say more money is needed to meet anexpected $300,000 deficit next year.

The owner of land who desires to subdivide it shall submit four copies of a plat to the City Manager for the City Planning Commission ten days prior to a regular meeting of such Commission. Such plat shall contain (1) the proposed name of the subdivision, (2) location within the city, (3) names and addresses of owners, developers and the surveyor who made the plat, (4) date, (5) layout of streets, names and widths, including curbs and drainage structures, (6) easements, (7) layout, numbers and dimensions of lots and blocks, (8) parcels of land intended to be dedicated or temporarily reserved for public use, or reserved by deed covenant, and the conditions proposed for such covenants and for the dedication, (9) profile of each street with tentative grades, (10) typical street cross sections on a scale, (11) plans and profiles of porposed sanitary and storm sewers with grades and pipe sizes, (12) plan of proposed water distribution system showing pipe sizes and locations of valves and fire hydrants, (13) building setback lines shown graphically with dimensions, (14) indication of any lot for which a use other than residential is proposed by the owner, (15) accurate location of all monuments, which shall be concrete 6" x 6" x 30" with iron pipe cast in center. If not, he shall return it to the owner who shall revise and refile it. If so, the City Manager shall lay it before the City Planning Commission at its next regular meeting. The Commission shall thereupon examine it and approve it within thirty days provided it is satisfied that it complies in all respects with this ordinance and provided the owner agrees (1) that he will make no conveyance of any lot smaller in width or area than indicated on the plat, (2) that all construction work and materials used in connection with public improvements in the area platted will conform to requirements of the City Engineer and be installed under his supervision, and (3) that the City Engineer will be notified three days before any construction is begun on such public improvements in order that proper supervision and inspection may be provided, (4) and all public improvements shown on the plat shall be completed and accepted as to each lot before a building permit can be issued covering said lot.

1102.06. Fees. The owner or developer shall pay to the City the cost of inspection and whatever engineering services may be involved in the installation of the improvements.

1102.07. Subdivision Standards-Streets. Residential streets shall be dedicated by the owner. Minor residential streets shall be so designed as to discourage their use by non - local traffic. Except where necessitated by local conditions, alleys will not be approved in residential districts. Dead end alleys were prohibited. Easements for utilities must be provided along side or rear lot lines where possible. Streets shall have the following minimum widths: (a) primary, 100 ft., (b) secondary, 86 ft., (c) minor, 50 ft., (d) cul-de-sacs and side streets which have no property frontage, 50 ft., (e) alleys, 20 ft., (f) easements, 5 ft. Minimum pavement widths shall be as follows: (a) primary, secondary and minor streets, 30 ft., not including curb, (b) cul-de-sacs, 18 ft. with a paved turnaround with a minimum inside radius of 14 ft. and a minimum outside radius of 40 ft., (c) alleys, 20 ft. At the intersection of two streets, property line corners shall be rounded by an arc of 10 ft. radius. Street curbs or edges of street pavements shall be rounded by radii of at least 20 ft.

1102.08. Subdivision Standards - Lots and Blocks. Every lot shall abut on a street. Double frontage lots shall be avoided. Size, shape and orientation of residential lots shall be appropriate to the location of the proposed subdivision and for the types of development contemplated and in conformity with the zoning ordinance. Lots for residence purposes shall have an area of not less than 6000 sq. ft., shall be at least 60 feet wide on the building line and be at least 100 feet deep. Excessive depth in relation to length shall be avoided - a proportion of 3.5 to 1 of depth to frontage shall be normal for all lots. Side lines of lots shall be approximately at right angles or radial to the street line. Corner lots shall have extra width sufficient to permit maintenance of building lines on both front and side. The maximum length of blocks may not exceed 1200 ft. The width of a block shall normally be sufficient to allow two tiers of lots of appropriate depth. Where frontage on a primary street is involved, the long dimension of the block shall front thereon in order to minimize access intersections.

1102.09. Subdivision Standards - Public Areas. When a proposed subdivision contains an area described on the city plan as a proposed public building site, park, playground or other public area, such area shall be dedicated on the plat to a public agency or reserved for acquisition by such an agency within a period of five years by purchase or other means. Due regard shall be shown for preserving outstanding natural or cultural features in all platting.

1102.10. Zoning Board of Appeals. The Zoning Board of Appeals created by the Zoning Ordinance shall have authority to permit variations from the standards established herein in order to afford justice and avoid unreasonable hardship to property owners.

1102.99. Penalty. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in an amount not exceeding $100.00. Each day such violation is committed or permitted to continue shall constitute a separate offense and be punishable as such hereunder.

SECTION TWO: Effective date. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

SABINA—Sabina's Village Council will finish up the year and begin 1959 with only a partial membership.

The solons selected Miss Mildred Barns, a retired school teacher, to fill one of the three village administration vacancies left last week when two councilmen and the city solicitor resigned.

THE SEATS were vacated last week in the Council's second group resignation within a month. Councilmen Cecil Anders and Clarence Elzey and Solicitor P. Paul Pusateri quit at that time.

A month before, three other councilmen had quit, presumably voicing a dissatisfaction with the outcome of the popular vote on the proposed sewer system which was defeated soundly at the polls.

Mayor Harold Hill said the Council hopes to receive the acceptance of the other candidate by the time of its next meeting Jan. 5.

Jim Klever's Cow Is Nominated for National Contest

Jim Klever, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Klever of the Woods Rd., is one of six junior nominees in the 34th annual nation - wide contest sponsored by the Holstein Assn. He is the only one from Ohio and the first to represent Fayette County.

In order to be eligible for selection, a 4-H or FFA youth must have placed first, second or third with a Holstein animal in the National Dairy Cattle Congress held at Waterloo, Ia., or a first, second or third in the International Dairy Show in Chicago, or first or second place at a state fair where 200 or more Holsteins are shown.

Jim's 2-year-old cow, Klever's Hurlwood Dinah, placed first in the 3-year-old cow class at the Chicago International Dairy Show last month. Therefore, he was eligible to compete in the contest. A nominating committee selected six out of all the eligible entries as nominees for the contest.

Pictures of the six Holsteins owned by the nominees, have been sent to 25 carefully selected judges throughout the United States who will choose a first place Junior All - American, a Reserve Junior All - American and four others for honorable mention. Jim is therefore assured of at least honorable mention in the contest.

The final results will be published in the Jan. 24 issue of the Holstein World Magazine.

5,000 Rabbits Die In Idaho Roundup

TERRETON, Idaho (AP)—About 1,000 club-swinging humans battled jackrabbits over the weekend. Farm agent Rex Cooch of Jefferson County says it will be a few days before there's an exact count, but he guesses there were nearly 5,000 rabbit casualties.

The clubbers formed an enormous circle Sunday and closed in on two sections of land where the rabbits were concentrated, clubbing as they went.

War was declared a week ago after the big rabbits continued their raids on crops in the east Idaho area.

34 Pre-School Youngsters Guests at Sorority Party

Thirty - four pre-school children had a noisy good time and the extra pleasure of meeting Santa Claus at the annual Children's Christmas Party held by Xi Beta Psi and Zeta Upsilon chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority in the Dayton Power and Light Co. auditorium Monday afternoon.

Members of Zeta Upsilon called at the homes of the little guests, took them to the party and returned them after the festivities.

Games provided entertainment prior to the visit of Kris Kringle (Mrs. Robert Terhune) who arrived at 2:30 p. m. and distributed toys and pajamas to the kiddies.

* *

THE CHILDREN were then seated at a decorated table where refreshments of ice cream, cookies and chocolate milk were served. These were donated by merchants.

The Mothers' Circle, Alpha Chapter of the Child Conservation League and Mrs. Smith Mace made contributions to the sorority to assist with the party.

Mrs. Floyd West, of Xi Beta Psi, and Mrs. Norman Troute, of Zeta Upsilon, were the co - chairmen.

Postal Workers Keep Up with Kris Kringle

The Washington C. H. Post Office is keeping up with Santa Claus in fine shape.

By dint of hard work, and aided by the fact that cancellations are running about 12 per cent behind last year, postal employes can assure you that every piece of mail which arrives in the office by delivery time Wednesday will be in your hands before Christmas Day.

The last mail truck arriving here before carriers make their regular Wednesday deliveries is due at 8:30 a. m., and your postman will be waiting for it.

Postmaster Clark Wickensimer said Tuesday that despite the lag in cancellations, Christmas season receipts will run ahead of last year because of the increase in rates.

There will be no deliveries Christmas Day except for extra-charge "specials".

Christmas Story Told in Cantata by Sunlight Chorus

The Christmas Story was told in the cantata, "Silent Night," by the Sunlight Chorus of the First Christian Church for the regular Sunday evening worship service.

Mrs. Russell Rosch was the director and Mrs. Milbourne Flee the accompanist.

The story of the birth of Christ, narrated by Mrs. Sherman Belles, was interspersed with songs by the chorus. Solo parts were sung by Carolyn Evans, Cynthia Hendershot, Karl Rosell, David Saltz and Judy Matthews. "Have Thine Own Way Lord" was sung by a trio composed of Miss Rosemary Swartz, Mrs. Paul Maughmer and Mrs. Robert Maust.

This was the second appearance of this children's chorus since it was organized last October by Mrs. Rosell and Mrs. Flee. The choir mothers are Mrs. Forrest McAllister, Mrs. William Goldsberry and Mrs. Edward Bonner.

The church was decoarted with red poinsettas around the rostrum and white lighted candles and evergreen boughs in the windows by Miss Verna Williams.

The organ and chimes prelude, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" for the chorus' procession was played by Miss Margaret Gibson.

The Christmas story in the Scripture was read by Carol Hurles and prayer was offered by Barbara Pierson.

Announcements by the minister, the Rev. Don McMillin, and the singing of the carol, "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," by the chorus and congregation preceded the offertory prayer by Jane Ann Frederick.

Ushers for the service were Jimmy Merritt, Jimmy Haggard, Dale Matthews, Philip Campbell, John Frederick and Tommy Baughn.

Following the program, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cox served refreshments in the church social rooms.

34 Pre-School Youngsters Guests at Sorority Party

Thirty - four pre-school children had a noisy good time and the extra pleasure of meeting Santa Claus at the annual Children's Christmas Party held by Xi Beta Psi and Zeta Upsilon chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority in the Dayton Power and Light Co. auditorium Monday afternoon.

Members of Zeta Upsilon called at the homes of the little guests, took them to the party and returned them after the festivities.

Games provided entertainment prior to the visit of Kris Kringle (Mrs. Robert Terhune) who arrived at 2:30 p. m. and distributed toys and pajamas to the kiddies.

* *

THE CHILDREN were then seated at a decorated table where refreshments of ice cream, cookies and chocolate milk were served. These were donated by merchants.

The Mothers' Circle, Alpha Chapter of the Child Conservation League and Mrs. Smith Mace made contributions to the sorority to assist with the party.

Mrs. Floyd West, of Xi Beta Psi, and Mrs. Norman Troute, of Zeta Upsilon, were the co - chairmen.

Postal Workers Keep Up with Kris Kringle

The Washington C. H. Post Office is keeping up with Santa Claus in fine shape.

By dint of hard work, and aided by the fact that cancellations are running about 12 per cent behind last year, postal employes can assure you that every piece of mail which arrives in the office by delivery time Wednesday will be in your hands before Christmas Day.

The last mail truck arriving here before carriers make their regular Wednesday deliveries is due at 8:30 a. m., and your postman will be waiting for it.

Postmaster Clark Wickensimer said Tuesday that despite the lag in cancellations, Christmas season receipts will run ahead of last year because of the increase in rates.

There will be no deliveries Christmas Day except for extra-charge "specials".

TALLEST MAN-MADE TREE—Included in the 25th Christmas lighting display at General Electric's Nela Park in Cleveland is this world's tallest man-made tree, which actually changes colors before viewers' eyes. Old Christmas Trees Fight Soil Erosion

By JOHN B. CURTIS

LOS ALAMOS, N. M. (AP) — Experts have written that one of this nation's greatest threats is the loss of priceless soil to erosion.

A little band of Los Alamos people, enlisting the aid of the honorably discharged Christmas tree, have been doing their bit for several years now in an effort to fight erosion here. They would like to see the idea catch on at a statewide level and more.

Instead of casting the Christmas tree into bonfires or the incinerator or the neighbor's back yard, people in Los Alamos save theirs for the members of the Izaac Walton League and the Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts. These organizations see to it that the old trees are dumped systematically in places where they can contribute to soil conservation.

CONSERVATIONIST'S CHRISTMAS: Los Alamos members of the Boy Scouts and Izaac Walton League prepare to unload truckloads of discarded Christmas trees. They are anchored in arroyos where they check further erosion.

Dave Shaffer, a leader in the Izaac Walton League, estimates that the Christmas tree plan has resulted in the conserving of several hundred tons of soil in the last three years.

* * *

AS people of Los Alamos have become acquainted with the plan, cooperation has increased to the point where they practically demand that their trees be collected, Shaffer said, and the task of collecting has become much easier and requires less time.

The collecting plan begins at the Cub Scout pack level, with members of the dens and packs collecting the trees placed in the yards of their particular neighborhoods. They are taken to a central location, from where the Izaac Walton League members and Boy Scouts truck them to arroyos in the Los Alamos or Bandelier Monument areas.

The trees are dumped into arroyos with their trunk ends facing upstream. They are packed down thoroughly thus providing a trap for drifting silt and pebbles and sticks.

Shaffer says that one big arroyo about five or six feet deep and a mile long has become overgrown with grass and weeds since the plan was begun three years ago, silting has practically ceased, and the arroyo has filled up to the stage where in another year or so it will be about levelled over.

SHAFFER said league units in Colorado and in Las Vegas and Espanola are pursuing similar programs.

"We are real proud of what we have done, and there is no doubt about the program's benefits," he said. "We would like to see the idea catch on elsewhere. With a little volunteer effort by such groups as the Scouts and the league, it seems like such a wonderful thing to do with the discarded Christmas trees — so much better than burning them up."

Caramel Apples Yule Favorites

Caramel apples on a stick are a lickin,' good favorite for the holiday season.

And, making them with caramels is foolproof.

Melt one pound (56) vanilla caramels with two tablespoons of water in a double boiler; stir until smooth. Stick a wooden skewer into the blossom end of each apple.

Dip the apple in caramel syrup and turn till the surface is completely coated. If the syrup is too stiff, add a few drops of water.

At once roll the bottom half of each apple in chopped walnuts. Set on a cooky sheet covered with waxed paper. Chill the apples in the refrigerator until the candy coating is firm. This makes six delicious caramel apples.

Is Your Camera Ready For Holiday Pictures?

CAUGHT S'NAPPING—Santa knows a picture when he sees one, even if he has to borrow a camera from the gift pile to shoot it.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Christmas is a joyous season as the spirit of good will and the sharing of gifts reigns everywhere.

And since photography can best record these events, the snap-snap of still cameras and the whir of movies will increase in tempo till the tail-light of the Santa Claus Reindeer-Special fades into the northern sky.

There's no reason why photographers should not be just as happy as all the people around them.

Put a good camera in his hand (a subtle gift hint if I ever heard one), loaded with the right type of film, enough light in the proper places on cooperative subjects and he'll have a snap-happy holiday.

* * *

BUT HOW HAPPY can the cameman be if he discovers at the climactic moment that the camera still has daylight-type color film and right before him—under photo floodlight — the kids are tearing open their packages?

Or the flashbulb fails to fire. Or all the lights go out when a battery of reflector floodlights are connected to one electric light outlet.

Neither house circuits nor photographers need blow a fuse if photo strategy is planned and some preliminary tests made in advance of the big event.

There is nothing new or unusual in this advice but it must be repeated year after year to keep reminding us that it can happen here if we are overconfident or blissfully ignorant.

* * *

TAKE the camera first, especiall if you haven't been using it much since vacations days. Give it a dry run so you know the shutter's operating and the wheels turn while you get the feel of it again.

If it has a flash unit, check the circuit with a test light or play safe and replace old batteries with fresh ones.

What about film? Got enough of the right type? If you happen to have daylight type color film and plan to shoot indoors, you must: (a) get a conversion filter to get correct color rendition, (b) use blue flashbulbs or, (c) finish off the roll in the camera outdoors and switch to the right type. The disadvantage of converting daylight type color film for indoor shooting is that it loses speed and more light is necessary to compensate.

* * *

IT'S BETTER to start with color film for artificial light for indoor shooting since it gives maximum film speed.

Then if it becomes necessary to switch to daylight shooting outdoors, the addition of the proper conversion filter puts the colors in correct balance and at the same time there is no loss of film speed.

When it comes to color film negatives such as Kodacolor and Ektacolor, there is no differentiation between daylight or artificial light.

It can be shot under any kind of light and the results can be viewed as color prints, black-and-white prints or made into color transparencies.

* * *

WHEN IT comes to lighting the indoor scene, the camera light bar has swept the country. This is the hand-held gadget with from two to four reflector floods, in the center of which is the camera.

It is the easiest, most practical method of providing light for a still or movie camera. But it is not the most artistic.

It provides flat, concentrated light when and where you need it. But it won't give a sparking highlight or model the features.

To improve the light level of most indoor shots, you might try putting reflector or floodlights in several normal light fixtures around the room, if the sockets or lamps can take the extra heat.

Again, our best advice is to quick test everything to assure yourself the results will bring Christmas back as a happy memory — instead of a blank.

Hand Gestures Reveal Your Inner Thoughts

By J. RODGER DARLING

"Listening" to people "talk with their hands" is the newest way of reading personality, and it could come in handy for you.

Women are said to be notorious hand-wavers but be honest, mister —don't you find it hard to carry on an animated conversation with your hands buried in your pockets?

If you wave your hands out straight from the shoulder, you are an extrovert—a "straight-from-the shoulder," on-the-double, do-it-now go-getter.

On the other hand, the timid soul who gestures in toward his body is an ingrown introvert. Subconsciously he adopts the boxer's position of self-defense, to guard himself from a threatening world.

As in boxing, you can "win" an argument by keeping an eye on your opponent's hands. His gestures come a split-second before he speaks and tip-off his inner feelings.

* * *

THE MAN or woman who sits with hands folded is shy, frustrated or tied to somebody's apron strings.

A good rule of thumb is to watch the thumb. If the left thumb in on top when the hands are folded, its owner is easy to get along with. Right thumb on top — the bossy type.

If a girl holds her thumb inside her hand she's scared, or maybe just a clinging vine; while the guy who's always jabbing an outstretched thumb about is bold and confident.

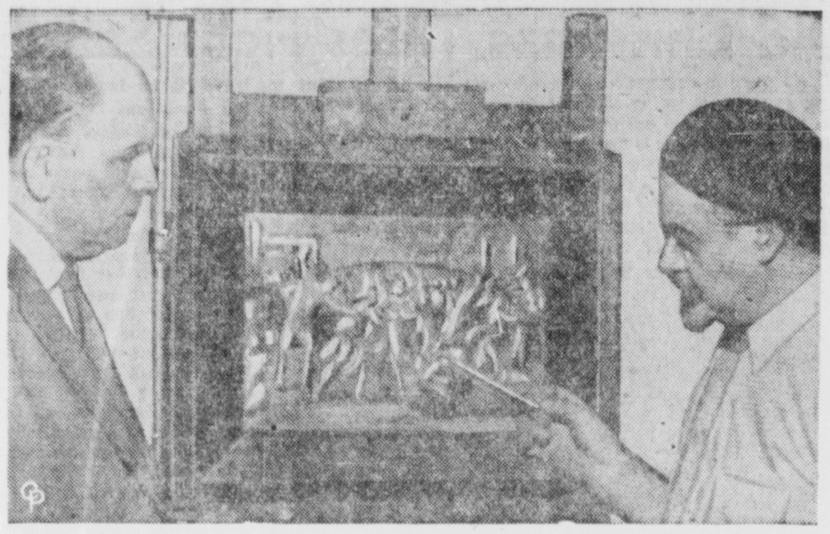
The gent who twiddles with his ear is smart, witty and maybe even sarcastic; but the lippuller is a cold cuss who secretly wishes he had a way with women.

Although you may not be able to read tea leaves, an elegantly upraised tea-party pinky tells you that its outwardly polished possessor really feels fenced-in, and hopes to attract attention.

* *

THIS "HANDY" new method of judging personality may seem to win hands down, but keep your fingers crossed!

After all, the chap who gives you that weak flabby handshake may merely be a meek little gentle gent who would like to be your friend; while that hearty, bone-crushing grip could come from a fast-talking, two-faced faker who's trying to sell you the Brooklyn bridge!



ART TREASURE—Raphael's "The Massacre of the Innocents," one of the fabulous "bargain buys" made by attorney Rudolph Vasalle (left) and another Chicago lawyer, is examined by sculptor Alexander Zlatoff-Mirsky (right), who urged the purchase. The painting, bought for $170, is reputedly worth $300,000. The other two art works are "Christ Carrying the Cross" by Giorgione, and "Sacred Conversation" by Giovanni Bellini. The three paintings cost a total of $2,170 and are valued at $1,600,000, according to Professor Amadore Porcella, of the Vatican Gallery.

Holiday Season Means More Baffling Numbers

"Dialing IT 216 plus..."

The numbers are baffling but helpful to anybody who places a long distance call from Fayette County.

And they will become more helpful to more people as the holiday season comes around with its thoughts of calls to families and friends.

Many people who make few long distance calls during the year will be surprised at how much faster their calls go through than last year.

A dialing system which routes almost all long-distance calls from Fayette County through Columbus was installed in March and has saved residents almost 50 per cent of the time it used to take to place such a call.

* * *

THE HUGE EXCHANGE in Columbus, which employs about 600 operators, has been responsible for dropping the average time of placing a call from about 115 seconds to around 65 on 70 seconds, Mrs. Mary Lou Ralston, chief operator of the Washington C. H. Ohio Bell Exchange, said.

In the past, the Washington C. H. operator had to contact an operator in the city being called on a trunk line. That operator would then dial the local number and transfer it back to the Washington C. H. operator who would connect the caller with his party.

Now, the Washington C. H. operator calls Columbus and while she is reeling off the series of numbers, the Columbus operator is "key pulsing" the numbers and dialing the number directly.

She then hooks the call up with the originator.

Although the number of seconds saved sounds small to many people, anybody making an emergency call appreciates the extra speed, Mrs. Ralston said.

* * *

THE SYSTEM also lets the operator spend less time on each call, thereby assuring greater convenience in placing them, she said.

With an average of 1,450 long distance calls being made from Washington C. H. daily, the 40 or 50 seconds saved on each call saves residents about 15 hours each day.

The new system is part of the telephone industry's long-range plan for setting up direct dialing to every point in the country, so that all a Washington C. H. person would have to do to call a relative in California would be to dial a series of numbers.

Ohio is now split into four areas, each with a headquarters similar to the Columbus office.

Each area has a special coed number which precedes the phone number. The southeast area, with Columbus as its headquarters, has the code number 614.

* * *

CINCINNATI is the main office in the Southwest area, using the number 513. The Northeast area, with Cleveland as its focal point, was assigned the number 216. Toledo, the headquarters for the Northwest area, uses 419.

Operators will use these code numbers to make more non-business calls on Christmas day than on any other day during the year, Mrs. Ralston said.

While from 650 to 700 long distance calls are usually placed from Washington C. H. on other holidays, operators will handle about 1,000 on Christmas Day and almost that many on Christmas Eve, she said.

Although this number isn't as large as the usual working day, Mrs. Ralston said the operators will have to work harder on the calls from residences.

Placing the calls takes longer because many of them are to small towns where they have to be routed in different ways than calls made by direct lines to large cities, she said.

* * *

MORE PEOPLE who are unfamiliar with the procedure are placing long distance calls at that time, which also takes more time, Mrs. Ralston said.

She listed two main things residents can do to help the operator and thereby insure a faster connection.

One is to tell the operator, in order, the following information, city being called the phone number, and the name of the person being called if the call is person-to-person.

Then, if the call is collect, the caller should tell the operator his name and number when she asks for it.

Two, the caller should follow the operator's instructions. If the operator finds a line is busy and tells the caller to wait, it is easier if he doesn't call back and ask what happened to his call, Mrs. Ralston said.

If the caller has to leave the premises, it helps the operator if he calls back and tells any operator who answers that he will be gone, and to either cancel or hold the call for a later time, she said.

Dorothy Roasa, Mrs. Lillian Cramblet, Mrs. Irma King, Mrs. Alice Sheley, Mrs. Shirley Stone and Mrs. Vivian Enochs. The operators place Fayette County's long distance calls from their third floor office in the exchange building on E. Court St.

THICK AND FAST — That's how long distance calls will be coming through to these girls on Christmas Day. While most people will be home opening packages and enjoying a big feast, the girls will be placing more non-business long distance calls than on any other day during the year. Various acting chores will keep these from greeting Santa Claus when he reaches Hollywood.

By ARMAND ARCHERD

HOLLYWOOD —Santa Claus will have to do some fancy dodging around television antennae in order to hit most of the nation's chimneys. However, if it were not for television, most of Hollywood's stockings would be empty come this Christmas morning.

As a matter of fact, most of Hollywood will be hanging up boots instead of stockings this year because it's the westerns— on television— which have kept the actors in clover. So, don't be surprised if Santa comes bounding over the rooftops in a stagecoach loaded with toys; drawn by the top nags of the air waves.

Santa Claus will have a long, tough journey to catch up with the rest of Hollywood's citizens who are intent upon making full-length feature films. Yul Brynner, who had written his order with a Pacific Palisades address, made a change to Madrid when he agreed to re-do "Solomon and Sheba," after the tragic death of his pal, Tyrone Power. George Sanders, too, will be cheered out of his grief on the same film address.

Ava Gardner, who has maintained a Madrid address for the past coupla years, since her own self-imposed exile from the Glamor Capitol, will stand under the mistletoe for some lucky fella in North Carolina— where she's visiting the homefolk for a spell, before heading down Australia way for "On the Beach," with Gregory Peck.

Fred Astaire, too. Astaire, by the way, won't be needing any new dancing shoes this season— his next role is a straight dramatic one.

* * *

OVER IN ROME, the endless "Ben Hur" chariots keep a-rolling along, with Charlton Heston still at the reins. During the long absence, Heston's home in Beverly Hills was built, complete with chimneys— which will have to wait until 1959 for a visit from St. Nick.

Down Mexico Way Robert Mitchum and his family, Jack Oakie and "The Wonderful Country" company will be on the lookout for Senor Santa Claus. Also south of the border are Audrey Hepburn, Burt Lancaster and John Huston of the "Unforgiven" crew.

While the trusty steeds of Santa are dashing over the desert, they'll have to stop in Las Vegas (careful, no time for games this night!) and visit Rita Hayworth, Gary Cooper, Van Heflin, Tab Hunter and Richard Conte, fighting the deadline of New Year's Eve to complete "They Came to Cordura" and return home.

Bill Bendix is living the life of Riley among his British buddies, filming "Idle on Parade." Despte their marital splitup, the address will be the same, England, for Cary Grant and Betsy Drake, who will be visiting the isles during the holidays.

* * *

MOST of the top executives of the studios can be found at home — figuring out the best deals to sell off most of the studio property. As you can see— little of it is being used these days for film making!

However, on the list of most Hollywood actors will be the names of the producers who've turned out the television westerns. For they have provided the hay on which most of Hollywood's citizenry sleeps.

Don't forget, too, an extra something for "The Lone Ranger," Hoppy, Roy Rogers and Gene Autry who started it all.

If Santa still has any strength left— the GI's all over the world wish Bob Hope a big, Merry Christmas— wherever he is.

WHAT BIG EYES!—His eyes popping, a young lemur at the London Zoo stares curiously as his picture is taken. The nocturnal animal, allied to the monkey family, was startled by the photographer's flash in the normally-dim cubbyhole.

8 Suggestions Are Outlined To Keep Christ in Christmas

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Seems like Christmas, with its street corner Santas, its red, white and green window decorations and its carols, gets off to an earlier and earlier start each year.

And, each year, it seems to get a little more brassy, a little more gaudy and little bit further from the true reason for its being: the birth of the Christ Child.

If you've been thinking those uneasy thoughts lately, you're in good company.

The lay movement called "Keep Christ in Christmas" is still around and still pounding away at its annual, and often embarrassing, question: What are you doing about keeping Christ in Christmas?

If you don't have the slightest idea what you can do about it, the four-man Keep Christ in Christmas Committee has compiled a list of eight suggestions. They are:

1. Attend church services and bring others.
2. Join the crusade to give early emphasis to the true meaning and message of Christmas by urging the use of Nativity billboards and window displays.
3. Encourage and join outdoor singing of Christmas carols.
4. Arrange special Nativity tableaux in churches and schools.
5. Place a Nativity creche at the base of your Christmas tree for your children, friends and relatives to see and admire.
6. Buy or use 'Keep Christ in Christmas" seals.
7. Buy and send only religious Christmas cards and urge your friends and business associates to do likewide.
8. Make the Nativity story of St. Luke, Chapter 2, the central theme of your family's observance of Christmas.

There are about 15 million persons in the United States who have some degree of impairment in their hearing.

Incompetent Burglars

NEW HAVEN, Conn., (AP)— Furrier Frederick Joseph is scratching his head over this one.

Burglars who broke into his fur store passed up the valuable furs for some 20 less expensive coats.

Just Coincidence?

HONOLULU (AP) — Three youths walked into Steve's Used Car Lot and tried out three cars. They left without buying any.

It's Christmas Everywhere—ITALY

THE Christmas customs of Italy are entirely centered around the birth of the Infant Jesus. Even the Christmas greetings exchanged are an expression of this idea.

This concentration on the spiritual significance of Christmas in Italy is due to a number of factors, chief of which is the location of the papacy in Rome. The proximity of the pope, as the visible head of the church and his constant spiritual leadership in the early days of the church, did much to stamp out the pagan customs, vestiges of which survived elsewhere.

To St. Francis of Assisi, also, should go much of the credit for this Italian emphasis on the real meaning of Christmas. It was his famous tableau in the little village church of Greccio in 1223 which originated our modern day crib scenes.

A special novena, eight days of prayer and special church services, is held the eight days before Christmas, ending on Christmas day itself. The children may go from house to house reciting Christmas poems for which they are rewarded with small coins. The 24 hours immediately preceding Christmas are observed with a strict fast after which a meal with many special dishes (but no meat) is eaten. This eve of Christmas is a family affair, and in former times there was always a kind of Yule log burning, known as the "Appo." The burning was observed with toasting in wine and wishes for the future.

To construct a 5-pointed star proceed as follows:

1. Draw a circle of any size and label center O.
2. Draw diameter AB perpendicular to diameter CD.
3. Find the midpoint of OB and label it M.
4. Measure CM with a compass; place the point of the compass on M and draw an arc through AO and label the point through AO as P.
5. Measure CP with compass and use this length to divide circle into five equal parts.

That Office Party Could Mean Tragedy

CHICAGO — Memo to tossers of Christmas office parties:

"Keep the cork in the bottle—the family happiness you save may be your own."

That reminder went out from the National Safety Council in its campaign urging business and industry to keep office parties dry during the holidays.

"Office togetherness is okay," the Council said, "but not if it jeopardizes family togetherness.

• • •

"THERE CAN'T BE peace on the highway and good will in the home when Dad gets woozy at the office," the Council reminded it's 8,000 business and industrial members.

And the same goes for career girls. "The secretary struck down in the rush home may have been the one standing under the office mistletoe a few minutes earlier," the Council said.

Surveys reveal the deadliest traffic hour of Christmas is between 6 and 7 Christmas Eve when workers are rushing home.

And don't depend on the coffee urn to sober up, the council warned. "Time — not coffee — is the only cure. It takes three hours to recover from just two cocktails."

• • •

FOR ALL DRINKERS, office or otherwise, the Council had this to say:

"55 per cent of Christmas deaths in traffic in 1957 involved drinking drivers — ample evidence that the cocktail hour should not precede the driving home hour, whether from office or neighborhood party."

Greetings of the Season

In the spirit of a good old-fashioned Yuletide, we wish for you and your family all of the traditional joys of the season. May your days be bright and your hearts light, as you store up a rich treasure of happy memories.

Young Painter Is Smash Hit Second Time

NEW YORK (AP) — A young painter brought 80 pictures to New York for his first one-man show here in a 57th Street gallery, and sold every single one of them.

It was his second one-man show in this country, and that first time he also sold every stitch of canvas.

The gallery said that in other exhibitions a quarter as large it had sold everything, and in small displays had sold enough to make a larger dollar total. But it had never seen paintings go so like hot cakes and thought this record could not be matched.

• • •

THE successful artist is 29-year-old, Indianapolis-born Keith Ingermann, a personable fellow trying not to act too excited by his extraordinary good fortune.

He studied at Pratt Institute in this city, exhibited with numerous groups, had a show all his own in Japan — he was in service 2½ years.

Four years ago he made his first trip to Europe. His itinerary called for three days at Taormina, Sicily, but he was so delighted that he stayed four years.

At his first American show in Palm Beach, Fla., his work was seen by Victor J. Hammer of the Hammer Galleries here, who signed him up for the benefit of New Yorkers.

• • •

HE had a preview on a Monday, and a first public showing Tuesday; in the two days 69 paintings were sold. Eight days later a little red star was pasted on the last to indicate a purchaser had snapped it up. One family bought eight, and another, six. In the closing days, desperate would - be purchasers tried to buy from people who got there first.

Ingermann has sailed for Aaormina again, this time with a pocketful of orders from latecomers.

The pictures ranged from notepaper size to two feet or more on a side, and from $100 to $600. The gallery took in $20,000, it reported.

• • •

THE paintings are congenial, clearly outlined, half-primitive and half-modernist, simple and easy to understand. They are not cartoons, but they invite a quick reading, for they tell a straight-forward story, and sometimes feature a bit of fantasy. Titles include "Woman in Window," "Boy with Umbrella," "Gossips," "Seated Woman," "Red Pepper" and "Boy with Bird."

Santas Gets Hep

The recreation commission of Omaha, Neb., opened a school for Santa Clauses after complaints were registered that local Kris Kringles suffered from "improper padding, a hollow chuckle and phony whiskers that won't fool any 20th century kid."

Shine 'Em Up - Electrically

Christmas is the time to parlay that gentle hint into a large nudge. All the year you may complain that Dad doesn't hang up his clothes, keep his shoes shined or keep track of his ties.

But now Santa gets into the act. He can put into that man's king-size red stocking all the things he needs for better grooming, and your man will never guess that you have an ulterior motive.

New clothes valets take up little room and urge a man to hang up his clothes. These slender racks have a place for Dad's coat, trousers, ties. They also are equipped with a place for whisk broom and shoe brush.

Special tie racks will hold all the ties your man can corral. If one is put on his closet door, it'll always be handy. Give it to him as an extra present, gaily wrapped, and it will take on as much importance as other favorite presents.

YOU CAN intrigue your man with one of the new electrical shoe polishers that spreads polish, brushes and buffs, giving his shoes a mirrow shine in seconds.

The polisher is equipped with brown and black polish in squeeze tubes, interchangeable brushes and a buffer for a roto-shine.

Sounds Brutal

It's Christmas Everywhere—ITALY

THE Christmas customs of Italy are entirely centered around the birth of the Infant Jesus. Even the Christmas greetings exchanged are an expression of this idea.

This concentration on the spiritual significance of Christmas in Italy is due to a number of factors, chief of which is the location of the papacy in Rome. The proximity of the pope, as the visible head of the church and his constant spiritual leadership in the early days of the church, did much to stamp out the pagan customs, vestiges of which survived elsewhere.

To St. Francis of Assisi, also, should go much of the credit for this Italian emphasis on the real meaning of Christmas. It was his famous tableau in the little village church of Greccio in 1223 which originated our modern day crib scenes.

A special novena, eight days of prayer and special church services, is held the eight days before Christmas, ending on Christmas day itself. The children may go from house to house reciting Christmas poems for which they are rewarded with small coins. The 24 hours immediately preceding Christmas are observed with a strict fast after which a meal with many special dishes (but no meat) is eaten. This eve of Christmas is a family affair, and in former times there was always a kind of Yule log burning, known as the "Appo." The burning was observed with toasting in wine and wishes for the future.

An Italian patchwork of stars lights the way for the new born King.

Storks Face Extinction

A stork family which has built its nest on the birds' favorite perch—a chimney top in a Central European town.

By M. E. BYRNE
Central Press Assn.

A stork tragedy looms for this highly-mechanized old world of ours. It's the threat of extinction for Ciconia Alba, which is the egg-head term for the white stork of Europe.

This would be stark — as well as stork — tragedy for mankind, for this large, beautiful bird with the slender legs, snowy plumage and bright red bill — the legendary baby-bringer — is beloved by all peoples.

Since earliest times the white stork, standing sentinel over his chimney nest, has been one of the charming sights of Europe, from southern Sweden, throughout Germany and Hungary, to Greece. Now the fate of the dodo and the American passenger pigeon — extinction— threatens it.

However, unlike the case of the lost dodo and the vanished pigeon the stork's disappearance, if it occurs, won't be blamed on the ruthless excesses of greedy hunters. The stork may prove just a victim of an industrial civilization and its own life habits.

The building of air landing strips and new highways have in many areas drained marshy meadows where the stork was known to seek his favorite dish, the frog.

Not only have feeding grounds been drained, but an increasing number of high-tension power lines are killing the birds.

* * *

WIDE SPREAD use of insecticides is also blamed for stock casualties due to contamination of the tall, stately birds' normal feeding grounds.

However, a most encouraging note is that several European nations, West Germany and Hungary among them, are preparing to act to preserve their stock populations, as conservationists are attempting to do in North America to save the vanishing California condor and the all but extinct whopping crane.

In a tranquil world, free of the menaces of civilization, a stork may live to the ripe old age of 70. He is also one of the most dignified of birds, in the air gliding on great wings or silently stalking across a marshland.

Aside from the childhood fantasy that pictures him as the bringer of babies, presence of the stork is believed to bring good luck, and delighted is the European householder when a stork family begins to build a next on his chimney top.

* * *

THE STORK is a migratory bird, wintering in Africa, some reaching as far as the Cape Colony.

The European stork's Asiatic cousin, Ciconia Boyciana, spends the cold months in India.

There is only one true stork native to the Western Hemisphere — Dissura Maguara — which lives in South America.

The United States, however, harbors one of the stork's close cousins, the wood ibis.

Antioch's Computer Center Plays with Real Figures

YELLOW SPRINGS, — A machine which has yet to be beaten in a game of tic-tac-toe is the heart of Computer Center at Antioch College.

Not that the six staff members who work with the 102D computing machine, a gift to the college from the National Cash Register Co., will admit to much spare time for playing games.

Right now they are busy playing with figures, male figures, that is, as they run a pilot study of men's body measurements for the Mail Order Assn. of America.

Out of this they hope will come a picture of the typical American male which may not jibe with his self image but may be more accurate.

This is just one of the outside research programs that have come to the center since the computer went to work last June. Other off-campus projects helping to make the center slef-supporting are being done for such organizations as Fels Research Institute, Monsanto Chemical Co., National Lutheran Council

That the center be self-supporting was one of three major decisions reached before it was established, Edumund Churchill, the center's acting director, ays in the current issue of "Antioch Notes"

* * *

"THE SECOND broad decison," he writes, "dealt with the educational program. Several areas of effective use for the computer were seen: (1) the education of a good many students in the general aspects of computer use in business, engineering, the sciences; (2) assistance to the college's continuing research into its educational program; (3) help to members of the faculty in their research work."

The third decision was that the computer center should take a broad approach to the field of computation, and that its educational program should stress the choice of the most suitable equipment for the handling of each problem. Thus the center includes standard punch-card machines and conventional desk calculators as well as electronic equipment.

Because Antioch is possibly the first college of its size to install an electronic computer, Churchhill believes it may be of value to consider why Antioch took the step.

"Interest in computers and mechanized data-handling had been engendered over recent years by several forces," he explains. "Off-campus cooperative work experiences of students was one such force. Many recent jobs held by upperclass students had been directly involved with computer programing and use. Antioch's research programs into its own educational program as well as the research programs of affiliated organizations seemed, in turn, to call for computer assistance."

* * *

HOWEVER, costs of maintaining a computer center, even when the computer has been donated, are not small. Antioch hopes to solve that problem by making the computer available to nearby industry and sponsored research programs for four or five hours daily.

"The remaining time," reports, "is ample for our own Churchill educational program. And, actually, even this use of the computer by other clients has its educational aspects in the close working together of client and computer staff."

Other educational possibilities still to be explored are (1) sharing the computer with neighboring small colleges, both as a classroom and research tool; (2) short workshops for selected high school seniors to help develop an interest in careers in mathematics and the sciences; (3) occasional short seminars and perhaps courses at the Antioch Adult Center to provide the public with a clearer idea of a computer's potentialities.

It's Christmas Everywhere — JAPAN CHINA

ALTHOUGH Christmas came to China and Japan from the western world, national characteristics in both countries have made adaptations from the ancient traditions of the East.

Christmas in China is called Sheng Dan Jieh, which means the Holy Birth Festival. The Christmas tree is called the "Tree of Light" and its decorations are usually paper chains, cotton snow, paper flowers and banners, on which are inscribed Chinese characters meaning "peace" and "joy."

The little wind chimes on the Japanese tree are found all over Japan, and especially in the temple grounds. They are made of small bits of glass or mirrors, which tinkle in the slightest breeze to make a kind of faraway fairy music. Hanging on a Christmas tree, they reflect the lights and colors around them and enhance the touch of delicacy which makes the tree unusual. Little colored parasols and fans, made brilliant with metallic paper or sequins, are other ideas we have borrowed from Japanese ways for tree decorations.

The carp is a fish held in high esteem in Japan, so our tree would not be complete without fish ornaments. We have also used little replicas of Shinto gates on our tree. In Japan, as one approaches the Shinto temples, the entrance is through such a gateway, which means "The Way of the Sacred." This is also the meaning of the word "Shinto," the Japanese state religion which is as old as Christianity. In our new-look-at-old-things approach to Christmas, its use as a tree ornament is simply a recognition of its artistic value, though some may prefer to find some other symbolical significance for it.

Japanese splendor.

Eskimo Yo-Yo May Replace Hula-Hoop

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a dull evening on the tundra.

Mukluk the M.. nificent stirred restlessly on his caribou couch.

"If the Great Father had to make our nights so long," he grumbled, "why couldn't he have given us something to do with them?"

Idly, Mukluk began twirling a ball of fur attached to a strip of reindeer hide — a plaything temporarily abandoned by one of his offspring.

Then he tied another ball of fur to the other end of the rawhide str Maybe it would be more fun if he could get both balls going at once, in opposite directions.

Eventually M u k l u k succeeded and thus, some 700 years ago, was born an invention that is making an igloo-full of money for two young Southern Californians.

* * *

IT'S called an Eskimo yo-yo and at last report more than a million members of the lollipop crowd across the nation had acquired replicas.

James Jameson, 27, stumbled across an account of the Eskimo toy in a textbook two years ago while teaching in a suburban Claremont junior high school. He and his brother Bob, 25, then an engineer at Kaiser Steel's Fontana plant, set up Creative Capers Mfg. Co. to fashion the toys of rubber balls and plastic cord.

HULA-HOOP SUCCESSOR? Youngster spins his Eskimo yo-yo. The balls revolve in opposite directions.

Today the company employs 30 persons and operates around the clock to turn out 10,000 of the gadgets daily.

"Sales have spread to 28 statees so far," says James, "and we can not keep up with the orders."

The yo-yos sold at first for 98 cents each. Now 10 other companies have jumped into the act, James says, and the price has been cut to 59 cents.

"If the idea keeps on growing," he says, "who knows? We may even find o u r s e l v e s making these things for th Eskimos."

Of All People!

In Hastings, England, a m a n was arrested for kicking the public Yuletide tree and charged with "wilfully damaging a Christ m a s tree." The arresting officer's name was A. E. Christmas.

This Took a Bit Of Explaining

The day before Christmas last year a woman in Salt Lake City bought a box of 100 identical greeting cards and quickly dispatched about 90 of them without stopping to read their message.

A few days later she picked up one of the few she hadn't mailed and found the inscription was: "This little card is just to say, 'A gift you'll love is on its way!'"

Mission Father Treats Stand-In

CHING SHUI, Formosa (AP) —The Rev. Francis X. Keelan of Cambridge, Mass., a Maryknoll missioner in Formosa, tells this one on himself.

A mission handyman c a m e to him and asked if he had anything for a sore throat. The priest found a bottle of medicine and poured a tablespoon of it down the man's throat.

"He quivered and grimaced," says Father Keelan. "When h i s power of speech finally returned I asked him what he thought of the medicine. 'It's very g o o d,' he gasped. 'But I wanted it for my grandmother.' "

O, come all ye faithful...

Reverently, joyfully, the glory of Christmas is sung and celebrated. As we lift our voices in those beloved Christmas carols, may our hearts be filled anew with the wondrous spirit that came to earth on the Holy Night when He was born and the angels sang. May we find fresh inspiration in the message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men," to guide us at the Christmas season, and always.

It's Christmas Everywhere — JAPAN CHINA

ALTHOUGH Christmas came to China and Japan from the western world, national characteristics in both countries have made adaptations from the ancient traditions of the East.

Christmas in China is called Sheng Dan Jieh, which means the Holy Birth Festival. The Christmas tree is called the "Tree of Light" and its decorations are usually paper chains, cotton snow, paper flowers and banners, on which are inscribed Chinese characters meaning "peace" and "joy."

The little wind chimes on the Japanese tree are found all over Japan, and especially in the temple grounds. They are made of small bits of glass or mirrors, which tinkle in the slightest breeze to make a kind of faraway fairy music. Hanging on a Christmas tree, they reflect the lights and colors around them and enhance the touch of delicacy which makes the tree unusual. Little colored parasols and fans, made brilliant with metallic paper or sequins, are other ideas we have borrowed from Japanese ways for tree decorations.

The carp is a fish held in high esteem in Japan, so our tree would not be complete without fish ornaments. We have also used little replicas of Shinto gates on our tree. In Japan, as one approaches the Shinto temples, the entrance is through such a gateway, which means "The Way of the Sacred." This is also the meaning of the word "Shinto," the Japanese state religion which is as old as Christianity. In our new-look-at-old-things approach to Christmas, its use as a tree ornament is simply a recognition of its artistic value, though some may prefer to find some other symbolical significance for it.

Japanese splendor.

2. For handle, fasten pipe cleaner to center of umbrella with tape. Make a loop at the top of handle large enough to suspend on tree branch (Fig. 2).

CHINESE PAGODAS

Eskimo Yo-Yo May Replace Hula-Hoop

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a dull evening on the tundra.

Mukluk the M... nificent stirred restlessly on his caribou couch.

"If the Great Father had to make our nights so long," he grumbled, "why couldn't he have given us something to do with them?"

Idly, Mukluk began twirling a ball of fur attached to a strip of reindeer hide — a plaything temporarily abandoned by one of his offspring.

Then he tied another ball of fur to the other end of the rawhide str Maybe it would be more fun if he could get both balls going at once, in opposite directions.

Eventually Mukluk succeeded and thus, some 700 years ago, was born an invention that is making an igloo-full of money for two young Southern Californians.

IT'S called an Eskimo yo-yo and at last report more than a million members of the lollipop crowd across the nation had acquired replicas.

James Jameson, 27, stumbled across an account of the Eskimo toy in a textbook two years ago while teaching in a suburban Claremont junior high school. He and his brother Bob, 25, then an engineer at Kaiser Steel's Fontana plant, set up Creative Capers Mfg. Co. to fashion the toys of rubber balls and plastic cord.

HULA-HOOP SUCCESSOR? Youngster spins his Eskimo yo-yo. The balls revolve in opposite directions.

Today the company employs 30 persons and operates around the clock to turn out 10,000 of the gadgets daily.

"Sales have spread to 28 statees so far," says James, "and we can not keep up with the orders."

The yo-yos sold at first for 98 cents each. Now 10 other companies have jumped into the act, James says, and the price has been cut to 59 cents.

"If the idea keeps on growing," he says, "who knows? We may even find ourselves making these things for th Eskimos."

Of All People!

In Hastings, England, a man was arrested for kicking the public Yuletide tree and charged with "wilfully damaging a Christmas tree." The arresting officer's name was A. E. Christmas.

This Took a Bit Of Explaining

The day before Christmas last year a woman in Salt Lake City bought a box of 100 identical greeting cards and quickly dispatched about 90 of them without stopping to read their message.

A few days later she picked up one of the few she hadn't mailed and found the inscription was: "This little card is just to say, 'A gift you'll love is on its way!"

Mission Father Treats Stand-In

CHING SHUI, Formosa (AP) —The Rev. Francis X. Keelan of Cambridge, Mass., a Maryknoll missioner in Formosa, tells this one on himself.

A mission handyman came to him and asked if he had anything for a sore throat. The priest found a bottle of medicine and poured a tablespoon of it down the man's throat.

"He quivered and grimaced," says Father Keelan, "When his power of speech finally returned I asked him what he thought of the medicine. 'It's very good,' he gasped. 'But I wanted it for my grandmother.' "

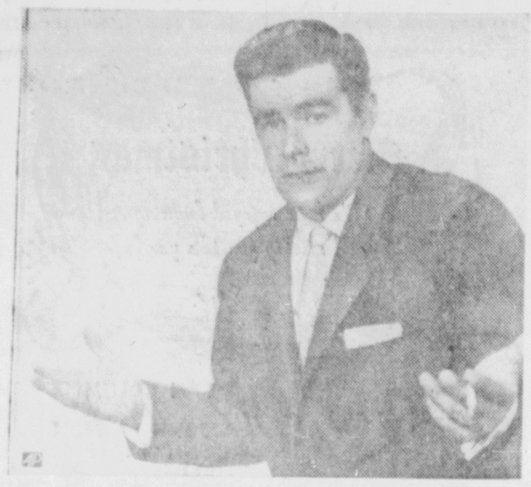
Please Have Pity For Handsome Man



JEFF RICHARD . . . It's tough to be handsome.

By DOROTHY ROE

Don't envy that handsome man. Pity him.

Women don't trust a handsome man — and men don't either, complains a modern Apollo, Jeff Richard, who is TV's Jefferson Drum —6-foot-4, 200 pounds and curly-haired.

"Girls immediately assume a big, good-looking guy is conceited and self-centered," says Jeff.

"What's even worse, they figure all the girls are out to get him, and he couldn't remain true to any one of them if he tried."

* * *

JEFF claims he gets the cold shoulder more often than the beckoning smile from girls, and down right hostility from men.

"In a crowd," he observes, "the guys always suspect the photogenic fellow of having designs on their wives. They're all set to give him a punch on the nose from the start, even if he does nothing but sit in a corner and mind his own business.

"At a party there's always some guy who figures he can prove his courage by socking the biggest man in the room. If you don't hit him back, you're a coward; if you do, you're a bully."

Jeff claims he's rather be considered smart than handsome.

"All my life," he says mournfully, "I've been trying to convince folks I'm not just a great big oaf. When you look the way I do, people simply assume you're stupid."

* * *

TO remedy the situation, Jeff is all for organizing an Association for the Protection of Handsome Men. And if the APHM gets rolling, he figures on starting a ladies' auxiliary. Says he:

"It will be made up of beautiful blondes who want to be respected for their brains, not their dimensions."

'Student' Crow Sociable Bird

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Blackie probably is the only crow in the world who attends a public high school.

It isn't that Blackie is scholarly. He attends school as the loyal pet of Jack McDermott 15-year-old sophomore at suburban University City high school.

'He learned the way and now flies there ahead of me," Jack said.

Blackie lands on a window ledge and walks in sedately when a window is opened for him.

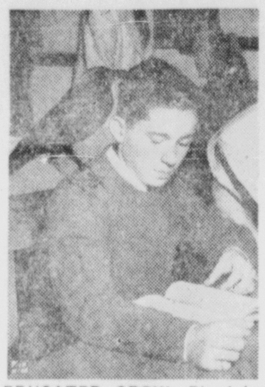
He is on friendly terms with biology teacher Rex Conyers. Blackie frequently attends his classes, confidently flying up to Conyers' desk.

* * *

BLACKIE has a penchant for stealing chalk and pencils, which he hides under leaves. once he left with a student's mathematics notes. They were never found.

The crow sleeps in a tree outside his master's house. Every morning he taps on the door and is let in. Blackie, taken by Jack from a deserted nest before he could fly, has the run of the McDermott home and is considered part of the family.

With red paint on his tonails showing he's tame, Blackie has proved he is a most socialable crow. Occasionally he visits the home of Jack's grandmother a few blocks away.



EDUCATED CROW: Blackie perches on palJack McDermott's shoulder in class at University City high school.

His most notable feat was a visit to one of Jack's former teachers at another school several miles away.

Antique Lights Make Unique Christmas Tree Decorations

Some Christmas ornaments are passed along from one generation to another, and these make unique decorations for the tree.

If there are no holiday display pieces in attics and closets, however, you can find them in antiques shops and shows.

Glass Christmas tree lights made in Germany, England and France in the 1880's and '90's were used to shield candles, and these in glowing emerald, amber, amethyst, cobalt and ruby are the most popular.

* * *

GERMAN Christmas ornaments of wax, plaster, unglazed pottery and spun glass dating from about 1850 are popular also. Some elaborate blown glass ornaments are frosted outside and decorated inside with a manager scene.

Tin ornaments bent into various shapes with colorful pits of glass on them date from the 19th century.

French cup-shaped brass candle holders have wooden ball or gilded lead star attached to provide balance which holds the candle upright.

* * *

THERE are hexagonal tin lanterns with inset panels of varicolored glass. A candle goes inside.

Some people enjoy decorating the tree with old tin cookie molds shaped like animals and gingerbread men.

It's Christmas Everywhere—GERMANY

MUCH of the world's Christmas tradition is of Germanic origin—not necessarily from the geographical Germany of recent times, but from the vast forested areas of the central European heartland, where various tribes successively left their imprint on the land and in the legends of the area.

As a result of the intermingling of ethnical and religious culture of Germanic and Roman paganism, and finally Christianity, superstitious custom and Christian practice were likewise intermingled. Much of the paganism of this pre-Christian era survives in the Christmas traditions of today.

In Germany, the feast of St. Nicholas was celebrated on December 6, and he was represented as riding a white horse and accompanied by his servant Rupprecht, a thin, dark man carrying a sack in which to put bad children. St. Nicholas, of course, carried gifts for the good children.

When a large part of Germany, moved by the teachings of Martin Luther, separated from the Roman Catholic church, St. Nicholas was replaced by "Kris Kringle," who was depicted as a young girl wearing a golden crown and carrying a small Christmas tree, "the tree of light." Kris Kringle was considered a messenger from the Christkind, or Christ Child, and personified the idea of gift giving.

From this varied background, German Christmas tree ornaments take many different forms, including the bearded face and peaked cap of Father Thor, the representations of St. Nicholas as a bishop, and the golden-haired angel girl, Kris Kringle. Apples and oranges come from the miracle plays of medieval days when the evergreen tree, representing the "tree of paradise," was hung with the "forbidden fruit" to symbolize the temptation of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

"Tree of Paradise" lit with stars and candles.

Christmas Is Different In Australia

SYDNEY (AP) — The sun blazes down. . .men and women wear summer clothes to church. . . crowds pack the beaches. . .cold turkey salad is eaten by quiet inland streams.

That is Christmas Day in Australia.

The day comes to the big cities of eastern Australia 10 hours before London, 15 hours ahead of New York.

Because it's mid-summer in the southern hemisphere, the Christmas-New Year period is holiday time in Australia.

Some small firms close for 10 days or so over Christmas and New Year. Those that stay open do little business.

Schools have their longest break, varying from six to eight weeks, in December and January. Working men and women who can manage it take their annual holidays at this time.

* * *

MANY thousands of Australian families spend Christmas away from home. They live in canvas tents, caravans, holiday houses, hotels, and guesthouses.

But broadly the traditions of an English Christmas are maintained in this country 12,000 miles away from the British Isles.

More people go to church than on any other day in the year. Presents are exchanged. Santa Clause arrives for the children. Families try to be together. Special meals are eaten, with a special bottle of wine.

Many families still stick to the English Christmas Day midday dinner of hot roast turkey, chicken, or duck, followed by steaming plum pudding.

But in recent years more and more housewives are cooking their poultry the day before and having it cold with salad.

Some take a hamper to the beach, have their salad sitting on the sand and wearing swim suits.

Baby-Sitter Tips Make Yule Season Safer

Because Christmas is a time of much entertaining and visiting, obtaining baby-sitting services becomes a greater problem than usual.

In most cases, parents realize the importance of fire safety — especially t this time of year— and have taken the necessary precautions in the placement, care and decoration of the Christmas tree.

Never-the-less, the National Board of Fire Underwriters concerned with your safety, offers these helpful suggestions to parents who employ baby sitters:

1. KNOW THE sitter; make inquiries about training and family background.

2. Employ only sitters who have a sense of responsibility and who like children.

3. Try to have the same sitter regularly if possible, and one who lives nearby.

4. Have a preliminary interview with sitter. Acquaint her with children and pets, especially the watch-dog.

5. Give instructions orally and leave them in writing.

6. Show sitter all exits and how to get children out of house in case of fire.

* * *

7. GIVE THE SITTER the telephone number of the fire department, family doctor, and place to which they (parents or adult members of the family) are going. Also, what neighbor to call in the event of any emergency.

8. If there is no phone, explain to sitter other means of notifying fire department in case of a fire.

9. Caution sitter against permitting child to play with matches, electric cords, or other electric appliances. Also, tell her to keep the child out of the kitchen, if possible.

10. If sitter is to bathe youngster, make certain she has had such experience.

* * *

11. LEAVE A first aid kit with sitter and explain how to take care of simple burns, cuts, bruises.

12. Be sure sitter understands that in a fire emergency she should get the child out of the house, then call the fire department, then notify parents.

13. Provide flashlights for use in case lighting should fail.

14. Always come home at the hour agreed upon; telephone if delayed.

15. Make suitable and safe arrangements for accompanying the sitter home.

HEYDAY FOR HUSBANDS . . Men banish the chemise, welcome the Empire mode.

By DOROTHY ROE

This was the year when husbands won the battle of feminine fashions. Never has there been so much talk about women's clothes, never so much male attention to dresses. The rise and fall of the sack dress made the fashion headlines of the year — and the whole thing was refereed by men.

When practically every woman in America stepped out last summer in her new chemise, the masculine catcalls could be heard from coast to coast.

Cartoonists had a field day with the various silhouettes — the balloon, the barrel and the gunnysack. Wives resorted to tears, daughters paid no attention and designers looked thoughtful.

By fall the chemise was as dead as its 1925 original, and the new look once again recognized the basic outlines of the femine figure — somewhat adjusted, but still recognizable.

Empress Josephine became fashion's new dream girl, with the Empire silhouette the new look for one and all.

* * *

THIS also occasioned some difficulty for fashion commentators, who teetered between pronunciations. The new mode has been called variously Ohm-peer, Umpire and plain Empire, with the American —not the French—accent.

What it means is high-waisted, with the belt just below the bust, and little definition of the normal waistline.

The line has persisted throughout the wardrobe—in suits, coats and dresses. Suits have brief jackets and skirts hung on camisole tops, to give freedom and an easy line around the waist.

Coats are also belted high if at all and dresses run to drawstrings or sashes just below the bosom, with skirts hanging straight and usually loose — no skin-tight sheaths.

* * *

THE FUR hat came into its own on a mass-production basis this winter — every woman had to have one. With it was worn the three-yard fur boa, replacing the mink stole in many quarters as the nation's fur accessory. The fluffy fox furs were favored, often even above mink.

Shoes went in for higher cuts, with some approaches to the high-buttoned styles of long ago. Toes were so pointed as to become lethal weapons, but the hazardous stiletto heels caused so much grief for wearers and shoe repairers alike that a number of modifications appeared —the shorter, sturdier baby French or spool heel among the most popular.

Needle heels, when used, developed new safety factors, such as steel shafts, guaranteed not to break, but women who wore them still had to be leary of gratings and cracks in the sidewalk.

Hairdos followed the Empire vogue, going fluffy and upswept, often with topknots. Women who could not wait for their hair to grow resorted to wigs, and sometimes you couldn't tell a hat from a wig, with milliners turning wigmakers and hair stylists designing headdresses.

* * *

JEWELRY ran to long, dangling earrings and multiple strands of beads, with big jeweled brooches definitely back in vogue.

Since no undue roars of rage were heard from the male population when the new Empire styles appeared, designers breathed sighs of relief, and went ahead with plans for more of the same for next spring.

As for the women stuck with a closet full of sack dresses, things turned out not to be so hopeless after all. They just bought belts or sashes and wore them six inches above the waist. Voila —the Empire look!

Mental Depression Drug Now Sought

NEW HAVEN, Conn., (AP) — Science may soon develop a tranquilizer-type drug which will relieve mental depression, Yale psychiatrists say — but don't look for a drug which will alleviate human grief.

Dr. Daniel Freedman, assistant professor pf psychiarty, said while there is no drug at present which is entirely proven as a depression-killer, there are many new drugs which show great promise.

Instead of a "human - grief drug", Freedman hopes another type of drug will emerge.

"I would like very much to see one which would help learning", he added.

It's Christmas Everywhere—America

THE CHRISTMAS TREE came to America from Germany. The first decorated trees in the country were those set up by homesick Hessian troops during the Revolutionary war. But it was many years before the custom itself began.

One of the first known trees was set up by Charles Follen, a German professor at Harvard, in 1832. Another is credited to August Imgard of Wooster, O., who as a recent arrival from Germany, decorated a tree for his nephew and niece in 1847.

Cleveland, O., had a tree in 1851, set up by Pastor Henry Schwan for his congregation. When some of his people objected to it as a pagan practice, the religious character of its origin was explained, and the objections were dropped.

Christmas tree ornaments in the United States come from all over the world in the sense that each nationality has brought its own decoration ideas to its new home.

One of the most important contributions to the Christmas tree is the American invention of electric lights. Today, thanks to Thomas Edison, we can enjoy the Christmas tree in a multitude of colored lights, without the tragedies that marked so many homes when candles were in use. The use of tree lights for outdoor decorations is another American contribution to the holiday atmosphere.

NEW ENGLAND LANTERN

1. Trace and cut Fig. A from red mat stock. Fold on dotted lines.
2. Fold bottom flaps up and glue them in place.
3. Shape hook from pipe cleaner.
4. Make a 4-in. square (roof) of same material used in Fig. A. Draw diagonal lines from all corners, stopping within ½ in. of the center.
5. Overlap flaps of roof, then staple and cut off projecting tabs. Make holes in roof and base.
6. Insert pipe cleaner through holes in roof and base. Attach a colored bead or gummed circle to bottom of pipe cleaner.

2. Fold circle in half. Fringe edges. Form a cone and staple in place. Knot the end of a long string and slide one bell on string until stopped by knot. Repeat step 2, spacing bells evenly. Arrange three bells on one side of string and four on the other when suspending on branch. Colored beads may be strung between bells.

FOIL FLAKES

1. Cut a strip of metallic paper 22 in. long and 2½ in. wide.
2. Fold paper into ½-in. pleats.

Homes Need Built-In Brains At Dangerous Holiday Season

CHICAGO — Christmas suggestion for the house that has everything — a built-in brain to detect booby traps in Christmas trees and toys.

The tip comes from the National Safety Council, which says every household already has this wonder gadget, but most don't realize it.

"It's the collective brainpower of the family," the Council said. And it operates on a few basic principles:

1. The Christmas tree is one of the most combustible objects known and once on fire it burns so fiercely, fed by natural pitch and resin, that it's almost impossible to douse the flames by ordinary means.

2. Children's toys must be bought not only with age, interest and physical capabilities of the child in mind, but also with the intention of teaching the child how to use the toys.

"Trees should be taken down when the needles start to fall, even if the holidays aren't over, and disposed of out - of - doors in fire-safe areas," the Council said. "Never dispose of the tree in a fireplace, furnace or stove where the fire might get too hot to control."

OTHER CHRISTMAS tree safety tips:

Keep tree in a cold place until ready to set it up, then saw off diagonally about an inch of the trunk, put it in a water - containing holder and keep contrainer filled.

Don't put the tree near a fireplace, radiator, television set, powerful electric light or other heat source. Don't run an electric train around its base.

Use electric lights which bear Underwriters' Laboratories label, check wires for defects and don't overload house wiring.

Group Seeking Originator of 'National Tree'

By MARK KNIGHT

Sanger, Calif. (AP) — An unknown little girl, who today would be a woman in her mid-40s, inspired the designation of the Nation's Christmas Tree, and with it one of the country's most impressive outdoor Christmas services.

If she can be found, the Nation's Christmas Tree Festival Committee would like to honor her.

Norman Holt of Sanger, manager of the festival, says the story of the little girl was told to him by the late Charles E. Lee, the man who originated the annual pilgrimage.

* * *

LEE related that in 1924 he was with a party of tourists viewing the great trees in the Sierra Nevada range 55 miles east of Fresno. He and a little girl about 10 became separated from the others and found themselves gazing at the shimmering branches of the sequoia known as "The General Grant Tree," 267 feet above them.

Gripping his hand, she exclaimed, "My! What a wonderful Christmas Tree it would be!"

The she slipped away in the shadows, and Lee never saw her again and never had any idea of her identity. But her remark stuck in his memory.

The next Christmas, in 1925, Lee started the services in the snow at the base of the 3,500-year-old tree, 6,500 feet up in the mountains.

* * *

FEWER than 100 persons attended the non-denominational services, but the crowd has grown each year until now it averages 2,000 to 2,500.

An act of Congress in 1955 designated the tree as a national shrine to American servicemen, living and dead. It was so dedicated in 1956 by Adm. Chester Nimitz, acting as President Eisenhower's personal representative.

While he has undertaken no organized search for the girl who inspired the developments, Chairman Holt says he would like to find her for this year's services.

"It would be a fitting tribute," he said, "to this woman who, as a child, proved the truth of the saying that 'out of the mouths of babes great wisdom flows.'"

It's Christmas Everywhere—FRANCE

FRENCH Christmas traditions are a blend of those of her northern and southern neighbors and a few from the east, in addition to those of her own. This may be due to her location, or perhaps to the nature of her people and the merging of artistry and emotion which has made France famous.

The celebration of Christmas begins with midnight mass on Christmas Eve, followed by a traditional supper known as Reveillon. Special foods served at this meal include oysters, sausages and wine. In many places, however, this comparatively simple repast has been replaced by the baked ham, roast fowl, salads, fruit, bonbons and pastries usually associated with the Christmas day dinner. Sidewalk cafes and restaurants in the city remain open all night for those who prefer their Reveillon in the gay atmosphere of the streets. It is interesting to note that the name given to this meal stems from a word which means "to wake up" which in the military life is "reveille"—the first call of the day. The Reveillon supper of French Christmas tradition is also a symbol of spiritual awakening to the meaning of Christ's birth.

Even the poor had their Reveillon. It was customary to parade a large wicker figure of Melchior (one of the three kings) from door to door. Melchior was strapped to the back of a donkey along with food hampers which were filled at the various homes he passed. This food was then distributed at the church to those in need.

The Yule-log tradition was also observed, particularly in the rural areas. The entire family went out together to select the tree, which was then cut down by the father and the oldest son.

Although the Yule-log tradition was well observed in the French country areas, the scarcity of such fuel and the disappearance of fireplaces in city homes gave it a new interpretation.

Here special cakes, shaped like logs, were baked and then covered with chocolate icing to look like bark and in this way the Yule log became a favorite Christmas delicacy, possibly furnishing the inspiration for that well-known pastry of today—the chocolate eclair.

In the old days French children received their gifts from Le Pere Noel, "Father Christmas," who was accompanied by Le Pere Fouettard, or "Father Spanker," whose function it was to reward the bad children. The gifts were small tokens, toys and goodies left in the children's wooden shoes. In more recent times, it is the Christ child, "Petit Noel," or "Le Petit Jesus," who leaves these gifts for French children.

Oklahoma Has Solved Integration Problem

By DAYTON BLAIR

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Heaven doesn't have any special outside rooms, the governor of this once-segregated state is telling the South.

A product of Southern social standards himself, Gov. Raymond Gary has quietly preached his personal belief that integration is here to stay.

He says he has made friends wherever he has spoken

He has made recent speeches on the subject in Macon, Ga., Tucson, Ariz., and Dallas. In each place he has said this nation must accept Christian principles. Although he doesn't mention integration directly, his implication is unmistakable. He has confirmed his meaning later.

* * *

EXERPTS from the speeches:

"We are all God's children because God made us all in his image. I'm sure there are no special outside rooms in Heaven."

"You see a nation (the United States) whose convictions have not been strong enough in the past, and are apparently not strong enough today, to carry out this program of equal opportunities for all people without strife and bickering."

"God is no respector of persons. Prejudices, and we all have them, are contrary to the will of God. No nation can continue to be strong and to prosper in the sight of God whose people permit a wide gulf between the different religions and beliefs of a people."

"In order for a nation to survive materially, its people must be united together for a common cause. That cause should include respect for others, regardless of their religious beliefs, their habits or their backgrounds."

* * *

IT was by his own insistence that Oklahoma quietly removed its historic prohibitions against integration in a 1955 statewide election. Since then 459 schools — not counting colleges — have opened their doors to Negroes. College barriers had been dropped previously.

Oklahoma's integration has been accomplished with virtually no opposition. The mixing is as general in southern counties, popularly termed "Little Dixie," as in northern areas bordering Kansas, Missouri and Colorado.

By Gary's estimate, the state is saving a million dollars a year through integration. In addition, better facilities are available where the cost of one set of schools has been eliminated.

Gary has lived all his life in traditionally-segregated southern Oklahoma. He taught school there and was a county superintendent of schools.

When he became governor, one of his first acts was to submit a constitutional amendment including a measure to abolish required separate schools. It carried by a heavy margin.

* * *

GARY, a 50-year - old wholesale oil company owner, is an active layman in the Southern Baptist Church. He was Sunday School Superintendent in his own church at Madill for many years before he became governor and moved to Oklahoma City.

The governor is reluctant about voicing his opinions on integration publicly. He doesn't want to stir opposition that might result from misinterpretation.

But he believes, and is saying more frequently, that integration is here to stay and it is only a matter of time until it is accepted throughout the nation. Oklahoma is an example, Gary says, of what can be done when persons in high places begin working toward the change rather than attempting to prevent any change.

Economists Believe Inflation To Hit Nation by Mid-Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Washington economists believe the turn-of-the-year leveling of prices is just a pause. By mid-1959, they predict, inflation will resume its march.

Halting that advance has become the foremost domestic goal of the Eisenhower administration. It has proved itself willing to risk delaying the business recovery to prevent further shrinkage of the dollar.

Some top officials, including Secretary of the Treasury Anderson, are even prepared to retreat from the ironclad anticontrol policy of the Republican administration if this proves to be necessary.

Anderson has let it be known he would consider asking Congress for a standby consumer credit control law if it appeared that free wheeling installment credit was spinning prices up. Right now it is not.

In fact, the fall of 1958 brought the first significant interruption in three years to the steady rise of the living costs. In that time the consumer's dollar lost 8 cents worth of buying power.

Defying the business recession for a full year, the consumer price index pushed upward until it reached an all-time peak in July at 123.9 per cent of the 1947-49 average. In August it dipped to 123.7; there it leveled off.

Government economists now privately predict it will hold approximately the present level for perhaps six months more, because the three kinds of cost that go into the average family's budget are moving in three directions:

Goods — appliances, clothing, cars, furniture—are holding level. Services—transportation, repairs, medical care, laundry and the like—never have stopped rising. Only food is cheaper; it has been declining as it should after a bumper harvest.

This balance of trends may prevail well into 1959.

The view that it will take heroic measures to prevent creeping, walking or galloping inflation was reinforced by recent experience. Wages and prices both rose during the recession.

Consumer prices went up more than 2 per cent. Hourly earnings of workers in durable goods factories — the hardest hit plants rose 3.2 per cent.

In the opinion of Dr. Arthur F. Burns, former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, this provided "new evidence that while there may well be pauses in the process of inflation, as in the last few months, the underlying trend of the price level is still upward."

It's Christmas Everywhere—FRANCE

FRENCH Christmas traditions are a blend of those of her northern and southern neighbors and a few from the east, in addition to those of her own. This may be due to her location, or perhaps to the nature of her people and the merging of artistry and emotion which has made France famous.

The celebration of Christmas begins with midnight mass on Christmas Eve, followed by a traditional supper known as Reveillon. Special foods served at this meal include oysters, sausages and wine. In many places, however, this comparatively simple repast has been replaced by the baked ham, roast fowl, salads, fruit, bonbons and pastries usually associated with the Christmas day dinner. Sidewalk cafes and restaurants in the city remain open all night for those who prefer their Reveillon in the gay atmosphere of the streets. It is interesting to note that the name given to this meal stems from a word which means "to wake up" which in the military life is "reveille"—the first call of the day. The Reveillon supper of French Christmas tradition is also a symbol of spiritual awakening to the meaning of Christ's birth.

Even the poor had their Reveillon. It was customary to parade a large wicker figure of Melchior (one of the three kings) from door to door. Melchior was strapped to the back of a donkey along with food hampers which were filled at the various homes he passed. This food was then distributed at the church to those in need.

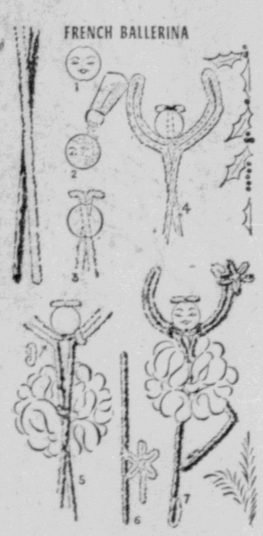
The Yule-log tradition was also observed, particularly in the rural areas. The entire family went out together to select the tree, which was then cut down by the father and the oldest son.

Although the Yule-log tradition was well observed in the French country areas, the scarcity of such fuel and the disappearance of fireplaces in city homes gave it a new interpretation.

Here special cakes, shaped like logs, were baked and then covered with chocolate icing to look like bark and in this way the Yule log became a favorite Christmas delicacy, possibly furnishing the inspiration for that well-known pastry of today—the chocolate eclair.

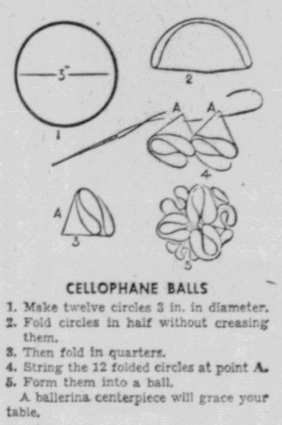
In the old days French children received their gifts from Le Pere Noel, "Father Christmas," who was accompanied by Le Pere Fouettard, or "Father Spanker," whose function it was to reward the bad children. The gifts were small tokens, toys and goodies left in the children's wooden shoes. In more recent times, it is the Christ child, "Petit Noel," or "Le Petit Jesus," who leaves these gifts for French children.

A ballerina centerpiece will grace your table.



FRENCH BALLERINA

1. Paint eyes, eyebrows and mouth on a wooden bead.
2. Cover back of head with glue. While still moist, sprinkle with glitter.
3. Bend tips of two 12-in. pipe cleaners to form right angles. Slide pipe cleaners through bead. Anchor bead at these right angles.
4. Following dotted lines in Figure 4, shape arms of ballerina.
5. Make small pipe cleaner clamps to hold arms in place.
6. Form a small poinsettia from a 4-in. pipe cleaner and fasten to hand of doll.
7. Place a drop of glue in the center of the cellophane ball to hold body together. Shape legs.



CELLOPHANE BALLS

1. Make twelve circles 3 in. in diameter.
2. Fold circles in half without creasing them.
3. Then fold in quarters.
4. String the 12 folded circles at point A.
5. Form them into a ball.

A ballerina centerpiece will grace your table.

Oklahoma Has Solved Integration Problem

By DAYTON BLAIR

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Heaven doesn't have any special outside rooms, the governor of this once-segregated state is telling the South.

A product of Southern social standards himself, Gov. Raymond Gary has quietly preached his personal belief that integration is here to stay.

He says he has made friends wherever he has spoken

He has made recent speeches on the subject in Macon, Ga., Tucson, Ariz., and Dallas. In each place he has said this nation must accept Christian principles. Although he doesn't mention integration directly, his implication is unmistakable. He has confirmed his meaning later.

* * *

EXERPTS from the speeches:

"We are all God's children because God made us all in his image. I'm sure there are no special outside rooms in Heaven."

"You see a nation (the United States) whose convictions have not been strong enough in the past, and are apparently not strong enough today, to carry out this program of equal opportunities for all people without strife and bickering."

"God is no respector of persons. Prejudices, and we all have them, are contrary to the will of God. No nation can continue to be strong and to prosper in the sight of God whose people permit a wide gulf between the different religions and beliefs of a people."

"In order for a nation to survive materially, its people must be united together for a common cause. That cause should include respect for others, regardless of their religious beliefs, their habits or their backgrounds."

* * *

IT was by his own insistence that Oklahoma quietly removed its historic prohibitions against integration in a 1955 statewide election. Since then 459 schools — not counting colleges — have opened their doors to Negroes. College barriers had been dropped previously.

Oklahoma's integration has been accomplished with virtually no opposition. The mixing is as general in southern counties, popularly termed "Little Dixie," as in northern areas bordering Kansas, Missouri and Colorado.

By Gary's estimate, the state is saving a million dollars a year through integration. In addition, better facilities are available where the cost of one set of schools has been eliminated.

Gary has lived all his life in traditionally-segregated southern Oklahoma. He taught school there and was a county superintendent of schools.

When he became governor, one of his first acts was to submit a constitutional amendment including a measure to abolish required separate schools. It carried by a heavy margin.

GARY, a 50-year-old wholesale oil company owner, is an active layman in the Southern Baptist Church. He was Sunday School Superintendent in his own church at Madill for many years before he became governor and moved to Oklahoma City.

The governor is reluctant about voicing his opinions on integration publicly. He doesn't want to stir opposition that might result from misinterpretation.

Bing Doesn't Sing, but He Calls the Tunes

By W. G. ROGERS
By The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudolf Bing is boss at the Metropolitan Opera.

That's the one simple, unvarnished, ordinary fact underlying all the page —one hullabaloo about Maria Callas.

She is the show, he calls the tune.

To a degree, a manager and a singer are indispensable to each other. Unless there's a show, there is no opera. Unless somebody rides herd on the team with its clashing personalities — the Met organization must run to half a thousand people — then again there's no opera.

It all falls apart and nobody sings, neither the temperamental star nor the man or woman with the routine talent.

This is the situation dramatically highlighted by Miss Callas' dismissal from the Met roster for, as Bing said, refusing to abide by her contract. Counting another break since then, she is now not welcome in seven major opera houses in this country and Europe.

That means that six other managers agree completely with Bing that if they are to keep their houses functioning, they must avoid disruptions of the magnitude of those inspired by the fiery and, at least in this respect, extremely gifted Miss Callas.

* * *

IF IT ISN'T her first fight, it is not Bing's either, though we sometims forget it. She gets credit for starting battles, he should get credit for winning them.

Though he commented tartly that in public feuds she "has considerably greater competence and experience" than he could claim, he nevertheless has been in one corner of the ring at all the conflicts at the Met in his regime, and he has been victor in every one.

There have been four, all but one without quarter, and all headline stories.

Every singer involved, like Callas, had a large, devoted and noisy following which swooned at its hero's or heroine's voice. But just the same even the supporters of Miss Callas — and a lot of people don't support her — agree that some single person must run the Met; and music lovers in the great majority would testify in Bing's favor to the effect that the performances have lost nothing by the singers' departure and indeed on occasion improved.

* * *

THERE WAS one special case: Baritone Robert Merrill was dismissed and reinstated. One-time husband of soprano Roberta Peters and one of the best known and liked names at the Met, he was fired in the spring of 1051 by Bing who said he violated his contract.

He was accused of skipping a performance here and others on the Met's annual tour in order to do a Hollywood film, "Aaron Slick from Punkin Creek," a sappy and empty movie if there ever was one. Merrill ate humble pie and rejoined the company of which he remains an invaluable member.

When Callas picked up her marbles and wouldn't play any more, she was repeating in part a pattern already familiar in the puglistic history of Bing's MET.

She had a rival for popular favor, Renata Tebaldi. A soprano who broke off her relations with the Met in 1953 also had a rival. That soher rival, the great-voiced Kirsten Flagstad.

Traubel, tenor Lauritz Melechior and Bing had a touch public exchange.

The tenor and soprano, for almost a decade the mainstay of the Wagnerian wing, complained that that the new general manager had not come around begging them to sign contracts.

No contract was offered Melchior in fact, and he announced his break with the house just a few months before what would have been his 25th operatic anniversary — a birthday which it was generally supposed he would have loved to celebrate at the Met.

* * *

TRAUBEL lasted till she decided to expand her "pops" activities. After trying out some stunts with comedian Jimmy Durante, she sang at a Chicago night club. Bing told her the two kinds of music did not mix. He put a painfully broad hint in the letter in which he mailed her contract:

"Perhaps you would prefer to give the Metropolitan a miss for a year or so until you may possibly feel that you want to change back to the more serious aspects of your art."

She gave it a permanent miss. Flagstad, in Europe during the war, was invited back for Bing's first year.

It was wondered whether he return was resented by Traubel, who denied it, or by Melchior, who found occasion for an implied criticism of her.

* * *

TRAUBEL has been spending her time in night clubs, on Broadway or at resorts. Melchior also has a busy schedule, interrupted occasionally by African safaris. They may well be richer than if they had stayed with the Met.

Originally there was some difficulty in persuading Miss Callas to sign, or the Met to sign her, for her Met debut. During negotiations, her husband angrily declared that she would not sing at the Met as long as Bing was there.

That turned out to be true, though not in the sense he meant: She did not sing as long, Bing is still there.

IN FRIENDLIER DAYS--There were smiles and gentle affection between soprano Maria Meneghini-Callas and Rudolf Bing, boss of the Metropolitan Opera, after her performance early this year. But these have vanished in fiery feuding in which Bing has emerged, as usual, the victor.

He displays a slogan advocating: at 45 mph, sing "Highways are happy ways"; at 55 mph "I'm but a stranger here, Heaven is my home"; at 65 mph "Nearer my God to Thee"; at 75 mph "When the roll is called up younder I'll be there"; at 85 mph "Lord I'm coming home."

The Crowded Inn

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

". . . Mother!" gasped the little girl,
"Just guess what father's gone and done."
"Don't bother me," the mother said,
"You know the inn is overrun
With guests and I have beds to make
And wine to serve and clothes to wash
And fifty loaves of bread to bake."

"But, mother," and the child pursued
The busy woman round the table,
"He's put a wife and husband from Nazareth—out in the stable!"

"The stable's clean. Now get some flour.
Tell Sarah that the fire is low.
Then run to Azrah's. Get some meat
And vegetables. Don't stand there, go!"

"Please, mother, listen. I have seen
The lady, and her face is white
With pain. She's very sweet . . . and she
Is going to have a child tonight."

"What are you saying? You don't know
About such things. Now run along."
The child clung to her mother's arm.
"The lady's voice is like a song.
Her eyes are full of wondrous light.
She said to bring my mother there—
She beckoned to me like a queen.
A crown of light shines in her hair . . ."

The mother laughed. "All right, I'll go
But just to see if what you say
Is true." She turned and walked outdoors,
Out past the cattle munching hay,
She took a look at the sweet wife
Who sat upon a milking stool.

Holy Night

"My name is Mary . . ." "Never mind
Your name, my dear. I've been a fool.
We've very quickly got to find
A bed for you." She deftly made
A pallet out of soft brown straw
On which a thick sheep's skin was laid.
Then hurriedly she went to draw
Fresh water from the inn-side well.

"Bring out clean linen. Stir the fire.
Heat this water. Go and tell
Your father we are going to have
Still another guest . . ."

* * *

Soon people streamed out from the inn
To see the infant gently laid
Within a manger. Some just gaped.
But others, strangely, knelt and prayed.
And presently the townsfolk came,
And shepherds left their distant fold,
And three Magi in velvet robes
Brought frankincense and myrrh and gold.
And overhead the sky grew bright
With a melodious kind of light.

* * *

The inn beds were not made that night.
No fifty loaves of bread were baked.
There was no meat from Azrah's shop,
And not a drinker's thirst was slaked.

But all the world remembers still
The little inn at Bethlehem
Because, although there was no room,
A place was found to welcome Them.

And so it is in crowded breasts
Where e'er the star of kindness gleams.
So full of cares, so full of dreams,
There is yet space for heaven's gift

Co-operative Efforts Of Cops Is Rewarded

BALTIMORE (AP) — The police commissioner got a letter which commended three officers — for good work below the line of duty, you might say.

Attorney James A. Ostendorf explained how he accidentally dropped his watch into the water drain by a downtown curb.

The three officers combined to help Ostendorf retrive the timepiece.

One furnishes a bent paper clip another tied it to a peice of string and a third manipulated the string to pull the watch out from under the grate.

When a housewife in Salisbury, England, failed to reward a group of carolers for singing at her doorstep, the children kicked two holes in the front door and tore up the garden.

Woman "in Picklement' But Damage Not Great

CHEYENNE, Wyo., (AP) — A jar of pickles brought the Cheyenne fire department on the run recently.

Mrs. W. H. Tyler dropped the pickles. The jar broke and juice ran into a floor plug. It caused a short.

The firemen's report: One sticky floor. One inoperative floor plug.

The Crowded Inn

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

". . . Mother!" gasped the little girl,
"Just guess what father's gone and done."
"Don't bother me," the mother said,
"You know the inn is overrun
With guests and I have beds to make
And wine to serve and clothes to wash
And fifty loaves of bread to bake."

"But, mother," and the child pursued
The busy woman round the table,
"He's put a wife and husband from Nazareth—out in the stable!"

"The stable's clean. Now get some flour.
Tell Sarah that the fire is low.
Then run to Azrah's. Get some meat
And vegetables. Don't stand there, go!"

"Please, mother, listen. I have seen
The lady, and her face is white
With pain. She's very sweet . . . and she
Is going to have a child tonight."

"What are you saying? You don't know
About such things. Now run along."
The child clung to her mother's arm.
"The lady's voice is like a song.
Her eyes are full of wondrous light.
She said to bring my mother there—
She beckoned to me like a queen.
A crown of light shines in her hair . . ."

The mother laughed. "All right, I'll go
But just to see if what you say
Is true." She turned and walked outdoors,
Out past the cattle munching hay.
She took a look at the sweet wife
Who sat upon a milking stool.

Holy Night

"My name is Mary . . ." "Never mind
Your name, my dear. I've been a fool.
We've very quickly got to find
A bed for you." She deftly made
A pallet out of soft brown straw
On which a thick sheep's skin was laid.
Then hurriedly she went to draw
Fresh water from the inn-side well.

"Bring out clean linen. Stir the fire.
Heat this water. Go and tell
Your father we are going to have
Still another guest . . ."

* * *

Soon people streamed out from the inn
To see the infant gently laid
Within a manger. Some just gaped.
But others, strangely, knelt and prayed.
And presently the townsfolk came,
And three Magi in velvet robes
Brought frankincense and myrrh and gold.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

By WILLIAM RITT

THE SEARCH for Santa Claus has failed! Professor Dee tells Eski: "Let's listen in on my new Electronic Ear. It's tuned to all the world. If we hear happy children, Santa may be there!" Alas, there is no childish laughter.

MEANWHILE, unknown to Eski and Santa's other friends, he has landed safely in an Indian village, hundreds of miles from anywhere. He is welcomed by Chief White Elk and his children, Two Arrows and Little Deer.

TO SHOW his thanks for White Elk's kindness, Santa fashions toys for the chief's children. Their delighted laughter eases Santa's worries over not being able to get home in time for his Christmas Eve gift-giving world tour.

BACK AT SANTA headquarters, Eski suddenly grasps Dee's arm. "Look!" the Eskimo child exclaims. "The laugh meter! Children somewhere are happy again! Can you find out where, Professor Dee?" (To Be Concluded)

Let a Little of Christmas Rub Off on You

By PAUL SULLIVAN
Public Relations Director
Council of Churches, Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Whoever you are, wherever you may be, whatever else you may be doing this Christmas Day, allow a little of the blessedness of the observance to rub off on you.

And that is bound to happen if, privately or with family or friends, you do only these three simple things:

Though years since you last did so, perhaps read again St. Matthew's or St. Luke's account of the birth of the Christ Child.

However few your musical talents, try singing again some of the beautiful Christmas hymns and carols.

Wherever else they want to roam, let your thoughts be embellished by the sacredness flowing from a Christmas oratorio, cantata, or anthem.

Participate in any of these exercises at home, in church, or elsewhere, let them do to you what they will, and the Christmas festival will become alive to you.

And if by coincidence you and your spouse this Christmas Day are anxiously awaiting the arrival of your first child, you are certain to begin to comprehend the magnitude of that long-ago event to Mary and Joseph in a Bethlehem inn too crowded to accommodate another guest, even the Son of God.

So you open the family Bible and read that when the angel of the Lord appeared to shepherds in the field, they were frightened but at the same time assured the tidings were of great joy, even to all the people!

The angel informed them that on that day in the City of David a Saviour had been born, and that if they went there they would find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

"What an unusual and important experience in the lives of Mary and Joseph," you, the modern-day couple, comment.

It was an important event, too, for the shepherds.

There was a great stirring of imagination of these men who were keeping watch over their flocks that night.

They wanted to believe what they had been told—the Lord had made it known to them—but still they desired more proof.

So they made haste unto Bethlehem and of a certainty found the Babe in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger, and in the stable were Mary and Joseph.

* * *

And it was an important event, too, to you, the modern-day couple.

For now you were receiving a sign that your first child was soon to be born. You communicated with your physician, the best in town! And the hospital, of which there was none better equipped! In your high-powered car you made great haste to the hospital!

And the physician's and nurses' skills, and potency of modern drugs made brief the travail you had feared might be long.

Soon, a son was born, placed in a glass-enclosed nursery, a crib with covering soft as down, where no hands could touch him for a while, save those of the doctor and nurses, lest he be contaminated!

Under expert care you, the new modern-day mother, and your son were returned home, and all the relatives and neighbors and friends gathered to see the babe, and drop hints of his beauty and size and strength.

"Don't touch him, please," you, the new parents, caution, adding: "You know you just might give him a germ."

Finally, the visitors all left, all disappointed, some hurt, all except the next-door neighbor, who paused to inquire:

"What do you have in mind for this fine son? What kind of a man do you wish him to become?"

You, the young mother, spoke first: "Oh, if he is as fine a man as his father, I shall be most pleased."

Then you, the young father, suddenly recalling what the two of you had read the day your son was born, replied, solemnly:

"I am persuaded we ought to have no lesser hope for him than that he follow the precepts of the One born in Bethlehem that night!"

There was a moment's pause by the trio, then the neighbor returned to his house, leaving you, the young modern-day couple, to your thoughts.

* * *

It was a vast experience, indeed, for Mary and Joseph.

There in the Bethlehem stable they hovered, as it were, over their son, wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. There had been no room for him in the inn.

He was a beautiful child, they eagerly agreed. Their joy over His coming was exceedingly great.

And in due course they took Him, Jesus, to Jerusalem, to present Him to the Lord.

And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon Him, and He went about His Father's business, doing good, increasing in stature and favor with God and man.

And through His ministry, though doubters pressed Him to waver, Jesus dared people to establish an awareness of the spirit, that they might see what God would do for them.

And many there were who did so and their lives were benedictions upon their fellows. But how far could a man afford to go in believing and obeying God?

Jesus said He would go the whole distance. And that Jesus did and one day it took Him to a cross and His death.

They thought they were done with Him, but they were not, nor since then have men been able to do away with Him.

* * *

And on Christmas Day from then until now and hereafter the Christ Spirit was and is and shall be born anew in the hearts of the people who believe in Him.

And so it was an experience of great magnitude for Mary and Joseph—and all the world!

Have the merriest, most wonderful Christmas ever!

It's Christmas Everywhere—IRELAND

IRELAND is one of the few countries that never adopted the Christmas tree as a national tradition.

As in Italy and Spain, the celebration of Christmas in Ireland is essentially a commemoration of the birth of Christ, and the manger scene is the one center of interest in Irish homes.

But Ireland has contributed a popular custom to our American Christmas, that of placing a light in the window on Christmas Eve.

This custom originated when the English, in their attempts to suppress the religious beliefs of the Irish, forced the priests to conceal their identities. In secret, and at night, priests would visit the farmhouses and homes of Ireland to conduct religious services.

Thus at Christmas time, the Irish family, hoping that mass might be said under their roof, would place a lighted candle in the window as a guide and a sign of welcome for any priest in the neighborhood.

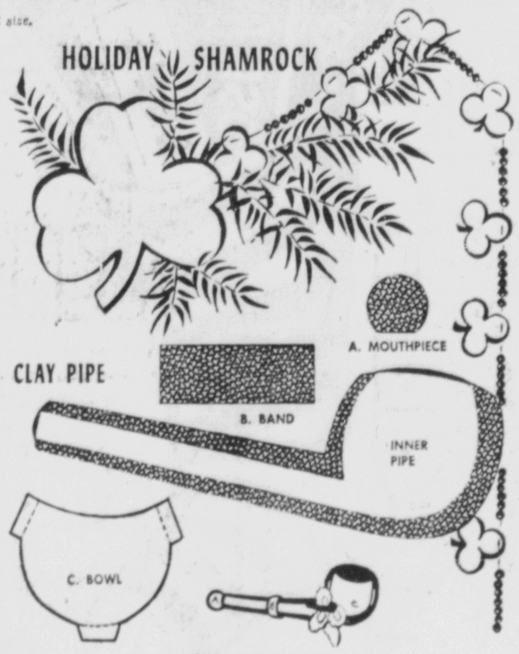
When the English soldiers inquired about the candles, they were told that should Mary and Joseph come that way looking for shelter, the candle was an invitation to enter and be welcomed. Thus, the custom was permitted as merely "Irish superstition." Later, when religious toleration again came to Ireland, the custom remained and was brought to America by Irish immigrants.

Another Irish custom is known as "feeding the wren." This is based on a legend about St. Stephen, whose death as Christianity's first martyr is commemorated on December 26. The story goes that St. Stephen attempted to hide from his enemies in a bush, but was betrayed by a chattering wren. To help the wren do penance for this treason, it was customary for Irish children to take a wren in a cage from home to home, collecting money for charity.

Since Ireland has no Christmas tree of its own, we thought it would be interesting to design one, based on symbols which have become associated with Ireland. Hence the shamrock, clay pipes and leprechaun faces, topped by the Irish country hats. They're all easy to make and in green and white colors will give you a tree with the spirit of the Emerald Isle.

Sketches reduced approx. one-half of original size.

A truly Irish spectacle with garlands of green and white shamrocks.



HOLIDAY SHAMROCK

Adorn your tree with striking green and white shamrock chains. Trace large shamrock and string between green or gold beads.

CLAY PIPE

Trace patterns of pipe, mouthpiece, band and bowl. Turn tabs of bowl under and glue to inner pipe. Glue band (B) around pipe stem. Attach mouthpiece to tip of stem. Add shamrocks or other typically Irish trimmings.

You Can Still Bake Christmas Cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

What a fascinating last-minute to-do there used to be in many kitchens around Christmas time!

That was because the day before the holiday a magnificent pound cake had to be baked.

Down came the special fancy swirl-shaped copper tube pan from its resting place. (In some families the pan was called a guglhupf mold).

Out came a large number of eggs and a pound of sweet butter from the icebox or cool larder.

The flour was scooped out of its bin and sifted.

Down came the cannister or wide-mouthed jar of special fine sugar, kept for great cakes and perhaps with a vanilla bean resting on its snowy drifts, to be measured out.

* * *

WHO EVER heard of an electric mixer for old-fashioned pound cake? The butter and sugar were "creamed" with strong fingers used to the job.

Or several members took turns at creaming, using a wooden paddle or capacious mixing spoon.

The most durable large platter held the egg whites, to be beaten to soft peaks with a flat whisk.

But wait a minute. A cook might decide to embellish her cake. Some ladies still followed the 1850 directions of Mrs. Sara Josepha Hale.

* * *

THEN the famous editor went on to explain, "Candied lemon peel cut thin, and blanched and chopped sweet almonds, are sometimes added; and half a pound of currants will make the cake much richer."

This was a cake for company. Mrs. Hale did not mince matters; she also gave a Family Pound Cake, and it seems the family deserved only dried currants on (in her spelling) carraway-seeds!

But whatever the flavoring, one thing was sure.

That cake would be turned out of its pan onto a cooling rack, a thing of beauty, and its substantial but utterly delectable innards savored to the last crumb. On Christmas day, and after, it might be sliced thin and served at teatime.

Some old-time cooks, on occasion, used brown sugar in their pound cakes; here's a modern version of that conceit that recently was enjoyed at our house.

Ingredients: 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon baking soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup butter or margarine, 1¼ cups firmly-packed light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 large eggs, 1 cup coarsely broken walnut meats.

Method: Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter, sugar and vanilla; add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Gently beat in dry ingredients just until smooth; do not overbeat.

Fold in walnuts. Turn into well-greased lightly-floured 2-quart swirl-shaped small-tube baking pan bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 1 hour or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean.

Loosen sides of cake from pan and turn out on wire rack to cool; store in tightly-covered container.

Information Desk Stumped

NEW HAVEN, Conn., (UP)—Newspaper offices get some odd questions. A woman telephoned City Editor Edward Barthelmes and asked:

"Could you tell me if a 10-quart bucket will hold $1,000 worth of dimes?"

Barthelmes is still looking for the answer to that one.

ITS SO EASY TO PLACE A WANT AD

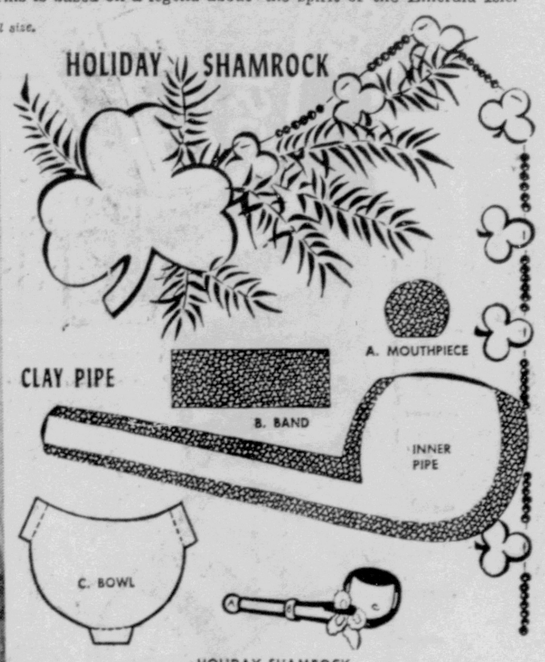
To help the wren do penance for this treason, it was customary for Irish children to take a wren in a cage from home to home, collecting money for charity.

Since Ireland has no Christmas tree of its own, we thought it would be interesting to design one, based on symbols which have become associated with Ireland. Hence the shamrock, clay pipes and leprechaun faces, topped by the Irish country hats. They're all easy to make and in green and white colors will give you a tree with the spirit of the Emerald Isle.

Sketches reduced approx. one-half of original size.

A truly Irish spectacle with garlands of green and white shamrocks.



HOLIDAY SHAMROCK

Adorn your tree with striking green and white shamrock chains. Trace large shamrock and string between green or gold beads.

CLAY PIPE

Trace patterns of pipe, mouthpiece, band and bowl. Turn tabs of bowl under and glue to inner pipe. Glue band (B) around pipe stem. Attach mouthpiece to tip of stem. Add shamrocks or other typically Irish trimmings.

You Can Still Bake Christmas Cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

What a fascinating last-minute to-do there used to be in many kitchens around Christmas time!

That was because the day before the holiday a magnificent pound cake had to be baked.

Down came the special fancy swirl-shaped copper tube pan from its resting place. (In some families the pan was called a guglhupf mold).

Out came a large number of eggs and a pound of sweet butter from the icebox or cool larder.

The flour was scooped out of its bin and sifted.

Down came the cannister or wide mouthed jar of special fine sugar, kept for great cakes and perhaps with a vanilla bean resting on its snowy drifts, to be measured out.

* * *

WHO EVER heard of an electric mixer for old-fashioned pound cake? The butter and sugar were "creamed" with strong fingers used to the job.

Or several members took turns at creaming, using a wooden paddle or capacious mixing spoon.

The most durable large platter held the egg whites, to be beaten to soft peaks with a flat whisk.

But wait a minute. A cook might decide to embellish her cake. Some ladies still followed the 1850 directions of Mrs. Sara Josepha Hale.

After all, Mrs. Hale was editor of Godey's Lady's Gook and she advised "Half a nutmeg, grated, and a little bounded cinnamon or mace."

* * *

THEN the famous editor went on to explain, "Candied lemon peel cut thin, and blanched and chopped sweet almonds, are sometimes added; and half a pound of currants will make the cake much richer."

This was a cake for company. Mrs. Hale did not mince matters; she also gave a Family Pound Cake, and it seems the family deserved only dried currants on (in her spelling) carraway-seeds!

But whatever the flavoring, one thing was sure.

That cake would be turned out of its pan onto a cooling rack, a thing of beauty, and its substantial but utterly delectable innards savored to the last crumb. On Chrstmas day, and after, it might be sliced thin and served at teatime.

Some old-time cooks, on occasion, used brown sugar in their pound cakes; here's a modern version of that conceit that recently was enjoyed at our house.

Ingredients: 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon baking soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup butter or margarine, 1¼ cups firmly-packed light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 large eggs, 1 cup coarsely broken walnut meats.

Method: Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter, sugar and vanilla; add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Gently beat in dry ingredients just until smooth; do not overbeat.

Fold in walnuts. Turn into well-greased lightly-floured 2 - quart swirl-shaped small-tube baking pan bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 1 hour or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean.

Loosen sides of cake from pan and turn out on wire rack to cool; store in tightly-covered container.

Oklahoma's Help for Handicapped Is Based on Realistic Compassion

By LARRY OSIUS

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma has football, Indians, oil — and a cold-eyed compassion for her handicapped citizens. The state is one of the most progressive in the nation in helping the disabled help themselves.

A man with no hands is never lucky, but an Oklahoman with no hands has a better chance than most others to again become a productive, self-sufficient member of the community.

One of the reason's for Oklahoma's record is the firm backing of Gov. Raymond Gary, who supplied from his contingency fund the $15,000 that got the program moving two years ago.

The grant enabled the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped to hire a full-time director and office secretary for one year.

* * *

LAST YEAR the Oklahoma Legislature demonstrated its support by giving the committee $40,000 to retain the executive director for two more years. Don Davis, the first man to fill the job, is still at it and the results are starting to roll in.

Oklahoma ranked sixth in the nation in hiring of the handicapped during 1957. Just under 12,000 jobs were filled by persons with some disability.

States ranking ahead of Oklahoma were New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, Ohio and California — all with much larger populations and heavy concentrations of industry.

Davis' job is entirely one of coordination. He has no authority to tell anyone how to rehabilitate a handicapped person or how to arrange employment for one.

He conducts short and long range programs of public education. He makes or arranges for frequent speeches before civic, veterans and employer groups. He often makes contact with individual employers on behalf of specific handicapped persons.

* * *

ANOTHER PART of Oklahoma's attack on disability is the Vocational Rehabilitation Center at Oklahoma State University's School of Technical training at Okmulgee.

Commonly called Okmulgee Tech, the school provides dozens of trade and technical courses ranging from greenhouse management of saddlemaking.

Most of the students are able-bodied. About 300 per year are disabled with the school is a physical rehabilitation center which, since 1951, has treated more than 1,000 students.

Here the job of rebuilding bodies is the primary aim. But when a man has mastered his new legs or learned how to walk in braces, he often needs a new trade.

Unlike any other state, he can continue his physical training while taking vocational schooling and all under one roof.

* * *

BUT THERE'S another side of the Oklahoma Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, notes his agency can make some degree of progress with some 1,500 persons per year. That means returning them to work or at least making them self-sufficient at home so that relatives can seek jobs.

But he estimates, conservatively, that every year some 5,000 more Oklahomans of employable age join the ranks of the handicapped. Some are injured, some are stricken with disabling diseases, some were congentially handicapped and have never worked.

* * *

THERE IS a dollars-and-cents angle to the handicapped situation. Scurlock says a study showed the gross earnings of 2,487 persons with handicaps were eight times higher after rehabilitation than before.

He says for every tax dollar spent on training, $10 in taxes will be returned by those rehabilitated.

It's not a charity program in Oklahoma. There's too much to do for those who really want to get back on their feet to try and carry those who don't.

But Scurlock adds that if more money were available, many handicapped persons could be trained more quickly and therefore would have less chance to become dependent on the admittedly easier way out — welfare.

One official of Goodwill, Inc., in Oklahoma City, a private agency which last year had more than 400 handicapped employes and put 114 of them into private commercial jobs, put it this way:

"The only thing we give away here is opportunity."

'Silent Night' 140 Years Old

"Silent Night" was written 140 years ago in a matter of hours, but it will last as long as Christmas.

Here's its story:

Mice had found the bellows of Franz Gruber's church organ in Obernodorf, Austria, so tasty a morsel that they proceeded to put the instrument out of order — and that on Christmas Eve, 1818!

But wanting music at this wondrous time, Gruber asked his friend and pastor, Father Josef Mohr, to write some verses for which he could compose a melody. Thus, "Silent Night," played on a guitar, came into being.

The song spread over the Tyrolian hills, but the names of the poet and composer were lost until 1854.

Christmas Trees Made of Popcorn Are Holiday Treats

Popcorn Christmas trees can be a perfect solution to the problem of a table centerpiece or favors for a child's holiday party.

Combine 2½ cups of sifted confectioners' sugar, one unbeaten egg white, and one teaspoon of water to make a smooth icing. Tint a delicate green with a few drops of green food coloring, and blend until uniform in color.

Spread the icing over the outside of six ice-cream cones, covering completely. Use about two tablespoons of icing on each cone.

While the icing is still soft, press about one-half cup of popped corn all over the surface of each cone. Dot with red cinnamon candies here and there between kernels of corn. You can make a whole forest of these. The children will love to look at them and eat them, says Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

It's Christmas Everywhere—ENGLAND

THE Christmas tree came to England from Germany in 1841 when Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg set up a tree in Windsor Castle for Queen Victoria. It was immediately popular and, while its decorations were at first those of the prince's homeland, it wasn't long before it acquired a distinctive tradition of English origin—that of using Christmas cards, many of them bearing pictures of the royal family, as its ornaments.

The first Christmas card is credited to England although there is a considerable disagreement as to the individual who should be recognized as its originator.

England is also noted for the food traditions it has brought to Christmas.

Henry VIII introduced the boar's head served with an apple in its mouth to the dinner menu.

Another favored English dish for Christmas was the plum pudding which originally began as a dish called "frumenty," consisting of boiled wheat, which was strained and combined with milk and egg yolks. Gradually new ingredients were added to spice it up, but it was not until 1670 that it became the culinary achievement known in recent times.

Mince pies were first known as mutton pies and were thought of as edible symbols of the gifts of the Wise Men in that their spices represented the choicest products of the East.

Although carol singing had its origin in several European countries in early times, it achieved a special popularity in the rural areas of England. Strolling groups of carolers, known as the "waits," moved through the village streets singing, and many of the carols still popular today were thus preserved.

In Scotland, the first person to enter the home on Christmas morning shouts "First Footing" and presents a gift for the household to insure its future happiness. Those who leave the house during the day and return must remember to bring something in with them also, even though it is only a stick of wood for the fire, or some food.

The personality of the "first footer" had a variety of implications. The most desired one was a man, preferably with black hair. If he was robust and cheerful, it was especially propitious. In return for the luck he brought into the house he was given a good, stiff drink which had to be downed in one swallow. Obviously a good first footer in making his rounds absorbed a considerable amount of Christmas cheer, so that the custom generated its own spirit of conviviality.

Some Suggestions For Pet Gift Purchasers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

The ideal time to give a child a dog is when he is 8-years-old, a thought to keep in mind if you are shopping for a Christmas pet, says Dr. Robert Leighton, veterinarian at the Ellin Prince Speyer Animal Hospital in New York. He explains:

"If children are pre-schoolers, care of their pet may be left to

THE CHRISTMAS PET . . . Make sure your child wants it, and understands her responsibilities to it.

Mom, whereas older children are ready to accept the obligation."

How to choose the dog?

The liveliest one in the litter is your best bet, says Leighton, regardless of how sorry you feel for the little quiet fellow moping in the corner. He may be ill.

• • •

IT IS a good idea to have a veterinarian examine the dog before the final sale, unless you are purchasing it from a private owner.

The dog should be at least six weeks old. If it is a cute little fellow of about 7 months, give it a second thought—he may not be well or perhaps has been returned to the pet store. A puppy shunted from house to house can get just as maladjusted as a child would in those circumstances, he reminds us.

Choose a puppy that will enjoy rough companionship if it is for a lively boy. Terriers, schnauzers, beagles and dachshunds are good pets. The dachshund is particularly adaptive and can adjust to urban living. A girl might rather have a cocker spaniel. Or a cat.

If you want to get the child, puppy and family off to a good start, choose a good book on pet care that the family can refer to, Leighton advises.

"A puppy is just like an infant. It needs special diet, small meals frequently, and plenty of time for napping. It must be treated like a child until it is six or seven months old."

• • •

DR. LEIGHTON is constantly surprised that some people believe a dog's injuries heal themselves. "A child should be told this is not so," he says "and should be shown how to car for them correctly."

A first aid box should be as important a part of a dog's equipment as his collar and leash, Leighton advises. The pet's emergency box should contain soap, bandages adhesive, antiseptic and a box of cotton swabs.

The swabs are used to apply liquid antiseptics, to examine the dog's gums and clean around his teeth from time to time. When his eyes run the swabs may be used to remove the discharge.

Feeding bewilders some puppy owners too, he says. "Puppies that have just been weaned should not be fed the prepared food an adult dog eats," he says. "Baby cereal chopped meats and baby foods are what it needs initially."

Giving the puppy a huge prepared meal is like giving a 2-year-old a meal of 4,000 calories, he says.

Once a child learns to take care of a dog, Leighton explains, "it will get a real meaing of kindness, consideration, understanding and patience. A pet helps a child bridge that gap between learning to give and being given to."

Dr. Leighton advises that you discourage the idea of picking the dog up too often "because a small child may not realize a young dog can't take too much handling, even when it is fondly meant."

'Rudolph' Born 20 Years Ago

Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer, is very likely to become the best known of Santa's coursers.

Not just because he's such a winsome little fellow, but because his story relates, anew the old, but reassuring theme: Lack of beauty, poise, or wealth need not prevent us from giving help and happiness to others.

The desire to give this message to his little girl was what moved Robert L. May to tell the story in 1938. It was read and loved by many but it really became famous when set to music in 1949.

It's Christmas Everywhere — NORWAY SWEDEN

THE customs, like the languages of the various Scandinavian countries, are very similar.

The days before Christmas are spent in hectic preparation of traditional foods: sausage, cheese, bread, cookies and special dishes for the huge dinner to be served on Christmas day.

In Norway, for example, there is "flat brod," a thin bread made from oat flour and baked over a slow peat fire. Huge quantities are made at Christmas time to be available the year round. There is also "lefse," made of mashed potatoes, salt, cream and flour, rolled pie-crust thin and baked like a waffle, and served with syrup and sausage at the Christmas breakfast. Rice pudding with lingen berries is a favorite dessert, accompanied by a multitude of Christmas cookies.

Christmas dinner in Sweden begins with the famous smorgasbord, which, during the holidays, becomes a feast in itself. There is an elaborate assortment of cheeses, anchovies, herring and other spiced fish and caviar. Next is lutfisk, which is dried cod served with a milk gravy. The meat course is roast pig or goose and sometimes both. And the traditional drink is Julglogg, popularly abbreviated to "glogg," which is made from brandy and port wine, a variety of eight or more spices, and almonds and raisins. Finally there is the famous Swedish coffee, cleared with egg white, and accompanied by cookies.

Special thought is given to the birds and animals at Christmas time. The farm animals get extra rations and, as in many European agricultural areas, there is a tradition that on Christmas Eve at midnight, the animals may speak so as to add their voices to all those giving homage to the Infant King.

'Chemical Kindling' For Fireside Picture

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Are you looking for a way to make more colorful Christmas fireside pictures? In Binghamton N. Y., a group of camera club members were seeking to spark their annual Christmas slide competition and came up with a gimmick.

The idea is to soak kindling material in certain chemical solutions so as to produce vivid, colorful flames. With fireside flames in brighter rainbow hues, more colorful pictures are bound to be the result. It seems like a good idea and here's how to do it.

The kindling material can be dry pine or spruce cones, sawdust or small chunks of well-dried wood. You can also use newspapers, rolled tightly into a small log.

These are the chemicals which, when made into solutions, produce colored flames when dried and ignited:

Cooper sulfate (emerald green); barium nitrate or copper chloride (blue); strontium nitrate (red); lithium chloride (carmine); calcium chloride (orange); potassium chloride (purple).

* * *

THEY can be obtained a chemical supply houses, some camera or drug stores or at hobby shops which handle chemistry sets. They must be thoroughly dissolve in water. Depending upon the quantity of kindling to be soaked, the recipe is:two tablespoons of chemical (one ounce) to one cup of water or one pound of chemical to one cup of water or one pound of chemical to one gallon of water.

Since the chemicals are corosive, do not use a metal pail or tin can unless you plan to discard it. Rubber gloves should be worn to avoid stained fingers.

The cones, wood or paper are placed in an onion sack or perforated cloth bag and immersed in the desired chemical solution for 10 minutes. Then they are removed and placed on newspaper to dry overnight. When they are dry, they are ready to use. They can be stored in paper bags for the burning moment. For rainbow colors, mix kindling material soaked in different solutions.

* * *

WITH the fireside flames glowing, here are some tested exposures compiled by the camera club members based on an average room with a 10-foot ceiling, with Super-Anscochrome tungsten film; 1-25th second at f-2; 1-10th second at f-3.5 and, where a time exposure can be used, ½ second at f-5.6.

Movies also were shot by the light of the flame with some photofloods to lighten up the shadow side. Using 16mm Anscochrome tungsten film, the len is set at f-1.9.

FIRESIDE WARMTH, for the holiday season, was attained with a flashbulb in the fireplace, masked from camera lens. With another flash at rigst of camera, and high, the exposure was 1/100th at f/11 with all-weather pan film.

Salesman Finds Blindness No Handicap

By WHITEY SAWYER

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — "Being blind is just an inconvenience. It's ed up," said John Turner, a successful young insurance agent.

His left hand stroke his seeing-eye dog, Villa, as he went on firmly: "It means you can't do things as quickly as you'd like, you can't hop into a car and go somewhere, but it's not a handicap."

John, an athletic-looking man of 23, has the record to back up his words.

In his first year as a life insurance agent he sold $700,000 in insurance and received an industry scholarship as one of the four most promising young agents of 1958. He has won other company prizes.

Retina troubles plagued him in high school, although he was a successful athlete until "the spring of 1953 I got so I couldn't see at all."

* * *

SEVERAL operations failed to help Turner more than temporily, but he finished high school in May of that year.

"I learned braille that fall and got Villa in November of 1953. I started school at North Texas State College in February of 1954 and graduated in June of 1957," he related.

College didn't present any great problems he said, "I learned to take notes in braille and in longhand and had my books taped so I could listen to them. And I hired readers.

"Yes, and they were always girls," chimed in his pretty petite wife, Jeanie.

Turner smiled a little.

"I majored in marketing and got a BBA," he said. "I took some insurance courses and figured on getting some kind of a sales job.

* * *

"IT TOOK me about two months. I checked with about 14 companies. Most of them wouldn't even consider me. I guess they just weren't interested in anyone who couldn't see.

"Then Ray Campbell gave me a chance to work."

Campbell, a local manager for Massachusettes Mutual, explained his action simply: "I thought the man deserved a chance."

"I stayed home and studied a month or two," Turner related. "Then we had a course in Dallas at regular intervals. By August I was earning money and in October, November and December of that year I sold and delivered more insurance than any of the Massachusettes Mutual agents in the North Texas area."

* * *

TURNER set up an office in Denton, where he went to school. He grew up in Frisco, Tex., a few miles to the east.

He married his senior year in school to a girl he had known since childhood. He hadn't seen Jeanie in several years, he said. "Then I heard she was in town, going to Texas Woman's University. I called her up and that was the most expensive phone call I ever made," he grinned.

During the day John and Villa call on customers, walking around the town of 30,000. At night his wife gets a baby sitter for their baby daughter and drives him on calls.

"I have most of them in my head," Turner said of rates and other questions he might be asked about an insurance program. "I can come within a few cents of them in the main groups I deal with. If I don't know them, I call Jeanie or come back with her at night."

* * *

TURNER said his wife does most of the reading and he does most of the correspondence.

"I really don't feel I could do any better if I could see," hd said. "I expect to always be a salesman. I don't want to try managerial work, although I feel I could probably handle it, with Jeanie and Villa, if I tried."

BLINDNESS OVERCOME: John Turner, crew-cut Denton, Tex., Insurance agent, talks to prospect while Villa, his seeing-eye dog, waits. Turner sold $700,000 in insurance his first year.

Asked if he had any main problems, he laughingly answered: "Not enough business."

"Seriously," he went on, "I don't have a main problem."

He reconsidered a bit, "perhaps you might say I have to work a bit more at night."

"Getting baby sitters is our main problem," Jeanie said.

* * *

JOHN'S life is as normal as possible. He plays cards with a braille deck. "He's got a phenomenal memory for cards," his wife said, "but he hasn't learned to read the cards quickly enough yet to tell what he deals to other people."

He follows football avidly, going to games and getting someone to describe to him what's going on.

The word handicap came up again.

"Jeanie and I saw a man with a real handicap today," John said.

"We saw a blind man rattling a tin cup. He didn't have a professon and he didn't have a dog like Villa, here. That man was really handicapped."

Three Good Samaritans In More Ways than One

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Sam Weisenberg of San Diego hooked a ride with three men in a jeep during a hunting trip in Utah. He fell off the jeep and injured his back before he was introduced to the trio and learned they were all from San Diego.

But by then he felt quite secure. One was a doctor. Another was a priest. And the third was an undertaker.

Fireman's Teaching Gets Quick Result

LEXINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Second graders from Dunbar Elementary School visited the Lexington Fire Department in the morning hours.

A fireman directed the tour. He showed them the trucks and the apparatus, explaining how it all worked. And he showed them how to turn in a fire alarm.

And, of course, a fire alarm came in at 3:25 p. m., after school was out. Twenty firemen and 11 volunteers rushed to the alarm box. There was no smoke, no fire anywhere.

The usual false alarm investigation was made and the unhappy culprit was found. He, of course, was one of the 7-year-olds who had watched so interestedly the demonstration that morning.

Make Your Christmas Bright

By VIVIAN BROWN

One of the joys of Christmas is the lovely lighting — in church, outdoors, in the home. Through the years the possibilities for unusual lighting arrangements had grown, what with outdoor lights with weatherproof plug-in outlets, the safety lights indoors.

Lights are employed to achieve enchanting effects at doors and windows. Even on the table new ideas for centerpieces are suggested by lighting experts.

Some of these arrangements are made a combination with styrofoam and inexpensive props from variety stores.

One captivating unit for small fry may be assembled to show Santa's helpers at the North Pole.

Mountains and base are made of styro-foam and happy elves and wheelbarrow are placed around the "snow." Behind one mountain and hidden is a string of C-7½ red lamps.

* * *

ANOTHER EFFECT may be achieved by creating manger scene with inexpensive figure, concealng a couple of C-7½ inch white Christmas lamps in the roof of the manger.

A couple of Christmas trees fastened to the styrofoam base adds to the effect of the design, along with small stars fastened to the backdrop.

The styrofoam is handy too in creating wall plaques. One such unit as a jolly snow man with a red hat, nose, eyebrows, mouth, tie and button, using materials that are at hand and mounting D-25 and D-26 lamps in the reaer of the snow man

You can have a real whirl at the door, sending your imagination into orbit to achieve spectacular Yultide effects.

A pair of angels may have their wings brightened with lamps in the D-14 size.

On either side of the door aluminum foil may be crushed and worked into a border into which may be buried star reflectors and lamps. These same star reflectors may be used across the roof to carry out the heavenly idea.

* * *

ONE CHIC and unusual door decoration may be made merely by criss-crossing pieces of soft pine until you have a tree shape. Start with a 3-inch strip and work up to a 24-inch cross bar, all of ¾-inch pine.

JOLLY SNOWMAN: He's made from styrofoam and lighted from behind.

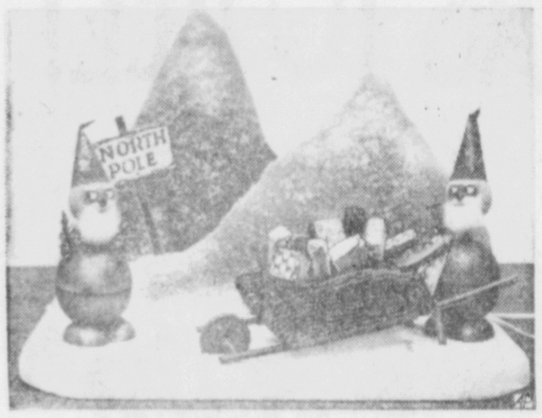
Nail the strips 3 inches apart on a strip of wood about 48 inches long. It'll take about 12 strips. Lights should be on either end of the cross bars and spaced evenly apart.

String sets may be stapled or "add-on" type sockets may be wir taped to the undersides of each "branch." It's a good idea to paint the wood before you start the wiring.

If you plan to outline a tree with lights, plan on at least one light per square foot. Multiply the height of the tree by its width (at the bottom of the tree) by 1½. For example: A 6 x 4 foot tree needs 36 lights to outline it properly.

If you'd achieve solid mass lighting, double that number, but don't exceed it. Too many lights may be an eyesore.

THE MANGER—Make it yourself with nativity figures, styrofoam and lights concealed in the roof of the manger, suggest General Electric lighting specialists.



SANTA'S HELPERS—A table centerpiece that has real child appeal can be assembled with figures from a variety store. Lights may be concealed behind one of the styrofoam mountains.

Survey Turns Up Figures On City, County Incomes

The average Washington C. H. resident nets about $185 more a year than the average Fayette County resident, a recent survey by the industrial development department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce indicates.

Study figures show that while county residents receive a net income of about $1,474, a year, the city dweller averages about $1,660.

The department said 20.7 per cent of the city families and 26.1 per cent of the total county residents have buying incomes of less than $2,499 a year.

* * *

ON THE OTHER end of the ladder, 4.7 per cent of the urban families and 3.7 per cent of the county households have buying incomes of more than $10,000 a year, the survey indicated.

The city's 3,900 households' effective buying incomes average about $5,532 a year while the 7,700 households in the county average about $4,712, the study revealed.

Basing its studies on a Sales Management, Inc. population estimate of 13,000 residents in the city and 11,600 in the rural district, the department said urbanities netted $21,575,000 in 1957 wages while farmers' crops brought them about $14,711,000 after taxes.

* * *

THE POPULATION figures indicate an increase in the city of about 2,400 people since the 1950 census and a decrease of about 250 people in the rural area of Fayette County.

The report also estimated that the county's 1,373 farms grossed about $16,537,000 in 1957.

Of this total, livestock accounted for about $11,602,000 while crops brought the farmers about $4,934, the survey showed.

Sweden will write off 70 million kronor on the state loans granted Finland during World War II.

Make Your Christmas Bright

By VIVIAN BROWN

One of the joys of Christmas is the lovely lighting — in church, outdoors, in the home. Through the years the possibilities for unusual lighting arrangements had grown, what with outdoor lights with weatherproof plug-in outlets, the safety lights indoors.

Lights are employed to achieve enchanting effects at doors and windows. Even on the table new ideas for centerpieces are suggested by lighting experts.

Some of these arrangements are made a combination with styrofoam and inexpensive props from variety stores.

One captivating unit for small fry may be assembled to show Santa's helpers at the North Pole.

Mountains and base are made of styro-foam and happy elves and wheelbarrow are placed around the "snow." Behind one mountain and hidden is a string of C-7½ red lamps.

* * *

ANOTHER EFFECT may be achieved by creating manger scene with inexpensive figure, concealing a couple of C-7½ inch white Christmas lamps in the roof of the manger.

A couple of Christmas trees fastened to the styrofoam base adds to the effect of the design, along with small stars fastened to the backdrop.

The styrofoam is handy too in creating wall plaques. One such unit as a jolly snow man with a red hat, nose, eyebrows, mouth, tie and button, using materials that are at hand and mounting D-25 and D-26 lamps in the reaer of the snow man

You can have a real whirl at the door, sending your imagination into orbit to achieve spectacular Yultide effects.

A pair of angels may have their wings brightened with lamps in the D-14 size.

On either side of the door aluminum foil may be crushed and worked into a border into which may be buried star reflectors and lamps. These same star reflectors may be used across the roof to carry out the heavenly idea.

* * *

ONE CHIC and unusual door decoration may be made merely by criss-crossing pieces of soft pine until you have a tree shape. Start with a 3-inch strip and work up to a 24-inch cross bar, all of ¾-inch pine.

JOLLY SNOWMAN: He's made from styrofoam and lighted from behind.

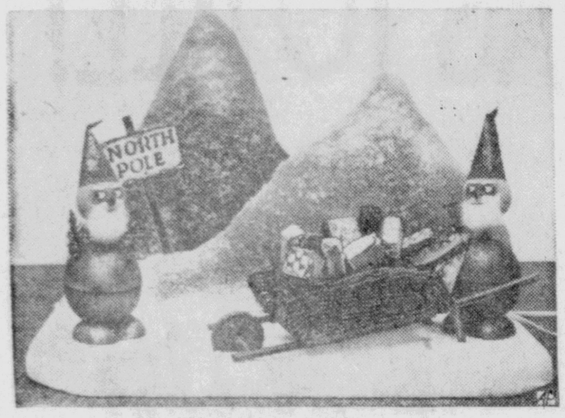
Nail the strips 3 inches apart on a strip of wood about 48 inches long. It'll take about 12 strips. Lights should be on either end of the cross bars and spaced evenly apart.

String sets may be stapled or "add-on" type sockets may be wir taped to the underslides of each "branch." It's a good idea to paint the wood before you start the wiring.

If you plan to outline a tree with lights, plan on at least one light per square foot. Multiply the height of the tree by its width (at the bottom of the tree) by 1½. For example: A 6 x 4 foot tree needs 36 lights to outline it properly.

If you'd achieve solid mass lighting, double that number, but don't exceed it. Too many lights may be an eyesore.

THE MANGER—Make it yourself with nativity figures, styrofoam and lights concealed in the roof of the manger, suggest General Electric lighting specialists.



SANTA'S HELPERS—A table centerpiece that has real child appeal can be assembled with figures from a variety store. Lights may be concealed behind one of the styrofoam mountains.

Survey Turns Up Figures On City, County Incomes

The average Washington C. H. resident nets about $185 more a year than the average Fayette County resident, a recent survey by the industrial development department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce indicates.

Study figures show that while county residents receive a net income of about $1,474, a year, the city dweller averages about $1,660.

The department said 20.7 per cent of the city families and 26.1 per cent of the total county residents have buying incomes of less than $2,499 a year.

Santa and the ELF BOY

by LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

SYNOPSIS: It is Christmas Eve, only moments until the professor will release the gas which will kill all fairies. Arriving at the Castle on the Hill with Santa Claus, Esteban rushes to the room of the professor's spell-bound wife. He sprinkles the dust given him by the Hangdog Hag on the eyes of the beautiful women and she awakes.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

The beautiful women gazed at Esteban and repeated her question. "Where is my husband? Where is my own darling child?"

Instead of answering, Esteban ran to the door. His heart pounded and his hands grew cold. Was it too late after all? Had the professor already let loose the powerful gas?

Suddenly he heard far-away footsteps rushing through the corridors below.

"They are coming!" he cried.

"My dear," said the woman curiously. "Who are you? What are you doing here?"

"I am Esteban," he said. "You were put under a spell by the Hangdog Hag. The professor wishes to destroy all of Fairyland in order to destroy the Hag."

"All of Fairyland! How terrible! I shall not let him do it!"

At that moment Charlotte and the professor came into the room. The little girl took one look and threw herself into her mother's arms. The professor, his lips trembling, moved slowly forward hardly daring to believe what he saw.

"My dear!" said the woman.

Then the professor's eyes filled with joy and he clasped his wife to him.

In a moment she said, "This boys tells me you plan to destroy all fairies. Can that be so?"

"Not any more," said the professor looking gratefully at Esteban. "I shall destroy the gas instead."

Once again he clasped his wife in his arms and Charlotte and Esteban slipped away.

"Oh, Esteban! How wonderful you are!" cried Charlotte. "You have saved everyone! How happy I am!"

She danced into her own room and her eyes widened in astonishment. Standing in the center of the room was an enormous tree decorated with blue and silver balls. Under the tree was a mountain of gifts.

"It's from Santa!" cried Esteban laughing at the little girl's amazement. "Come see what you have!"

Charlotte dropped to her knees and reached for the gifts. The very first package she picked up was marked "For Esteban."

"What can it be?" cried Charlotte. "Open it, Esteban. Open it, do!"

"Merry Christmas!" cried Esteban, flying back to Fairyland.

Esteban tore off the wrapping and opened the box. He broke into a joyful cry. "It's my wings! I have my wings again quickly—fasten them on me!"

Wide-eyed with delight, the little girl took the beautiful fragile wings from his fingers and gently pinned them to the boy's shoulders.

Immediately Esteban grew smaller and smaller until he stood no higher than Charlotte's socks. With a whoop of joy he spread his wings and flew to the window.

"Goodbye, Charlotte. I must fly away now to Fairyland for that is where I belong."

But before she could speak he suddenly placed his finger to his lips and whispered "Listen!"

Charlotte listened and heard the tinkle of sleigh bells. She leaned out the window with the elf. Far above them they saw Santa and his reindeer circling in the light of the moon.

"Oh, Merry Christmas!" breathed Charlotte joyously.

"Merry Christmas!" called Esteban spreading his wings and gliding away.

And from far above came Santa's answering call, "Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas to all!"

Elizabeth Taylor Is Hollywood's Most-Talked-About Woman of '58

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It was a year of triumph and tragedy for Elizabeth Taylor. An onrush of events made her Hollywood's most talked-about women of 1958.

The year started in crushing tragedy for the onetime child star. Her third husband, fabulous showman Mike Todd, fell to a flaming death in his private plane.

Liz was desolate. Among those who hastened to console her were Todd's dear friend, singer Eddie Fisher, and his wife, Debbie Reynolds. No one then knew what portent that held.

After a few weeks of mourning, Luscious Liz returned to MGM to finish "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." She said she had little desire to work again, but she was doing it for Mike. He predicted "Cat" would win her the Oscar she had lost to Joanne Woodward the previous year, when she was up for "Raintree County."

* * *

"CAT" established Liz as the hottest female star in films. It lingered an amazing two months on top of the box office winners list, and the critics hailed her acting skill. Free from her MGM contract, she was able to make fabulous deals, such as a half million dollars and 10 per cent of each box office dollar to do "Two for the Seesaw."

In late summer she found herself again in the headlines, this time in a less sympathetic guise. After a fling with Liz in the East, Eddie Fisher announced a separaton from his wife, and Debbie's fans accused Liz of husband-stealing.

Liz admitted that the adverse publicity might affect her Oscar chances. At any rate, it appeared to be a tight race among the female contenders.

* * *

SUSAN HAYWARD, who left Hollywood to live in Georgia with her husband, Eaton Chalkley, returned to register an electrifying performance as Barbara Graham in "I Want to Live."

Jean Simmons demonstrated her maturity with a topnotch job in "Home before Dark."

Ingrid Bergman, always a strong contender, scored again with her sensitive work in "Inn of the Sixth Happiness."

The girl to watch in the future was pretty young Millie Perkins. A New York photographer's model, she was catapulated to stardom with the leading role in "The Diary of Anne Frank."

* * *

OTHER WOMEN proved you didn't have to be an actress to make a mint in Hollywood. Grace Metalious won a contract estimated at a half-million dollars for film rights to her new novel plus a sequel to her sensational "Peyton Place."

Rona Jaffe, 26-year-old former office worker, penned a novel about her co-workers. "The Best of Everything," and sold it to 20th Century-Fox for $150,000.

And film writer Ketti Frings won the Pultizer prize for her sensitive stage adapation of Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel."

In television, Dinah Shore was again the queen. The consistent high quality of her Sunday night show was a wonder to critics.
